DETLOR—In loving memory of Pte Victor Detlor who passed away five years ago today, Nov. 26, 1943.
Five years have passed and gone,
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon our graves
May wither and decay,
But the love of him who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away
—Remembered by father and mother, sister and brothers.

KAVANAGH—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Almedie Kavanagh, who went to her eternal rest five years ago today, November 22, 1944.

Safe in the arms of God's love.

Men Form Group

Barbershop harmonizing was born in 1938 when Owen C. Cash, of Tulsa, an attorney, invited friends to join him and another acquaintance in an informal sonfest, and perhaps form a local singing club devoted to the songs "everybody knows."

It proved not only an immediate success in his home town but also attracted state-wide interest and eventually, chapters were informed in most of the States and also in Canada.

According to the SPEBSQSA it is a non-profit organization with four fundamental aims:

"One, to keep barbershop quartet singing in its rightful place as a traditional form of American folk music.

"Two, to give every member an opportunity to sing in a permanently organized quartet and to encourage and assist the forming of as many good quartets as possible from among the members.

"Three, to promote the best possible singing of songs arranged in barbershop style.

"Four, to foster maximum altruistic participation of SPEBSQSA units in worthwhile community, state and national projects."

H.Q. In Detroit

The Society has an International Secretary and a board of directors with headquarters at Detroit. It has its own song arrangements and an official magazine, "The Harmonizer."

As an example of the altruistic aim, Jim Ridyard stated that last year the Toronto chapter, through its performances, was able to donate $2,000 to the Sick Children's Hospital.

President Harry Truman is an ardent booster of the Society: "The greatest joy to man is to be able to stand up with three other fellows and give out with an old song," he declared.

And Bing Crosby (who generally does his singing solo) also has a relevant plug: "If you're too busy to sing, you're too busy."

Other notables who like the company of three other songsters before they exercise their vocal chords are Bob Hope, John Charles Thomas, Fibber Magee, Groucho Marx and Sigmund Spaeth, a native of New York, writes textbooks for the Conservatory in Toronto.

Barbershop harmony is produced by four voices, unaccompanied. Rules of time, expression and word theme are frequently sacrificed to obtain more blending harmony satisfaction. There is usually at least one harmonizing chord on each melody note, though sometimes there are as many as five such.

The melody is usually sung by the lead. The tenor, comparable to a high alto, is usually above the lead. Baritone and bass round out the four parts. Melody notes may be traded round, but usually the lead carries them. Sometimes he sings a few solo notes, then all join on the succeeding chords.

What was Mr. Cash's motive for starting this snowballing society, 11 years ago? To his original contingent of 14 friends he wrote that he was inviting them to "peaceable assembly for enjoyment of the last remaining vestige of human liberty."

One prospective Peterborough member read this over thoughtfully and volunteered another attraction it had for him:

"Thank God for the SPEBSQSA. It gives wou a chance to sing—and the 'little woman' is at home."

Press Search For Lost Hunter

SOUTH BAY MOUTH, Manitoulin Island, Nov. 22 (CP)—Two boat loads of searchers left here early today to continue the search for Jack Wolford, missing Windsor hunter, who was last seen Friday as he walked ashore onto the Wikwemikong Indian Reserve.

Cold, choppy water hampered the movements of the two fishing boats on Monday as they attempted to land searchers at various points along the southern tip of the reserve peninsula. They did not return until long after dark Monday night, without having found a trace of the missing hunter.

Wolford and three other Windsor men, Eugene Belleperche, Stanley McMangin and Bruce Williamson had terminated a hunt on Fitzwilliams Island and were returning to South Bay Mouth when the engine in their boat failed. They put to shore on the Wikwemikong Reserve while repairs were made. During this time, Wolford walked into the bush and has not been seen since.

British Boy 12 Freed On Charge of Killing Child

By EDGAR ROUTH.

LONDON, Nov. 22 (Reuters)—Palefaced George Edward Crick, a slightly built boy of 12, Monday picked up a paper bag and ran out to freedom down the granite steps of the Central Criminal Court of England—acquitted of murdering a child of four.

George had made history at the famous Old Bailey—as the Central Criminal Court is popularly called—by being the first child in modern England to be tried on the capital charge.

Twiddling his thumbs, he had heard police relate the stories he had told them about the disappearance of four-year-old Stanley Victor Graves in the Northwest London suburb of Perivale.

The jury came to the conclusion without leaving the court, that Stanley's conflicting stories could not be believed without reasonable doubt.

Justice Cassels reminded the jury that George had not reached the age at which English law considered he could distinguish between good and evil.

"We are in a court of law, a court which has to deal with many tragic affairs and many, many evil-minded people," Justice Cassels said. "You have the almost unique experience of trying — for the most serious crime that the law knows—a mere child."

Then, a few minutes afterward, George saw the crimson-garbed figure bend toward him and say: "You are free."

George immediately grabbed behind him for a paper bag containing an empty lemonade bottle and ran from the room.

Security Pact Curbs Russia Says Cobourg MP

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 22. — (ENS). — This session of Parliament is called the constitutional session because it is dealing mainly with changes in the British North America Act, said Dr. F. G. Robertson, MP, Cobourg, in an address at a dinner meeting of the Kinsmen Club on Monday.

He described the purpose of the act and claimed all political parties in favor of the change.

He said the highlight of the session was the report of External Affairs Minister Pearson. It covered a wide field and presented the Government's policy in dealing with world problems.

"Russia is showing no signs of yielding on major issues," said Dr. Robertson, "but the Atlantic Security Pact has been an important factor in curbing her aggressiveness. Any country that offers courageous resistance against Russia's expansion should have our support," he added.

"Communism in China presents a new world problem," he said. "No doubt Canada will at some future time recognize the new regime, providing China does not allow Moscow to meddle in her internal affairs."

Must Support Europe

Dr. Robertson stated that Canada must support the democratic countries of Europe with material resources because Canada was the third largest exporting nation in the world.

"This year," he said, "our national defence bill will amount to 400 million dollars. This is an enormous outlay in times of peace, but another war will be one for survival. We are concentrating on jet fighters as instruments to intercept and destroy the enemy before he can land on our shores."

Matters Of Principle

He said that Government policies were decided in caucus where every member had an opportunity to voice his opinion. Unless there was a common policy decided upon, democratic government could not function. However, when a question of principle comes before the House a member should vote according to the dictates of his conscience, he stated.

Bruce Brintnell introduced the speaker, and the vote of thanks was moved by the Rev. James Ritchie. President Harry Ayrhart was in the chair. A piece of apple pie was auctioned for $3.93 and another for $1.52.

FORTUNE SMILES—This musty will, worth $900,000, was discovered in a Vancouver real estate office after an 11-month search. Menendez, right.

Find RH Blood Causing Deafness In Children

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22 (AP) —The University of Pennsylvania Hospital said today it has found a clue to why some children are born deaf or with hearing defects that lead to total deafness.

The Hospital said the RH-negative blood factor can be directly responsible for the impaired hearing in the children of parents who have what is known as RH incompatibility.

The RH factor in blood refers to a substance found in the red blood cells. It got its name from the fact it was first discovered in rhesus monkeys. About 87 per cent of normal persons have this RH substance in their bloodstreams and they are called RH-positives. The remaining 13 per cent are RH-negatives.

The hospital explained that when an RH-negative woman marries a man with RH-positive blood, she often is unuable to bear a healthy child. Her unborn baby's blood can cause her own blood to produce antibodies that may spell death, serious illness or defects for her child.

Studies of 50 children afflicted with cerebral palsy were made. Many of the children also had hearing defects and speech disorders. RH blood tests were ordered for the children and their parents.

Without exception, the hospital reported, the tests showed that the RH blood factor was involved in each of the cerebral palsy hearing defect cases.

The hospital now plans new tests with children who are not cerebral palsy cases but who have hearing defects and speech irregularities.

U.S. Tourists Set A New Record

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP) — More United States automobiles entered through Ontario border points during the first 10 months of 1949 than during the whole of 1948, the first annual convention of the Ontario Tourist Courts Association was told Monday night

Deputy Minister Tom C. McCall of Ontario's Travel and Publicity Department estimated total visitors to the province for the year will reach 21,000,000. This figure will mark Ontario's fourth consecutive record-breaking tourist year, he said.

He said fully 80 per cent of visitors are repeaters — "people who have liked what they saw here and are returning for another visit."

He attributed the tourist boom to the co-operation existing at all levels of industry, provincial and federal government departments, and "energetic regional tourist organizations."

Says Fear Of Germany MakesRedsUnfriendly

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP) — Field Marshal Earl Wavell Monday attributed the Russians' unfriendly attitude towards the western world to their constant fear of Germany and a naturally suspicious nature.

The former viceroy of India, visiting Canada and the United States, told a press conference the Russians are distrustful because of talk in the west of plans to rebuild Germany.

Lord Wavell enlarged on a statement he made in Ottawa last week when he said Germany posed a greater problem to the west than Russia.

He described the Germans as "convicted criminals" whose aggression had started two world wars. The Russians meanwhile had so far committed only "loitery with intent."

Alexanders Find Time To Do Yule Shopping

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP) — Governor-General and Lady Alexander attended the Royal Winter Fair Monday night, winding up a busy day that included doing their Christmas shopping in the morning.

The smallest public school in Toronto, the Hester How School on the outskirts of Toronto's Chinatown, was visited by Lord Alexander during the day.

The vice-regal party also saw a tooth pulled—it belonged to Sylvia Jean, 7, Japanese-Canadian pupil at the school who was in the chair in the school's dental clinic.

"You're going to have a nice set of teeth," said Lord Alexander as he peered into Sylvia's mouth.

Government Mystified

VIENNA, Nov. 22 (AP) — The Hungarian foreign ministry in Budapest declared Monday it "knows nothing about" Robert A. Vogeler, American business man who disappeared in that Communist country four days ago.

An Attempt To End Filibuster Erupts Into 4-Hour Debate

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 — (CP)— Government attempts to put an end to a junior-sized filibuster erupted Monday into a four-hour procedural debate which sidetracked the Commons in its hurry towards December conclusion of the session.

Two roll-call votes—one on a speaker's ruling, the other on a government resolution — were forced by a united opposition.

At the core of the spirited debate are two bills sponsored by private Liberal members asking parliament to incorporate companies which want to build pipe lines to carry natural gas from Alberta.

These measures are known as "private bills." As such they come up only during two one-hour periods—on Tuesday and Friday each week.

With so little time permitted for discussion of private legislation, it has been an easy matter for members to "talk out" the bills. It has been going on for weeks.

Fear Canadians Left

Chief objection—most of which comes from opposition members—is that the bills do not in any way specify where the pipe lines would be laid. Some members have expressed fear that the idea is to pipe the gas out of Canada before taking care of Canadian needs.

They give this as their reason for opposing the bill in its present form. They want the route of the proposed pipe lines to be contained in the legislation.

Last week Trade Minister Howe said that unless the filibuster ended soon, he would move to have the private-bills hour extended.

His contention was that the filibuster was undemocratic; that it was denying the House the right to express itself by a vote on the matter.

Monday a resolution to extend private-bills discussion Tuesday night from one to three hours was placed before the Commons by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Commons spent all morning arguing about whether the resolution was in order.

Ruled In Order

Speaker W. Ross Macdonald ruled that the motion was in order.

His ruling was appealed, a formal vote was held, and the ruling was upheld 94 to 42 with the Progressive Conservatives, C.C.F. and Social Credit opposing it and the Liberals supporting it.

That cleared the way for discussion of the original resolution and after another two hours the House voted 108 to 42 to extend the time for the private bills.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, implied that the government had special interest in the pipe-line bills.

The bills are to incorporate companies known as prairie transmission lines and Alberta natural gas.

Police Free Two Brothers

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—Edgar Burke, 28, and his 39-year-old brother Harold, both of Mayo, Que., were released by Quebec authorities Monday night after being detained for questioning in connection with the death of Rene Parent.

The men were taken into custody after an autopsy showed that Parent, 44-year-old municipal secretary of Thurso, Que., was killed by a blow from a sharp piece of metal. He was found lying beneath the hooves of his horse last Thursday.

Authorities said the two brothers had been held only for questioning. They said both had been cleared of any connection with Parent's death.

Montreal detectives were assigned to the case after the autopsy showed that blows from the horse's hooves were inflicted after he died. Police said the wound in Parent's head might have been caused by a blow from an "object like a railway spike."

Says Music Students Should Play Less and Think More

Reginald Geen, who is organist and choir director of Simcoe St. United Church, Oshawa, as well as the director of the Motor City's choir, addressed on Monday night the local branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association in the auditorium of the Public Library. In his talk, "The Art of Practice," which was of primary interest to the parents of music students as well as to the students themselves, he stressed the importance of concentration in music study and said that students should be urged to play less and think more. Mr. Geen demonstrated his points at the keyboard showing proper hand position, how to practice scales, chords, octaves, etc. He urged the parents to give careful consideration when selecting a teacher for their children and stressed the importance of the parents showing a real interest in the child's music. He recommended that a student be encouraged to practice, not forced to.

To the teachers he said they should stress relaxation for arm and wrist. He demonstrated various methods of working for firm fingers. In speaking of pedalling, he said that poor pedalling can ruin an otherwise good performance and played as his illustration of this the Chopin Waltz in C Sharp minor.

Mr. Geen gave a short recital at the close of his lecture, playing the Chopin Nocturne in F major and F minor, "A Village Dance" and a Gavotte by Szambali.

The speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. R. Williamson, who spoke of his long-time interest in the Ontario Music Teachers' Association, he having been one of the three original members, and of his work as a member and past president of the Ontario Music Teachers' Council.

Miss Iris Whalon, soprano soloist, sang a group of three songs, "Thy Sweet Singing," Ulmstead, "Twilight Fancies" by Delius, and "Love's Philosophy" by Quilter, with Mrs. Elsie Flett playing the accompaniment.

Mr. Donald Kennedy thanked the speaker and the singer and refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Allen and her committee.

Philip Dashes Into Plane To Greet Wife

VALLETT, Malta., Nov. 22. — (AP).—Princess Elizabeth got here in time Sunday to spend at least part of her second wedding anniversary with her sailor husband, the Duke of Edinburgh. She had planned to arrive Saturday night, but fog delayed her departure from London for 24 hours.

The Duke bounded up the landing steps of the plane which brought Princess Elizabeth here from London, as soon as it landed. He gave her his big hello in the cabin before bringing her out to face the photographers.

The Princess greeted Malta's Governor, Sir Francis Creasy, and Archbishop Gonzi, along with a few naval personages, but there was a minimum of ceremony.

The Royal couple was taken to Villa Guardamangia, which will be their home during her stay here. Among the ships which can be seen from the villa is the destroyer Chequers, which is the Prince's home at sea. He is second in command of the vessel.

The Princess expects to rejoin her year-old son, Prince Charles, in London before Christmas.

Plan Inquest In Taxi Shooting

CORNWALL, Nov. 22 (CP) — Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan said today a coroner's inquest will be held into the shooting at Morrisburg last Friday which resulted in the death of Charles Cramer, 61-year-old Aultsville bookkeeper, and the serious wounding of Arthur Flynn Jr. 17-year-old Morrisburg collegiate student.

Mr. Milligan said the inquest will be held at Morrisburg on a date to be fixed following the recovery of young Flynn, a patient at Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Decision to hold the inquest followed a consultation here Monday between Mr. Milligan and Inspector W. J. Franks of the Ontario Provincial Police Criminal Investigation Branch.

Inspector Franks said today certain papers believed to hold the key to the double shooting still were missing. He doubted the papers would be found.

"It doesn't matter very much if the papers don't turn up," said Inspector Franks. "I feel we will be able to satisfy a coroner's jury as to the motive."

Dream Railroad Would Open Up Northland's Vast Riches

VANCOUVER, Nov. 22 (CP)—British Columbia has a vision. It sees its vast north country splitting open like a ripe melon some day to yield its riches of mine and forest, farmland and stream. But B.C. knows that it will take hundreds of millions of dollars and many years for that dream to become a reality.

British Columbia's hopes are pinned on a railway that would slice north through the interior of the mountainous coast province almost from Vancouver in the southwest corner to Fairbanks in the centre of Alaska. It would run some 1,800 miles, tapping an area rich in forests, roaring rivers and fine ranching country, breath-taking in its craggy grandeur.

In being it is the Pacific Great Eastern, the railroad that is said to run from nowhere to nowhere and soon is going to go somewhere. B.C.'s vision is that this 348-mile line, soon to be linked with the trans-continental Canadian National Railways at Prince George, deep in the interior, will some day form part of a railway to Alaska. United States financial help will be required — an estimated $800,000,000 worth.

The P.G.E., owned by the provincial government, extends from Squamish, 40 miles northeast of Vancouver at the top of Howe Sound, east and north to Quesnel, almost in the centre of B.C. With financial assistance from the federal government — expected to total $1,245,000—rails are being laid from Quesnel 82 miles northward to Prince George, there to meet the C.N.R. main line. Cost of the extension will approximate $10,000,000.

Safe From Attack

What B.C. wants eventually is a further extension of 1,400 miles to Fairbanks. In addition to opening up the country, this would provide a rail route relatively safe from attack in the event of war and relieve the United States' anxiety occasioned by dependence on vulnerable shipping for supplying strategic Alaska. Washington is favorable; Ottawa is believed not interested because of the high cost.

When the Prince George connection is completed, the P.G.E. will have gone somewhere. Squamish is to be linked with Vancouver by a paved highway running along the rocky coastline of Howe Sound. The immediate target then is an extension to the Peace River district, the great area in the northeast corner of B.C. that extends eastward to northern Alberta — a potential treasure house of coal and oil, timber and pulpwood and electrical power.

The P.G.E. was begun in 1912 as a private undertaking by the firm of Foley, Welch and Stewart, the bonds being guaranteed by the British Columbia government. High prices for materials in the First World War forced abandonment of the task after 135 miles of steel had been laid from Squamish north to Clinton. Eleven miles of rail also were laid from North Vancouver toward Prince George.

The government, taking over, continued building toward Prince George. Again, high prices halted the work in 1918 when the road had reached Quesnel, its present northern terminus. The 11-mile North Vancouver-Whytecliff section was operated on a limited basis to serve the small area until 1929. Completion of a paralleling paved highway ended the short road's usefulness. Tracks were lifted. This highway will be extended at a cost of $2,000,000 to conect Squamish with Vancouver. Trucks and buses will connect with the P.G.E.

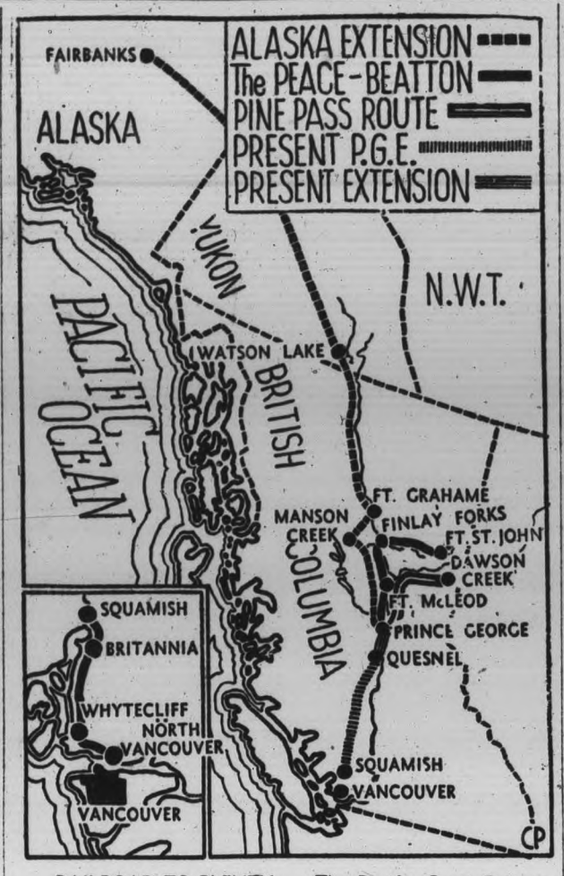
Has Big Debt

In the last 20 years many attempts have been made to finance further construction of the P.G.E. which now has a debt of $121,000,000. These failed. But the government says it is determined to push it through to the Peace River. John Hart, former B.C. premier and now P.G.E. president, says 1,000,000 tons of freight annually could be obtained from minerals and forest products alone in the Peace area.

Two routes to the Peace have been surveyed. What is known as the Pine Pass Route, running northeast from Prince George to Summit Lake, along the Parsnip River and Pine River to Dawson Creek, is favored by the government. The second, known as the Peace route, strikes north from Prince George through Fort McLeod and Finlay Forks, eastward to Hudson Hope, Fort St. John and the Beatton River.

Completion of the P.G.E. to the Peace River district would be a tremendous achievement for the Pacific Coast province. But it is upon the eventual development of the line to Alaska that B.C. pins its ultimate hopes. It has a staunch booster in Senator Warren Magnuson of Washington state who thinks an Alaska rail line is of "supreme military importance."

President Truman has been authorized by the United States Senate to negotiate with Canada for a joint survey of the projected Alaska route. No move yet has been made officially. Canadian government officials are believed to be not interested at present.



RAILROAD TO PLENTY — The Pacific Great Eastern Railroad, say British Columbians, runs "from nowhere to nowhere." But there are big plans—and hopes—to extend its 348 miles of track into the full, rich heart of BC's untapped natural wealth. Rails are being laid from Quesnel, northern terminus of the PGE, to Prince George to link the provincially-owned line with the Canadian National Railways main line. The next step, British Columbians says, should be to extend it through Northern BC and the Yukon to Fairbanks, Alaska. The United States government is favorable; Canada is reported uninterested because of the cost. Inset shows a proposed paved highway between Vancouver and Squamish, the southern end of the PGE.

TorontoCouncilAdopts City's Master Plan

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP) — City council Monday night by a vote of 14 to 5 adopted the city's "master plan" for future development, an ambitious plan extending over a period of 30 years and estimated to involve expenditures of $179,000,000.

The plan includes development of the islands across Toronto harbor in Lake Ontario by construction of a tunnel and roadway around the lakeshore of the islands, at present reached only by ferry.

Council however deleted a proposal for large-scale apartment developments on the islands.

Claims Scouting Misunderstood

COBOURG, Nov. 22—(ENS)—The Boy Scout movement was discussed by Arthur Jackson, of Toronto, Field Commissioner, at the weekly luncheon of Cobourg Rotary Club. He was introduced by John Ewart and thanked by Fred Slade.

The Boy Scouts comprised one of the least understood movements although it was world-wide in its scope, the speaker said. Its purpose was to build a spirit among the boys of the world that would result in their becoming good citizens when they reached maturity. Sixty-six thousand Scouts in England served as air raid wardens in the war and winners of V.C. and George Cross decorations numbered 60 former Boy Scouts.

In 1949 there were 5,000 Boy Scouts added to the roll to make it the largest boys' movement in the world. There was a roster of 109,000 in Canada alone. Membership of the movement was greater than that of all the service clubs combined and the Scouts, in a sense, were a junior service club. He said that the Cobourg Boy Scouts should be given recognition and also afforded the opportunity of serving the town. With the exception of one troop and a second troop which was trying to organize, scouting in Cobourg was dormant. With proper encouragement, it could become active again.

The acts of many juvenile delinquents were but the expression of what they were thinking and they had the time on their hands in which to do it. The Boy Scout movement, with its code, could do a great deal to bring about a proper outlook on life during the earlier years in which a youth forms his own code of living. The Scout oath was the basis of good living and service, the speaker declared.

Chinese Reds Give Consul Year's Suspended Sentence Order Him To Leave China

Vishinsky Announces Russian Refusal To Recognize Nationalists Serving As Delegates To United Nations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—State Department officials said today they were informed that the Chinese Communists have passed sentence on Consul-General Angus Ward and then ordered him out of the country. A Department spokesman said Ward was given a year's suspended sentence. A formal announcement was expected later. It was reported earlier that a verdict was imminent from the Mukden "people's court" on charges that Ward and four aides beat and insulted two Chinese employees in a wage dispute.

Ward, a native of Ontario, and four aides were jailed Oct. 24. But he and his entire Consulate staff of a dozen have been under house arrest in Mukden for a year and for months have been denied means to leave the Manchurian capital.

Won't Recognize Nationalists

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(CP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky said today Russia will no longer recognize the Nationalist Chinese delegate as the representative of China in the United Nations.

The Soviet foreign minister tossed the reference to China into his speech before the U.N. Assembly during debate on atomic energy control.

He referred to recent demands by the Chinese Communist government for unseating of the Chinese Nationalist delegates here.

"The Soviet Union supports that statement," Vishinsky told the 59-member assembly meeting at the flushing Meadow Hall. "We will not regard the Kuomintang delegate as representative of China."

This means that the Soviet Union will not consider the Chiang Kai-Shek regime as a proper member of the Security Council, where China shares the right of veto with the other big powers — Russia, the United States,, Britain and France.

The Soviet Union previously broke diplomatic relations with the Chiang regime and accorded recognition to the Communist regime at Peiping.

Tass Immunity May Be Changed In Great Britian

LONDON, Nov. 23 (Reuters)—The Government announced today that it may change the law conferring diplomatic immunity on Tass, the official Russian news agency.

The Lord Chancellor, Viscount Jowitt, made the announcement in the House of Lords after Lord Vansittart had asked the government to curb the activities of the Tass agency.

A British Court of Appeal ruled last June that Tass had diplomatic immunity and could not be sued for libel.

The question arose because of an unsuccessful libel action brought against Tass by Vladimir Krajina, a former professor at Prague University. Lord Jowitt indicated today that the law might have to be changed.

The government, he said, has decided to set up an inter-departmental committee to consider and report on the question, which "raised matters of very considerable difficulty in international law."

Lithographing Strike Ended

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP)—Picket lines in front of lithographing plants in five Ontario and Quebec cities will be withdrawn in a few days when a new union contract is signed ending the 25-weeks strike.

End of the protracted strike, involving 350 unionists in Quebec and 500 in Ontario, was announced Tuesday night by the Amalgamated Lithographers of America (CIO-CCL). When formal signing takes place pickets will be withdrawn in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and London.

The employers, companies represented by the Canadian Lithographers Association, made an offer last week which the union said now has been accepted by a ballot in the various union locals.

The settlement is a compromise between the original company offers and the union's original demands.

It provides for a 17-cent an hour wage increase and a contributory welfare plan. Of the increase, 7½ cents is retroactive to last January. A five-cent-an-hour bonus paid at the time of the walkout last June is incorporated in the wage scale.

Farmer Saws Off Arm Saves His Own Life

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 23 — (AP)—A farmer who sawed off his arm with a penknife to free it from a corn shredder today was given a fair chance to live.

Milton Grumbling, 50, was helping a neighbor cut fodder Tuesday when his glove caught in a gear. His left hand and forearm was ground into the machine before Grumbling's son, Deane, 18, could shut it off.

The machine could not be reversed. Seeing he would bleed to death, Grumbling cut off his arm three inches below the elbow.

Grumbling held a tourniquet on his arm while a brother-in-law drove him to hospital.

Find Woman Starving In Brooklyn Home

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP) — Police Tuesday night found a paralyzed woman nearly starved to death in a Brooklyn apartment while her aged husband lay dead in the next room.

Nearly 50 persons in the apartment building were unaware of the tragedy for at least two days.

Police sent a radio patrol car to investigate when neighbors on the floor below noticed a strong odor.

Officers entered and found Max Druckerman, 78, dead in the bathroom, his body decomposed.

His 76-year-old wife, Leah, was on the bed, suffering from acute malnutrition and seemingly lifeless.

Police said Druckerman probably died of natural causes.

Rescue 18 Sailors

ST. SHOTTS, Nfld., Nov. 23—(CP)—Hardy fishermen of this south coast Newfoundland town early today rescued 18 crew members of the wrecked freighter, Harcourt Kent. The vessel went aground on Murr rock about two miles west of here. The stranded seamen were on a rocky ledge of the shore and were rescued by means of ropes lowered to them by fishermen.

RCMP Police Dog Takes Gun From Woman

BUCTOUCHE, N.B., Nov. 23—(CP)—Wolf, a trained police dog, Tuesday night disarmed a 40-year-old woman who defied a police detachment for 24 hours with a loaded shotgun and wounded one office slightly.

All day Tuesday, in a heavy snowstorm, Mrs. Marie Leblanc of nearby St. Mary's sat in a rowboat in the middle of the Butouche River with a shotgun in her lap while a detachment of RCMP officers patrolled the shore. No attempt was made to arrest her until she came ashore as darkness fell. Then the police dog leaped forward and seized her gun arm and police took her into custody.

Suffering from exposure, she was taken to hospital in this Northumberland Strait town 25 miles north of Moncton, N.B. Inspector J. S. Cruickshank of Moncton said the wounded officer was hit by several buckshot pellets Monday night when police first attempted to arrest Mrs. Leblanc at her home. His wounds were minor.

The police did not "shoot it out" with the woman, who was said by Inspector Cruickshank to be deranged. The RCMP detachment contented itself with driving Mrs. Leblanc from her home with tear gas bombs and waiting for an opportune moment to disarm her.

The isolated nature of St. Mary's, where the incident started, was believed to be the reason why it was not reported until Tuesday night.

Fired At Passers-by

Mrs. Leblanc's struggle with the law began Monday night when an RCMP detachment went to her home to investigate reports from neighbors that she had fired a shotgun at passers-by.

A shotgun-blast greeted the police and Mrs. Leblanc ignored their order to admit them.

The police party split into two groups and approached the house from the front and rear with the group in front attempting to draw Mrs. Leblanc's fire while the other group tossed tear gas bombs through the windows.

One of the policemen handling the bombs was wounded slightly by several pellets from a charge of buckshot while tossing a bomb into the house, Inspector Cruikshanks said. His injuries were not serious enough to keep him off duty.

Police maintained a night-long vigil around the house and shortly before dawn the woman was seen leaving the building, still armed with a shotgun.

P.C. Motion Of Censure Out Of Order

Make Second Attempt To Rap Government On Combines Report

OTTAWA, Nov 23 — (CP). — A new Progressive Conservative attempt to censure the government for its handling of a combines investigation report into the flour-milling industry today was ruled out of order in the Commons. An appeal against the decision of Speaker Ross Macdonald was defeated 148 to 56

Mr. Macdonald's ruling was on an amendment sponsored by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre).

It said that while the Commons always was anxious to improve combines legislation, it regretted the "failure" of the Cabinet to comply with the law requiring publication of a combines report within 15 days of receipt. It also regretted that the government had "failed" to give assurance that there would be no further breach of this or any other Act.

The amendment was to a motion calling for second reading—approval in principle—of a Bill tightening some provisons of the Combines Investigation Act. It was the second such amendment moved by the Progressive Conservatives.

First Amendment

Members Tuesday voted 149 to 53 against an amendment by George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, that would have allowed the Banking and Commerce Committee to delve fully into the government's administration of the Combines Investigation Act.

The committee would have been given power to report on how the government's handling of the recent flour-milling industry case "prejudiced" effective administration of the combines legislation.

Car Misses Turn One Man Injured

One man is in St. Joseph's Hospital and two others are recovering from a severe shaking up when their car failed to make a turn on the old River Rd., three miles south of Peterborough, early today.

The vehicle failed to make the sharp curve and dropped over a four-and-a-half-foot culvert into a ditch.

Gordon Might, 28, of Millbrook, a passenger in the car driven by Allan Dawson, 29, of Bailieboro, sustained a broken nose and a pierced upper lip.

Martin Thompson, 28, of South Monaghan, the only other passenger, like the driver escaped with a shaking up.

Provincial Constable Roy Feeley took the injured man to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated by Dr. Bob Young.

The trio told Provincial Constables Feeley and Poulter that they were on their way to do some deer hunting before the season closed. They were not familiar with the Old River Rd. and were unaware of the sharp curve.

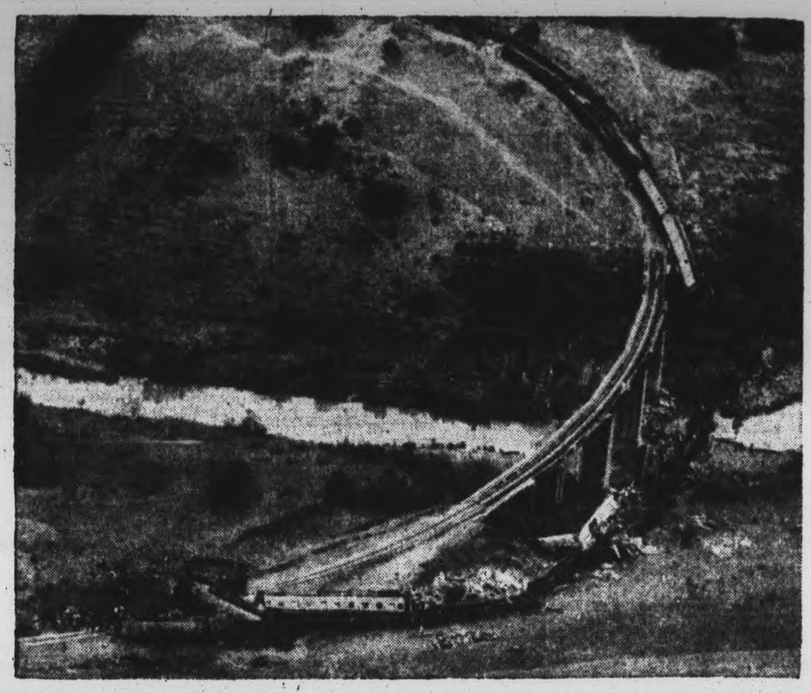
Damage to the car is estimated at $500. When it flipped over in the ditch it landed on the roof, crushing it in, and coming to rest on the right side.

Polar Air, More Snow Headed For Ontario

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP)—A storm with gale winds of up to 52 miles an hour lashed Toronto and district Tuesday night and storm warnings were issued to all lake vessels.

A fresh outbreak of polar weather is coming south and will bring more snow to Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, weather officials say. Some light snow is expected here this afternoon.

Thirteen passengers on a water taxi bound here from Hanlan's Point, one of the islands in Toronto harbor, had some anxious moments about midnight when their boat stalled in mountainous waves. The craft was still close to the dock and drifted back.



THIS GRAPHIC PICTURE shows the wreckage of the two locomotives and seven coaches sprawled across the track and lying alongside the curving bridge in the gorge at Waterval Boven, Transvaal, Union of South Africa. Sixty natives were killed in the crash and more than 100 injured. One of the five coaches (upper right) hangs precariously over the steep incline leading to the river bed.

No Food Surplus For Export Gardiner Says

By GEORGE KITCHEN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (CP) —Canada told the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations Tuesday that she no longer has a surplus of food for the export market. The statement came from Agriculture Minister Gardiner as he joined in early debate in the FAO annual meeting and took exception to FAO documents picturing Canada as a major exporting power.

That impression, he said, is not true today, though it may have been true in the wartime and postwar periods. It was necessary only to look at the declines in Canadian exports of cheese and pork to see the disturbing decline in Canada's food production and exports.

Highlights of this second day of the FAO conference, which will last two weeks, was a brief address by President Truman in which he promised full American co-operation in a global battle against the age-old scourge of starvation and hunger.

Truman, who appeared before the conference's plenary session for only 10 minutes, said the United States aims to help create an abundance of food for all countries by working together with other countries and by sharing American farming techniques.

Review Situation

Gardiner's statement came as the conference studied a review of the world food situation drafted by a preparatory committee which met here before the conference itself opened.

He objected to a passage which said the most significant feature of the current international trade situation was "the massive increase in the share of the United States and Canada in world exports."

It would be misleading, he said if the FAO indicated that because the Canadian people had greatly increased production during the war and made large food surpluses available for export, in partly denying themselves, that this same state of affairs existed today.

"It no longer does," he said. Many factors in world trade would have to be taken into account if Canada's food exports were to be seen in the proper perspective. These factors included the dollar shortage in soft-currency areas and the disturbed world trade channels.

Seek Missing Plane

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 23 — (AP)—United States Air Force search crews scanned mountain ridges north of here today for trace of a four-engine transport plane missing with six men aboard.

The missing four-engine C-54 transport was last heard from yesterday morning when the pilot asked permission of the Civilian Airways Control to descend to 6,000 feet of altitude.

Canadian Ignores Queen To Finish Murder Thriller

LONDON, Nov. 23—(CP)—Freddie McFadden of Winnipeg was not asleep when the Queen visited his stand at the Building Trade Exhibition here. He was reading a detective thriller. Freddie, who served with the Canadian Army in Britain during the war and returned here last year, was emphatic on that point but said he was no less unhappy about the whole thing.

"It's awful," he said.

It seems that Freddie, who is sales manager of a construction company, was sitting on the firm's stand, deeply immersed in his thriller when a lady in blue approached and begain examining the carefully laid-out exhibits.

First she looked at the wrought-iron gate. Then she looked at Freddie. Nearing the solution of the murder mystery, Freddie merely turned to page 247 and read on, blissfully unaware that the Queen of England was looking at him.

The Queen went on to examine a 19th century Italian marble garden seat and commented favorably on it to her lady-in-waiting. Freddie continue reading.

Then as the Queen passed on to another stand, evidently highly amused, Freddie suddenly looked up and realized he had missed what every exhibitor wanted most—a Royal visit.

"I don't know what to say," Freddie remarked. "The trouble is I knew that as the Queen was coming people would not be allowed to come along for business. So I just relaxed and waited to be told of her arrival.

"When I did see the Queen I sprang to my feet in a panic but —oh dear it was too late. I only wish I could apologize to her for my behavior."

Girl, 11, May Lose Sight Of Right Eye

An eleven-year-old girl may lose the sight of her right eye as a result of an accident Tuesday evening.

Audrey Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rod F. Tripp, 580 King George St., was in a rear shed of her home. One of two boys threw a stone through the window breaking the glass which shattered in the face of the little girl. Most of the injury seemed to be centred around her right eye.

She was taken to Civic Hospital where officials do not know yet whether or not she will lose the sight of the eye.

Gas In Cottage Knocks Out Five

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)—Kay Bell, Sr., 32, wrestler and former professional football player, his wife and their three small children were found unconscious in a gas-filled cottage here Tuesday.

All were revived. Bell and four-year-old Kay, Jr., were reparted in good condition Tuesday night in a Fort Erie Hospital. Mrs. Roxanne Bell, 30, Roxanne, 2, and Nashelle, two months, did not require hospital treatment.

The family arrived here Saturday from their home in Paso Robles, Calif. Constable Arthur Thornton of the Crystal Beach police said they apparently were overcome by gas fumes in their sleep some time Monday night.

Bell played left tackle for Washington State College before turning pro. He played the same position with the Cleveland Rams, Chicago Bears, Los Angeles Bulldogs, Columbus Bulldogs and New York Giants.

Police Find Dead Man Ex-Convict

Say People In House Unaware of Corpse, Officers Given Tip

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP) — A body found in the bathroom of a west-end rooming house following a mysterious telephone call to police Tuesday night was identified today as that of Jack Feeley, 40, released a month ago from Kingston penitentiary.

Police said a man, who withheld his name, told them by telephone the body would be found on the bathroom floor of the house, owned by George Wilson.

Wilson told investigators he was unaware the body was in the house, had not called the police and did not recognize the dead man.

The anonymous call described the body only as that of a "dark stranger."

For 10 hours police sought to unravel the mystery and establish the man's identity. They said he finally was identified from fingerprints.

Police described Feeley as a notorious safecracker.

Police said they believed Feeley died from an overdose of narcotics. They think that Feeley and a companion entered the rooming house shortly after 11 p.m. Tuesday night and that Feeley may have collapsed. Police believe his companion then fled to the street and notified police. The Wilson house was unlocked.

Mrs. Wilson said, "nobody seems to know how he got into the house or the reason for his death. And nobody in our house has any idea who telephoned the police.

"It's the strangest thing that ever happened in our lives. It gives me the creeps."

An autopsy to determine the cause of death will be made today.

The dead man had $50 in his pockets. Police said there were no marks of violence on the body.

Constables John Holmes and Wilfred Cook were sent to the house when the call was received about 11:40 p.m. They found the body fully dressed, including a heavy winter overcoat.

Police Hunting 2 Brighton Boys

BRIGHTON, Nov. 23.—Provincial Police have a general alarm out across Eastern Ontario today for two boys, aged 11 and 14, missing since noon Monday.

The younger, Norman Sutcliffe, son of William Sutcliffe, Brighton is described as four feet three inches tall, weighing 85 pounds, having fair hair, and at the time of his disappearance wearing a black windbreaker, brown trousers and rubber boots.

His companion, Ross Dillman, is five feet seven inches tall, weighs 100-pounds, fair, and was wearing a plaid windbreaker, black overalls and black oxfords when last seen. He is the son of J. R. Dillman, Brighton, who can give no reason for the disappearance.

Parents of the Sutcliffe child, however, told police he had spoken of running away from home several times previously.

2 Claim Panama Presidency After Wild Night of Rioting

PANAMA, Panama, Nov 23 — (AP)—Two men claimed the presidency of Panama today after a wild night of rioting in which one child was killed and 11 persons were wounded.

Police gunfire smashed a near-revolt as Dr. Daniel Chanis, Jr., forced to resign as President on Sunday in a national police coup, led thousands of supporters in a march on the presidential palace in an attempt to regain power.

Inside the palace behind police guards was Roberto Chiari, former vice-president who was sworn in as president after Chanis bowed to a police ultimatum and resigned. He insisted he would sit tight and remain president.

National police, who are Panama's only armed force, dispersed the marchers with machine-gun bullets, rifle fire and tear gas.

The demonstrators had rallied behind Chanis as he dramatically strode into a session of the National Assembly and declared: "I withdraw my resignation."

The 58-year-old surgeon-politician who had served as president only four months until he was ousted by Police Chief Co. José Remon, then led a crowd of demonstrators that grew to thousands as they passed through the streets.

In Cathedral Plaza, a block from the presidential palace, helmeted police opened fire. For two hours rioting flared at a hot pitch. Six buses were overturned. Windows of fashionable shops were smashed and looting broke out.

As dawn came Remon's National Police appeared to be in full control of the city.

Germany Accepts Plans Ease Occupation Controls

BONN, Germany, Nov. 23 (AP) —West German's Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, has accepted proposals by the three allied high commissioners to relax occupation controls.

Agreement was reached Tuesday night after three lengthy meetings. It sets into motion ideas adopted two weeks ago by the Big-three Foreign Ministers for improving German economy and including at least the Western Zones into the European family of nations.

Details of the agreement were not disclosed. They will be made public some time tomorrow afternoon.

Adenauer, however, already has announced that the western occupation powers have proposed to reduce considerably the allied program of tearing down German industrial plants, to permit Germany once again to build up her merchant fleet, to allow the Germans to have consular representatives abroad and to join some of the international organizations in the hope of unifying European economy.

In return for these concessions the Germans have been asked to recognize international control over the rich industrial Ruhr valley, to work with the allied security board in preventing German rearmament and to give guarantees that its big war industrial cartels will be broken up.

Diplomatic officials in London reported Tuesday that the agreement would allow Germany to build an unlimited number of small cargo ships and about eight bigger and faster cargo ships totalling some 90,000 tons. Germans now are prohibited from building passenger ships under terms of a western allied agreement of last April.

28 Candidates Seek 8 City Council Seats

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)— The municipal election campaign went into gear today following Tuesday night's closing qualifications which built an all-time record of 28 men seeking the eight city council seats.

Of the total, 11 alone are in the ward one contest. The only person with municipal experience in the field is Ald. Earl Nichols, runner-up last year, who was appointed to council in September to succeed the late Ald. C. W. Northey.

The mayoralty straightened previously into a two-man fight, with Mayor Dan Dennis seeking a second term against ex-Mayor George Wenige whom he defeated a year ago.

Delayed Effect Of Strike Hits U.S. Car Industry, Many Plants Shut Down

In Some Instances Unemployment Relieved By Parts-Fabricating Work; Say Steel Strike Will Cost 500,000 Cars

DETROIT, Nov. 23—(AP)—Delayed effects of the steel strike will hit the United States automobile industry hard next week. With but few exceptions, the factories closing tonight for the U.S. Thanksgiving Day holiday will remain idle until perhaps Dec. 12 or later. Ford, Hudson, Studebaker and a few branch assembly plants of other companies throughout the country will furnish all the motor vehicle output next week. Even Ford will cut down to four days' operation and Studebaker has announced it will close Nov. 30.

Thus, weekly production will tumble sharply to probably not more than 50,000 vehicles. And the plant closings, added to those already down, will bring temporary idleness to an estimated 250,000 automotive workers.

In several instances unemployment will be relieved by the continuance of parts-fabricating work in many plants. A number of car makers about to swing over to new model production also have kept a substantial number of their employees at work on plant rearrangement, inventory, and parts, service and sales operations.

Change Models

Excepting for Pontiac, all the General Motors shutdowns coincide with the completion of 1949 model production. Pontiac swung over to 1950 model output two weeks ago and carried on until it exhausted its steel stocks.

The same is true of the various Chrysler divisions, of which all but Plymouth already have closed down for the new model operations. Plymouth is slated to close its assembly lines after Friday of this week.

Already closed are Ford's Lincoln division, the Nash plants at Kenosha and Milwaukee and Willys-Overland at Toledo. Packard attributes its shutdown next week to a suspension of operations by Briggs Manufacturing Company, its body supplier.

Kaiser-Frazer, which has been closed down since Oct. 24, has given no indication when its assembly lines will reopen.

Industry authorities say the steel strike will have cost close to 500,000 vehicles before its final effects have been felt in the automotive plants.

Farmer Slugged Thieves Miss $100,000 Loot

VALLEYFIELD, Que., Nov. 23 (CP)—Two young thugs Monday night slugged and robbed a 77-year-old farmer at nearby St. Louis De Gonzaque but failed to find more than $100,000 in cash which the farmer had near him, Provincial Police reported Tuesday night.

Det.-Sgt. Maurice Rheault identified the victim as J. Baptiste Doutre, a recluse who lives on a farm with an 82-year-old invalid sister, Dalhia.

After the attack, he was taken to hospital at Ormstown, Que., and Tuesday night was reported recovering from severe head injuries and a fractured jaw.

Police said the youths stole a pail containing valueless personal papers but missed two old, wooden pails which held the cash. The robbers were understood to have entered the farmhouse early on Monday night while Doutre was in a nearby barn. When told by his sister where he could be found they went into the barn and attacked him. The thugs then returned to the house and ransacked every room.

Police said that although living in apparent poverty with his sister, Doutre was well-known throughout the district as a wealthy man who owned two farms in addition to his own.

Valleyfield is about 25 miles southwest of Montreal.

Housewife Saves Three Children

HAMILTON, Nov. 23 (CP) — The quick thinking of a plucky Burlington Street housewife this morning saved three tiny children from death as an innocent game with a box of matches ended in near catastrophe when the bedroo min which they were playing went up in flames.

Mrs. Earl Laufman was doing her housework shortly after 9.30 when her three-year-old daughter, Dorothy Ann, burst from the bedroom where she had been playing with Richard, 2 years, and Victor, 1½ years, screaming, "mommy, Richard's playing with matches."

With flames licking the ceiling of the tiny room and spreading swiftly along the floor, she ran in and clutched the baby from the crib, then snatched up the other two tots and ran outside.

Firemen doused the blaze.

1,000 Fans In Line-up For Grey Cup Tickets

MONTREAL, Nov. 23—(CP)—The surge for tickets for the Montreal-Calgary Grey Cup game got under way in earnest in Montreal today.

The Alouette football club, with 3,000 tickets for the Saturday game in Toronto, opened its wickets at 10 a.m., but nearly two hours prior to that time fans began lining up.

When the wickets opened roughly 1,000 fans were lined up waiting to show the season ticket cards which entitle them to purchase two tickets each for the Grey Cup game.

Fire In Basement Of Halifax Hospital

HALIFAX, Nov. 23 (CP) — Patients in the 16-storey Victoria General Hospital here received a bad scare early today when fire broke out in a basement laundry room.

Nearly every available piece of fire equipment in the city was rushed to the scene but two or three streams of water brought the blaze under control in a short time.

There was little damage and no one was injured. None of the 500 patients in the hospital was evacuated. Orderlies, nurses and firemen however, stood ready to take the patients to safety in case it became necessary.

P.C. Motion

When Mr. Diefenbaker rose to resume a speech he started Tuesday on the combines legislation he renewed attacks against the government for withholding the flour-milling report.

Speaker MacDonald called him to order and said the question of publication of reports had nothing to do with the legislation before the House. Mr. Diefenbaker objected and said members should be given an opportunity to answer statements made by Mr. Garson in a 2 1-2 hour speech Tuesday.

Mr. MacDonald said there had been a fairly-extensive debate on the flour-milling report and he planned to stand by an earlier ruling that only sections of the report pertinent to the legislation before the House could be discussed.

Mr. Diefenbaker then moved his amendment.

Not Common Sense

Jean Francois Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) said it was out of order from the "point of view of common sense." The first part stated members were anxious for remedies against combines but they were delaying them by the amendment and the speeches.

Mr. MacDonald rose and said that in his opinion the amendment was out of order.

"Surely in this parliament we have a right to argue a case," interjected Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker thumbed through a journal of a United Kingdom House which showed that an amendment similar to his had been moved in 1858. It was accepted and since then the form of such amendments had not been challenged.

Mr. Garson said Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment might be in order if it had not been preceded by Mr. Drew's amendment. There had been a lengthy discussion on the flourmilling report on a motion to go into supply. Mr. Drew's amendment opened up the whole matter again. Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment would raise the matter for a third time and Mr Garson said for that reason he felt it was out of order.

Accidentally Shot

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 23 (CP) —Melvin McCullough, 35, was accidentally shot to death early Tuesday by his brother, Mowatt, 42. The two were in a hunting party of four at Jackfish River, near Nipigon, and about 75 miles east of here.

Garson Tries To Explain Combine Deal

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP)—The battle of the flour-milling combines goes on, its fury unabated. For two weeks the government has been under attack for what opposition members have described as deliberately breaking the law, perpetrating a conspiracy against the constitution and concealment of a public report from the people. End of the debate isn't in sight.

Extent of the debate is illustrated by the fact that Mr. Garson took 2 1-2 hours Tuesday in an attempt to justify the government's action.

He emphasized these points;

1. The so-called price-fixing actions of the flour-milling companies during the war resulted directly from the policies and regulations laid down by the Prices Board.

2. Trade Minister Howe had considered it unfair to condemn the millers for something done as a result of government policies.

3. Mr. Howe would have made a statement denying the report if it had been made public with apparent government support of its contents.

4. It was decided to withhold publication of the report until the government could investigate Mr. Howe's contentions.

5. The government had found his contentions to be well-founded and thus decided it would be unfair to prosecute the millers on the basis of the report.

6. Technically Mr. Garson had not received the report in its "final form" until after Oct. 22 (various changes had been made after the report was first delivered to Mr. Garson) so that when it was made public Nov. 7 it was within the 15 days specified in the Combines Investigation Act.

These explanations were not accepted by two opposition speakers who took part in the debate.

Can's Evade Facts

The government could not evade the fact that it had clearly broken the law, said J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Toronto Greenwood). "We have nothing less than a conspiracy against our constitution."

Breach of the law was serious in this case because the government should be the protector of the principle that all men are equal before the law. The principle was "the very cornerstone of our way of life."

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said the whole effect of Mr. Garson's speech was to plead guilty to the charges of breach of law "with extenuating circumstances."

The question was not whether the companies were guilty or not. No government had the right to break the law.

A high-point was reached on Tuesday when the Commons voted 149 to 53 to reject an amendment sponsored by George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader.

Described by Mr Garson as a want-of-confidence motion, the amendment proposed that instead of voting on the principle of the Bill, the Commons should send it to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

The committee could make recommendations and could report on the extent to which effective administration of the Combines Investigation Act "has been, or is being, prejudiced by action of the government" in delaying publication of the flour milling report

On Party Lines

The vote was along straight party lines with the Progressive Conservative, CCF, and Social Credit Parties supporting the amendment and the Liberals opposing it.

Mr. Howe was attacked several times during the combines discussion. Opposition members have suggested he was the guiding hand behind the decision to delay the report's publication.

At one stage of Tuesday's debate Mr Macdonnell described Mr. Howe as a "Fascist, a nice Fascist, who by chance got into a democratic assembly." He withdrew the remark at Mr. Howe's suggestion.

Mr. Garson explained the three courses open to the government in deciding what to do with the report.

"We could have published the manuscript at once, as an official report, with comment....It seemed to us this would not be a proper course because publication without comment would have implied endorsation of the report by the government, which would have been quite inconsistent with the view held by some members of the Cabinet that as to its facts the report was incomplete and misleading."

Second Course

The second course would have been to publish the report with the statement that the government was sceptical about certain aspects, that those aspects would be checked, and true and complete facts published later.

But this was unacceptable because it would have advertised the government's doubt in the Combines Commission, which would have had an adverse effect on administration of the Combines Act.

"The third alternative was the course we followed, to delay publication....until we could get and check the facts so that when the report was published the government would be able to state definitely its position in regard to it."

At the outset Mr. Garson said the price rise at the time of decontrol in September, 1947, typifies the cleavage of opinion between Mr McGregor and Prices Board chiefs Donald Gordon and later C. W. Taylor.

Vatican Warns News Vendors Of Red Papers

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 23 (AP) —Roman Catholic news vendors who "knowingly and freely" sell Communist newspapers must be refused the sacraments, the Holy office ruled today.

It made allowances, however, for news vendors "under effective coercion" to handle Communist publications.

The Holy office ruling explained provisions of the historic Papal decree of last July excommunicating Roman Catholics who militantly defend Communism and denying the Holy Sacraments to those who "publish, read or disseminate books, newspapers or leaflets in support of Communist doctrine. ..."

It was in reply to a request from Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, Archbishop of Palermo, Sicily, for clarification of the decree.

In his request, the Cardinal said that certain news vendors were in a "difficult situation." He explained that certain union organizations had threatened to withdraw all newspapers from vendors refusing to handle Communist publications.

The Holy office's reply said:

"It is clear that if the news vendor can, without grave danger to himself, avoid selling the prohibited papers, such news vendor, if he does not comply with provisions of the known decree of the Holy office, performs 'knowingly and freely' the actions for which the known sanctions are provided.

"If, on the contrary, the news vendor finds himself under the effective coercion of said unions, his material co-operation can be tolerated provided his obligation of conscience to limit such co-operation as far as possible remains unchanged."

Ontario was not the only part of Canada visited by high winds Tuesday. During the night an intense Atlantic storm moved over Newfoundland and at 6 a.m. gale winds of 70 mph were still blowing at Gander Airport. A somewhat weaker storm brought wind and rain to the British Columbia coast Tuesday afternoon and this morning it lies over Alberta.

The storm which gave Tuesday's gale winds of 50 mph in Ontario is moving northeastward into Quebec this morning. In its wake a fresh outbreak of polar air will come south again and cause more snow in counties bordering Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. Wednesday will be another cold day over the province, but winds will be light in most sections.

MP's Hear Good News Estimate Million Over

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP) — A Commons committee listened on Tuesday to something parliament doesn't hear—a government official explaining why his department didn't spend $1,000,000 it said it would.

A. D. P. Heeney, Undersecretary of State for External Affairs gave a variety of reasons why only $4,290,000 was spent on Canadian representation abroad in the last fiscal year when it originally estimated it would spend $5,361,000.

Frail Farmer 79, Freed Of Neglecting Road Duties

HEARST, Nov. 23—A frail, 79-year-old man Tuesday was freed of a charge of neglecting to perform township road labor. Jack Smith, the defendant, was told by Magistrate E. R. Tucker: "I'm going to dismiss the charge on account of your age. I think you've done about all the work that can be expected of you." Secretary F. Welch of the Way Township Statute Labor Board was asked by the magistrate if it was a board practice to call men over 60 years for road work.

"We didn't do such things until the provincial Department of Highways ordered us to call up everyone, no matter whether they were old-age pensioners or cripples," Mr. Welch replied.

"Hasn't the Labor Board taken your farm away from you?" Magistrate Tucker asked Smith.

"It's not valuable enough, I suppose," the elderly defendant replied, tears in his eyes. "They won't let me put somebody else on it to keep the bush from encroaching on my work of the last 30 years."

45-Year-Old Song International Hit

LONDON — (CP)—From earning £100 ($310) a week as a music hall star, Bill Whitlock came down to £3 as a night watchmen.

Now, at 75, his fortunes have changed. A song he wrote 45 years ago, the "Scotch Hop," has become a hit on both sides of the Atlantic as the 'Hop Scotch Polka."

"I expect to make at least £3,000 out of it," grey-haired Whitlock said. "Already I have a fairly large sum in advance royalties.

"I'm staying on in the same house, but my landlady is giving me two rooms and a piano for £2 a week. I don't want to move. She was more than kind to me while times were hard.

"What tickles me is that it should have taken 45 years to discover my song."

Crash Claims 34 Lives, Boy Survives

2 Searching Wreckage Hear Whimpering, Lone Refugee Alive

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 23 (AP)—A 12-year-old Jewish refugee boy woke this morning from a good night's sleep—his first since he survived the nightmarish plane crash Sunday in which 34 persons died.

Little Isaac Allal, one of 28 North African Jewish children flying to a Norwegian rest camp, was the only survivor.

Isaac's whimpers led two searchers Tuesday to the forest-hidden wreckage where he had lain trapped among debris and bodies for two cold nights and a day. Two brothers and a sister died in the crash.

Isaac doesn't know yet that another brother is dead at home in far-off Tunis. That brother, a 17-year-old, fell dead when he learned of the tragedy in Norway.

The Dutch-chartered plane crashed in the forest 30 miles southwest of Oslo Sunday night as it neared the end of a flight from Tunis, in North Africa. Besides the 28 refugee children, the plane carried a crew of four and three nurses.

Hear Whimpering

Electrician Thorolf Hagen and lumberjack Hilding Martinsen heard whimpering from inside the battered tail section of the plane as they neared the wreckage. At first they thought it might be a dog whining but suddenly realized a human was still living among the mangled bodies scattered around the smashed plane.

Hagen ran for help and Martinsen began to free Isaac who had been lying for 42 hours with his face pressed against the ground, trapped by a sheet of metal and broken plane seats across his back.

After 20 minutes the sturdy woodsman held the lone survivor in his arms.

The fact that Isaac was in the extreme rear of the plane probably accounted for his escape. The front end of the plane was destroyed as it plowed into the trees but the tail section came to rest virtually intact.

Hospital authorities said Isaac suffered only a bruised wrist, scratched nose and slight burns.

50 MPH Gale Delays Ships

PORT COLBORNE, Nov. 23 (AP) —Seven freighters were tied up in the Welland ship canal and the harbor here this morning woiting out a strong southwesterly gale that swept across Lake Erie and Lake Ontario Tuesday night.

A Buffalo weather station placed the velocity of the winds at 35 to 40 miles an hour, but masters of vessels entering Port Colborne said they believe this was a conservative figure. Most were inclined to place the velocity at 45 to 50 miles an hour.

The freighter Valley Camp, heavily laden with coal from Buffalo, was expected to attempt to leave for Toronto today. But three ocean-going foreign vessels loaded with general cargoes from various United States ports for Europe, would not attempt to cross Lake Ontario and tied up in the canal this morning. They were the Dutch freighters Prins Willem, Van Oranje and Prins Maurits and the Norwegian Carmel Fjell. Two CSL freighters, the Coal Have and Battleford, were also berthed in the canal waiting for the winds to abate before moving into Lake Erie.

In Port Colborne harbours were the Paterson S.S. freighter Ontadoc and the Quebec and Ontario canaller Outarde, both upbound.

Dr. C. W. Ask Tamblyn's

Moose Meat: How can shoulder of moose be cooked and be tasty?
Answer: Slit it down the centre after bone is removed: insert strips of salt pork. Tie, roll in flour and sear. Pot roast adding 2 tablespoons vinegar to the water.

Safe Paint: I am making my children's Christmas toys at home. What is a safe paint for them?
Answer: Brush well with a solution or Tintex, says our toy expert, then shellac all over. Toys will be well coated and safe.

Dark Potatoes: What causes potatoes to turn dark when cooked? Is it a defect in the potato? Is there any way to overcome this tendency?
Answer: Experts claim potatoes that darken in cooking have been improperly nourished when growing. There is no certain way to keep the white colour. Vinegar in the water sometimes helps but not always. Cooking potatoes in copper bottomed saucepans is also said to improve the situation.

Cheques to Doctors: How should cheques be made out for services rendered by professional people such as doctors, dentists and lawyers?
Answer: Professional folks, like the rest of humanity, don't care much how a cheque is made out so long as it is good. Whether it's D. R. Jackson, M.D., or Dr. D. R. Jackson doesn't make any difference.

Nomination Night Friday

Candidates to contest the mayoralty, the five Council and five Board of Education seats, and one Utilities Commissionership on December 5th are to be nominated Friday evening. With only two days to enter the names and only ten before the elections, the lists are even now not full. Mayor Swanston has announced his candidature for a second term in office, which customarily is secured by acclamation. Mr. Gordon Matthews a Utilities Commissioner with valuable service on the board of three for 24 years, will stand again. Two aldermen —Richard Raine and Grant Miller—are definitely not seeking re-election. Two Board of Education members—Dr. H. G. Carleton and Mrs. F. W. K. Harris—are withdrawing. Two veteran members of the Board—G. W. Craw and Arthur Pitchford,—have agreed to seek re-election, and A. E. Borland, member since 1948, will also be a candidate. Two present aldermen, A. Douglas Miller and P. J. Anglesey, have already put up their names. One of the more experienced and most valuable members of the present Council, Hugh Waddell, has not yet announced his intentions; it would be a real loss to the citizens if his candidature were deprived them.

* * *

The city's business is big business—about two million dollars' worth annually, which includes nearly three-quarters of a million under the eye of the Board of Education. It is therefore important that the most experienced able members of the present Council and Board be retained and that the best men come forward from the whole citizenry to offer their services, to make contests worthy of Peterborough and in accordance with the significance of the positions.

Passengers Ought To Have A Care, Too

Mr. Justice Kellock's report on the Noronic fire disaster places the blame primarily on the Canadian Steamship Lines and the ship's captain. The report leaves no doubt that both were seriously culpable, since the Company is responsible for providing adequate fire-prevention equipment and staffing the ship, and the Captain as Master is responsible for its operation and the safety of ship and passengers. The Commissioner reported:

"In my opinion, no one in a responsible position in connection with the ship, either on the ship or shore, had applied his mind in any serious way to the handling of a situation such as arose on the outbreak of fire on the night in question . . . Moreover, complete complacency had descended upon both the ship's officers and the management . . . The fire which actually occurred, therefore found officers and crew without any organization designed to deal with such a situation."

This is a very strong condemnation, yet the Captain has had his certificate suspended for only a year and the Company is thus far charged only with paying the costs of the inquiry. There are other equally strong statements in the report which may lead the Department of Transport, the Department of Justice, and the Attorney-General to take punitive and criminal court action. It must not be forgotten that 118 persons lost their lives in a horrible fire and that this grievous loss could have been prevented had the Company and the ship's officers under their Captain taken the precautions and action which their responsibility required.

These specific assessments of blame do not exclude other indictments. The Commissioner found that there were weaknesses in the Board of Transport's regulations, and that its inspection of fire-fighting equipment had been lax, which "could only induce or encourage a similar laxity on the part of the owners and officers of the ship with respect to the vital matter of preparedness for fire". Another contributory cause of the loss of life, on the Noronic, and even of the uncontrolled spread of the fire was the attitude or lack of responsibility shown by the passengers themselves.

When people board a ship many throw off not only the cares of the world but any sense of responsibility to themselves and their neighbours. They seem to say, 'Well, here I am. Whatever happens until I disembark at the end of the voyage is no concern of mine. I can do nothing. It's up to the Captain and the ship'. They even take the life-boat drill as a childish joke. It is true that the Captain is Master and in complete charge while the ship is at sea, and that passengers have a right to feel reasonably secure and to put their confidence in the ship and the Captain and crew. Nevertheless, passengers are expected to know the routes from their staterooms to the boat decks, and the procedure to follow in emergencies. They do not shed their citizenship and responsibility for their own behaviour merely by boarding a ship.

The Noronic tied up in Toronto harbour was virtually a floating hotel. A false sense of security may have descended on the passengers since the ship was not in open water. Yet it was intrinsically more dangerous that any hotel of brick and stone. Some of the passengers acted heroically, others stupidly, and some seemed incapable of any action. A long chain of responsibility stretches from the Department of Transport and its flaccid enforcement of regulations down through the Company and the Captain to the passengers who were negligent in caring for themselves.

British Election Question

Westminster is eyeing the electors these days. Everybody, even Labour, is saying that it is time for an election. That is a truism, for general elections must be held next year. The question is the date. The Tories have been demanding them early; and perhaps if they had been held a year ago, Labour would have benefited. It is now the eleventh hour, and Mr. Attlee is not likely to leave it to the twelfth. The prediction is that the elections will be held early in the new year, when the Government still has a little time to choose.

More world-wide interest is centred on these British elections than ever before, since the results will show what the British people really think of the socialist regime as much as what they believe of the Tory blandishments. It is highly interesting that the contentious Iron and Steel Bill (to nationalize the steel industry) will not come into force until January, 1951. The postponement was agreed upon in the two Houses and by the two principal parties earlier this month. This removes one of the hottest domestic election issues. The Conservatives could not avoid agreeing with the Government's proposal to hoist the effective date of the Bill. To have insisted on its being put into operation before the General Election would have been a backhand approval of it. Yet to have it postponed until after the elections has removed one of their sharpest election weapons. It was an adroit move by the Government, except that many of the left-wing supporters and most ardent trade unionists will have lost faith in Attlee's Government as a fighting socialist regime.

Two Gallant Ships

A British and a Canadian ship have lately been in the news for feats of traditional gallantry. The Amethyst has returned to England and its crew has received a boisterous, fervent welcome after running the Chinese blockade on the Yangtse River. British hearts beat proudly at the deed of defiance and daring, and thrilled as in earlier days when Britannia ruled the waves.

The Canadian destroyer Haida cruising off the West Indies heeded the call of distress of B-29 fliers who had come down in the Atlantic and were drifting for three days in tiny life rafts. With a host of searching planes and other ships the Haida hunted the high seas. Good luck, good seamanship and tireless effort brought the Canadians to the eighteen drifting fliers. Amidst tumultuous seas and raging winds the rescue was accomplished, a feat worthy to rank with the notable exploits of the navy in wartime.

The Americans may wish that such a crew as the Amethyst's or the Haida's could be sent to the rescue of one of its consular officials, Angus Ward, who for a year has been sitting in isolation in Mukden, almost a prisoner of the Chinese Communists. Such a rescue might not please the Communists, and diplomacy may demand devious approaches, not a direct, forthright one.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Wisconsin woman has just given birth to her 20th child in 23 years, and says she is running out of names. Why not call this one Finis?

Major-General G. R. Pearkes (retired), Conservative M.P. for Nanaimo, urges that defence force expenditures be tripled. Top brass demanding top gold?

So the National Film Board staff is to be screened. If the security-minded screeners do as fair and honest a job as the Film Board makes of its own films, there'll be nothing to worry about, we suspect. A good showing all around.

From The Critic's Notebook

EGO 9 by James Agate and A SHORTER EGO, by James Agate (Clarke, Irwin).

JAMES AGATE died on June 6th, 1947, in his seventy-first year. He was one of the great drama critics of our time, and no anthology of theatre criticism in the future will be complete without something from his pen. He was not a great writer, as some critics have been—men such as Hazlitt, C. E. Montague and G. B. Shaw—because he was too fond of fireworks and quotation. But he was a most entertaining and brilliant writer. He was not an uncommonly good judge of plays, and some of his prejudices against modern writers were silly, but he was a fine judge of acting. Many of the actors of the past live for us now in the writings of contemporary critics: Olivier, Gielgud, Flora Robson, Edith Evans and a score of our best players of today will be seen by our grandchildren through the eyes of James Agate.

He was an uneasy and haunted man, for he longed for immortality. As a form of insurance against oblivion he produced, in nine volumes, a Diary which covers the last fifteen years of his life, which he called "Ego". In it he records his work, his adventures, his grapplings with the tax-gatherers, his enthusiasms for trotting-horses, his illnesses, and as well large parts of his correspondence with his friends. Such a hodge-podge, compiled by such a man, cannot help but be interesting, and any volume of "Ego" is good to beguile a weary hour. It is ideal reading at bedtime, or when one is ill. It gives to a remarkable degree the sensation of mingling on easy terms with witty and charming people, and it gives a detailed portrait of Agate himself. Undoubtedly the book will succeed in its purpose: no one who wants to know what London was like in the '30s and '40s will be able to neglect it. Agate did not labour in vain; future generations will know him and read him gratefully.

They will know more, perhaps, than James Agate intended. They will know how greatly he feared death, and how lonely he was in spite of his troops of friends. They will know with what touching fortitude he faced death when at last it came. They will know that the man who was the age's greatest connoisseurs of bravura in acting played his own part, at the last, with the utmost simplicity. For in "Ego 9" we can discern all these things and they give the book a moving quality which Agate's fireworks could never achieve.

As well as the full nine volumes of "Ego" there is an abridgement, made by the author himself, called "A Shorter Ego", the third and last volume of which is now available. If you have not dipped into "Ego" — long or short — you have not enjoyed one of the literary treats of our time. R.D.

ANDY CLARKE AND HIS NEIGHBOURLY NEWS (Ryerson).

WHO Andy Clarke was and what he did and why there is a book about him and of him is explained in a prefatory 20-page sketch by Gregory Clark; and perhaps unnecessarily for any reader attracted to this book. People who will most enjoy the book already know Andy Clarke "the Mayor of Little Places" and his Sunday morning broadcasts called "Neighbourly News".

For them it will be like an old, colloquial and homelike friend, for it is a culling from the thousands of stories, anecdotes, weekly newspaper clippings and Ontario twang which Andy Clarke used on his broadcasts from January 1940 to his death at the age of 66 in May 1948. The broadcasts had a large following in urban as well as rural Ontario, and if it is true, as Gregory Clark says in his introduction, that "Neighbourly News was a wholesome antidote, a welcome weekly return to the elemental sanity of the country", this book is similarly wholesome and should receive a large welcome.

Andy Clarke, it is said, was a natural-born country newspaper editor who got off on the wrong track that took him to the right place. He was born in Grimsby but lived most of his adult life in Toronto and worked there. For sixteen years he was city editor of the Toronto Globe (before its amalgamation with the Mail and Empire). His "Southeast Corner" on the front page is remembered with whimsical affection by older readers of that newspaper. But he made his name and voice remembered through the last eight years of his career. One story told of him is typical of the stories he himself would cull from the weekly newspapers. It is given in the preface. On one of his motor trips north, he stopped at a garage. A big Great Dane jumped on him. This surprised Clarke and the garage owner, who couldn't 'figure it out'. Then the garage man asked: "You wouldn't happen to be Andy Clarke, would you?"

"That's my name", said Andy. (The dog was by this time recognizably friendly.) "Well, that accounts for it", said the garage owner. "That dog listens to you every Sunday, and sits by the radio when you talk".

DANDY THE DONKEY, by Walter Trier (Dodd, Mead).

THIS is an excellent book for any child from three to six. It is a picture book, telling of the adventures of a charming donkey who is stolen from his happy home by a wicked tramp, and who ends up in a circus.

Walter Trier's name was famous in Europe before the war. He was a comic artist of unusual and cheery genius, equally able to draw a political cartoon to enrage Hitler, or to write and illustrate a delightful child's book such as this. He is now living in Canada, and it is good to see his books available here to charm and enchant Canadian children. R. D.

A Judge's Duty

One of the most important facts about your judicial system is that our judges apply and uphold many laws of which they do not personally approve. The judge is not a potentate dispensing justice according to his own notion or his own moral code. He is an agent of the Nation (or the State) sworn to uphold its laws.—Washington Post.

Letter To The Editor

PETERBOROUGH DRAMA FESTIVAL

Sir: The forthcoming Drama Festival in Peterborough early in December merits some editorial comment as a means of arousing public interest prior to publicity.

This initial endeavour is not competitive but is primarily designed to promote local activity and a keener interest in the amateur production of drama to which indeed the Little Theatre Group has already given strong impetus.

It has as its ultimate objective local participation in the Dominion wide contribution to the art of the theatre on the part of amateur talent and the young people now engaged in preparing their offerings deserve all the support that both the press and the public can give them.

Yours very truly,
W. A. BROWN.

SCOURGE OF COMICS

Sir: During recent weeks we have read and heard much about the proposed banning of crime comics in our province, and I feel that I am voicing the opinion of the vast majority of the intelligent mothers and fathers of this district when I say that Peterborough should hasten to add its voice to those of the thousands of other parents who cry out to have this scourge stopped.

I am speaking, not in the light of a casual observer like some wandering reporter who happened to pick up one of the least offensive of these publications one day and proceeded to expound his views at length in a local paper, but I am speaking from actual experience with the handling of the young, in the capacity of both teacher and a parent.

As a teacher, both in city schools and country schools, I have seen this scourge descend upon our children like a plague, and have had day to day contact, with its deadly influence—children trading books back and forth, exchanging these criminal ideas with each other, until their little minds are poisoned for good clean reading, and the vile seeds of destruction are sown in its stead.

As a parent, I feel I am acting as the majority of conscientious guardians of the young should act, by absolutely refusing to allow these highly undesirable publications to enter our home.

I feel that Communists, in their unholy zeal to spread their bloody doctrine of destruction and violence, could have no more effective means of spreading their ugly message than by first working through the innocent minds of the young by corrupting them with this lurid literature.

You would not feed your children generous portions of rotten manure from the barnyard to nourish their growing bodies, would you? "No, no", you cry out in horror. "What a disgusting thought!" Then why do you tolerate the feeding of rotten literature to the minds of your growing boys and girls, which will pollute their very hearts and souls with its poison?

Even one of our more prominent American magazines contains an article warning us of the ever increasing danger of this menace, and aptly refers to all of this inferior reading material as "garbage dessert", which we feed our children's minds when we let them read it.

If ever there was justification for the banning of comics that are undesirable, whether crime or otherwise, it would seem to be proven beyond all doubt to the citizens of Peterborough this past week by the terrible event that has just taken place in our district.

As has been reported by the press, the wife of one of the murder suspects in this gruesome case, has admitted the presence of crime comics in their home, and who can say but that these poor maddened minds got their start on the road to violence and terror by their reading of these lurid publications, which stir the imagination with vivid accounts of the most heinous crimes of robbery and murder?

All of us have seen in recent weeks an ever increasing number of arrested criminals confessing that they got their start on the road to crime by the reading of crime comics.

On the other hand, I hear from reliable sources that these books are banned in the Province of Quebec, and it is interesting to note that there has been a marked decrease in juvenile delinquency in that province since this ban was enforced.

Why must we in Ontario continue to be so gullible that we swallow the false propaganda preached to us by those million dollar racketeers who are lining their pockets at the expense of our children's morals?

It seems to me that by no stretch of the imagination, should these publications be called "comics". Would not the word "tragics" be far more appropriate?

Might I here inject a warning to parents and teachers not to be fooled by the apparent cleaning up of these magazines at certain times, such as during a time when the whole question is in the public eye. This is merely designed to lull you into a false sense of security, and as soon as the issue has died down a bit, they will revert to their former diabolical pattern. I have seen this happen many times.

Let our homes, our churches, our clubs, take up this challenge and take immediate steps to see that the sources of these filthy pieces of reading be boycotted in Peterborough.

We were all aroused to a state of righteous indignation in this city by our drastic need for a new sewage disposal plant. Why don't we give as much thought to the disposing of the sewage that pours into this city to pollute the minds of our young?

Think; Peterborough—THINK!

I remain, Yours truly,
"VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ. (Gal. 1: 11, 12.)

◇ ◇ ◇

This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh? (Gal. 3: 2, 3.)

◇ ◇ ◇

This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh.

For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would....

If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. (Gal. 5: 16, 17, 25.)

Control No Answer

It is surely becoming more clear from experience in this country and elsewhere that controls are not a cure to any given situation.

Housing is no exception. The natural way to break the housing deadlock is to encourage a maximum amount of building of all kinds by removing whatever handicaps confront the industry, by encouraging new developments in an industry with the reputation for all the worst features of conservatism and which is riddled with all kinds of feather-bedding at all stages of it.

But whatever is done, there will be pain somewhere along the body of the community. To argue that controls should be lifted entirely does not indicate that one is unaware of this fact. Rather it is those who would perpetuate the deadlock, while claiming a special humanitarian viewpoint, who end up by causing the greatest hardship.

Keeping Them Out

Admission to the United States is, of course a privilege. Entry may be denied to any alien by this or any sovereign nation for any reason, or for no reason at all. But when it is denied, as it appears to have been in several recent instances here, on wholly capricious or at any rate trivial grounds, the effect is less to protect the United States from danger than to expose it to ridicule.

Exclusion of idiots, known criminals, immoral persons and the like is mandatory under the immigration law and dictated by common sense. Exclusion of anyone believed to be an undercover agent of a foreign government, seeking to injure the United States by espionage or sabotage, is equally warranted, of course.

Exclusion on grounds of political opinion is a good deal more dubious, however.

Stores Overflowing With Gifts For All Members Of Family

Christmas has a slightly different connotation for every individual.

For mother, preparation crowds days with shopping, baking, poring over mouth-watering illustrations of festively-adorned tables for new ways of preparing time-honored dishes, and the culmination is the satisfied sigh after Christmas dinner.

For father, it is a hand-in-pocket problem. For aunts and grandmothers, it is the right gift 'neath the right tree for the right little boy or girl.

But for the wide-eyed, tousled-haired youngster, it is the apex of the year, capped with snow, in an aura of sled-drawn Santas, glowing trees,—and presents.

And what gifts there are for little hands to unwrap! Imagine the delight when a little girl discovers a little Scotch or Mexican doll, dressed in her native costume, to sit at a little tot tea party; or a cuddly doll that cries "Mama" when her golden head snuggles against a little shoulder; or a beautiful tiny electric stove to bake fairy-size tarts; junior size sweeper, mop or broom; a doll's house with dwarf furniture to arrange and rearrange; a midget mix-master and four little plastic cups for milkshakes; a television set that projects pictures on a small screen, to the accompaniment of tinsel-toned tunes; a little typewriter for junior miss notes.

These, and more, await in the toy shops.

But any little girl would be thrilled with a hand-knit sweater in a gay color, with little elephants or bunnies marching across, and a matching pair of mitts or skating socks. A piece of felt, in deft hands, can turn into a bright shoulder bag adorned with flowers in contrasting shades.

And, at any age, a little girl is enough the woman to appreciate a nail kit to pretty her hands, or jewel-like plastic brush and comb for a little 'grown-up' primping. Filled with such wonderful parcels, little wonder Santa's bag is heavy!

Sometimes one wonders whether little boys were made for noise, or if noise was made for little boys. At any rate the two, at times, seem synonymous. And the shelves in the stores are stocked accordingly. 'Fire engine' usually appears high on the 'what I want for Christmas' list. And to fill the order, there is a shiny red fire engine, complete with removable ladders, little hatchet, hose, a bell, and a loud, business-like siren. For 'cops 'n robbers' or 'play soldiers' a gang busters machine gun that spits fire prompts a cry of 'Gee, just what I wanted' (and who could want more thanks than that?)

Boys who like to build can pass a busy and constructive hour with a tool chest, complete with saw, hammer, set square, chisel, brace and bit, rule, pinchers, all the equipment a young carpenter might need. And, in the same vein, the mechanical sets that come in graduated sets ranging from the simple to the complex. Cars and trains. Always dear to a little boys heart.

For Master Mechanic

This year, toy manufacturers have on the market a car and garage combination geared to the wish of little master mechanic. The car has a gas tank that holds water; the water can be drained from the radiator in the garage changing pit; if the car gets dusty from hard driving around the floor, it can be washed in the washpit; and when it is spick and span, it can be taken on the elevator up to the garage showroom.

With the ever-popular trains, it seems a little more money more tracks, and a little more stage setting. And of course, the bigger the train the more father feels he must help, so perhaps in deciding on which train to buy junior, the time ather can spare as well as the cost, should be considered.

Aladdin's lamp waits to be rubbed, amid the holly and the tinsel, and childhood's dream will be reality.

Dog-Racing Fever Sweeping The Pas

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 23 (CP)—Not since the late Emile St. Godard was king of the dog sled drivers 20 years ago has this northern Manitoba town been bitten by such dog-racing fever.

More than two months before the northern Manitoba's trapper festival in February, enquiries have been received from as far away as Alaska for the 142-mile dog race that is part of the annual trappers get-together.

Pat Howdon, woman "musher" from Port Carling, Ont., has indicated that she may enter the classic wihch carries a $1,000 prize and the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Trophy.

The race will cover 71 miles from The Pas to Cranberry Portage and back.

Tom Kiely Still The Champion To Irish Fans

By MICHAEL O'MARA

CARRICK-ON-SUIR, Tipperary, Ireland, Nov. 23 —(CP)—Ask for 80-year-old Tom Kiely in these parts, and natives reply:

"Is it the champion ye're looking for?"

Kiely's fame hasn't died since he returned here in 1904 from St. Louis, Mo.—the "all-round champion of the world."

The early form of the modern decathlon—nine, 10 or 11 cents were contested in those days — was the feature of any track-and-field meet. Kiely was unconquerable at it.

After competing as a youth in his native Tipperary, Tom startled the Irish Athletic World by coming to Dublin for the all-round championship in 1892 and winning out right six of the nine events.

That same year he won seven Irish titles at the championship meeting, including hurdles, broad jump, hop, step and jump, shot-putt, hammer-throw and weight-throw.

Sweetest Memory

His sweetest memory of that great day was beating the hitherto-invincible Dan Shanahan in the hop, five times he crossed the Irish Sea to come grinning home with Britain's A.A.A. hammer-throw title.

Then, at 35, Kiely was invited by the Kickham A. C. of New York city to complete in the all-round world championship at St. Louis.

Eleven events made up the program and only five minutes' respite was allowed between events. the championship was staged in driving rain.

Ranged against Kiely were two great American all-rounders — Ellery Clarke and A. B. Gunn. Tom beat them both into the ground.

Two years later Tom went back to Boston and again won the World Championship.

Altogether Tom won about 50 titles and some 2,000 prizes. His best event was the four-foot hammer in which he once held the world record of 140 feet, two inches.

VOLANTS VICTORS

The touring Hull Volants on Tuesday night won their second Stockholm match, defeating the Swedish Goeta team 3-2.

In a game superior to Saturday night's, in which the Canadians won 2-0 from the Swedish Aik team, Goeta proved tougher opposition. The Canadians got a 2-0 lead in the first period, but the Swedish stick men came back with two in the second against one for Hull. The third period was scoreless.

Will Samara Prove To Be Giant-Killer?

The big, rough wrestlers seem in for a bad time of it if Seelie Samara, the sensational negro mat speedster, continues his winning way against Jim Goon Henry in the main event at the Brock Arena on Thursday night. Samara established himself as somewhat of a giant-killer last week when he defeated Hi Lee. In Henry, Seelie will be up against another towering, huge, rugged matman. He appears to have their number though.

Jim Henry

The semi-final is particularly interesting, with the return of Wladek Kowalski, the amazing young Polish giant who made his local debut last week. He'll be in against Joe Christie this time. A whirlwind opener has Bill Stack matched with Pat Flanagan.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Nippy weather the past few days makes one think of skating on outdoor rinks. Armar Butcher, parks superintendent, is just awaiting a list of probable teams requiring these city cushions before having the sideboards erected, maybe in another week's time. There were 17 outdoor rinks in use last year, but it is thought not so many will be required this winter as artificial ice at Civic Arena provides more time there to accommodate clubs. Of course Civic Arena alone can't begin to take care of all the minor puckists and the skaters, but it helps a lot. When the outdoor rinks are in use, much pressure will be taken off the arena time-table.

* * * * * *

Quite a few TVL-ers are seeing OHA action around and about this puck semester. Quite apart from the possibilities of Campbellford and Lakefield having OHA entries. Gus Leonard of Marmora is with the Petes, the Mason brothers and Desjardin from down Batawa way are playing for the junior "B" Oddfellows, and Earl Cousins may go with Belleville Diesels. So might Doug Free of Campbellford, the Hydro Town possibly getting three Hastings' hockeyists and Goalie Laverne of Madoc. Birch and the Wasson boys of Lakefield are in Peterborough, as is Keith Montgomery. No doubt other changes, too, before the Trent Valley League swings into 1949-50 action likely next month.

* * * * * *

Male Cagers Prepare

A cage item on the men. Joe Stewart and Doug McPherson have been acting as co-coaches (Al Clark is kept too busy right now) for the Marines "A" squad. The team isn't picked yet, but a bunch work out Tuesday at six p.m. in the "Y" each week and Thursday at eight in the Collegiate, open drills. Exhibitions are planned shortly. Marines reached provincial semi-finals last season, losing to St. Kitts, and they were Ontario champs two years ago. Some fine basketeers yet in this borough. The "Y" house loop is going now and, after Christmas, a strong City Basketball League will be picked from these players. So, lots of hoop action on tap by the local males shortly.

* * * * * *

Like doors which swing in and out, the Legionnaires and Petes are in the middle of a hefty grouping—or, actually, two OHA senior "B" groups. On the one side, there's Toronto Meteors (playing in Lindsay), Markham, Stouffville, Petes and Legion. And the other is Gananoque, Kingston, Belleville, Legion and Petes. Yes, sir, that's how it'll be, schedule opening here Monday with Gananoque playing Legion. Each end of this two-in-one grouping will have a weighted schedule (i.e. playing more games among themselves), with the G-K-B teams having a double schedule with our two teams, and the M-S-M squads playing a single schedule with Petes and Legion. We'll be in the G-K-B set-up for playoffs. Got it?

* * * * * *

Laboring On Schedule

Setup is explained more fully elsewhere as we got it from Frank Buckland, who has added a gray hair or two working it out to the satisfaction of all. He's mapping out a schedule now. OHA lent a sympathetic ear to the protests of Meteors, Markham and Stouffville, wanting in with Petes and Legion, so this new arrangement was made. Suits us okay, as it will mean more teams will be seen in action here, and every one of them looks plenty strong. Especially Markham and Stouffville. Maybe Meteors, too. We know the Diesels and Nylons will be potent, and likely Gananoque—intermediate "A" finalists last year. Petes and Legion have some tough sledding ahead, but the fans will see fast, close contests. Local clubs also have some hefty hauls, and will need big crowds to make any money.

* * * * * *

PMHA tilts tonight in the arena: Southend midgets vs. St. Peter's at six, and Keene midgets vs. Marines at seven—a change in the schedule. Abbreviated accounts of these scraps are run when we get them. Friday has a change, too, with Optimist bantams playing St. Peter's, followed by the juvenile SPS and Keene. The Saturday twin bill starts at five p.m. These boys made Optimists midgets: Miller, Millen, Nickson, Driscoll, Ferren, Ryan, McGee, Stewart, Scott, Downer, McFee, Lipsett, Hutton, Middleton, Carlton, Cullen, Drury, Bryon and Saunders. The other night, Keene bantams trimmed Optimists 11-0 with Pollard and Patterson leading the attack and the winners' goalie good. Oddfellow juves took Keene 7-0 as Bacon and Jensen sparked the attack. OMHA annual is in King Edward Hotel at 10.30 a.m. Saturday.

Hockey Riot Lasts Half Hour Bilts Whip Kroehlers 6-2

By The Canadian Press.

Of three games played in the Ontario Hockey Association on Tuesday night, two could be considered hockey. The other was a mixture of mayhem and a Roman mass gladiator battle.

Fans attended the junior encounter at Guelph between Biltmores and Stratford Kroehlers expecting to see the usual spirited junior type of hockey. Instead they saw a third period riot which would do credit to a Hollywood production. The "contest" was won by the sixth place Bilts 6-2 but who won the third period riot is anybody's guess.

A fight broke out and was continued in the penalty box. The willingness of a nearby spectator to participate in it was the signal for players of both teams to spill onto the ice accompanied by numerous fans. The "spectacle" held up the game until referees restored some semblance of order a half hour later.

In other games, the second place Owen Sound Mercurys of the senior loop went down to a 2-0 shutout defeat at the hands of the cellar-inhabiting Hamilton Tigers. St. Michael's took over sole possession of second place in the Junior A series with a 6-4 verdict over Galt Black Hawks.

37 Penalties Given

The final tabulation at Guelph showed 37 penalties were handed out, including 14 misconducts, two majors and two match misconducts.

Referees Ken Holmeshaw and Pearcy Allan finally got the game under way by banishing all players but five from both teams to the dressing rooms. Another complication then arose when defenceman Vic Dimarco of Guelph was injured. The situation was solved by taking a player off Stratford to keep the sides even.

The game was farly close until the third period, being tied 1-1 at the end of the first and 2-2 at the end of the middle frame. Bob Palmer, Ron Plumb with two and Ken Oberholtzer with the other scored in the final session, Plumb's second coming when the teams were playing four aside. Walter Clune had opened the scoring for Guelph in the first. Doug French tied it for Stratford. The teams split tallies in the second, Frank Bathgate clicking for the Bilts and Jim Pernfuss for Stratford.

The senior game at Owen Sound was held up an hour and 15 minutes because of a breakdown of the bus taking Tigers to Owen Sound.

The game was a scoreless affair until the halfway mark of the final period when Clare Shillington put the Tigers out in front 1-0 on a pass from Johnny Conick. Hal Hursley made it 2-0 six minutes later, again on a pass from Conick.

Salvage Something

St. Michael's and Galt salvaged something from the night's activity. Their game was entirely without event other than a hockey nature.

The Black Hawks took an early three goal lead on two markers by George Ford and one by Bronco Horvath. The Collegians clicked for two before the period ended, and were ahead 5-3 by the start of the third. Bill Primeau and Bill Dineen flashed the light in the first for the Majors and Bill Marshall, Rod Roy and Bill Dineen again counted in the middle frame. Galt Potted their fourth and last off the stick of Jack Green in the third, Rod Roy snagged his second to close out the scoring.

Five proposed amendments to the regulations governing the Ontario Minor Hockey Association will be discussed and a new executive will be elected at Toronto Saturday at the Association's 16th annual meeting.

Proposed amendments are:

1. The regulation permitting a player to take part in all classifications—Juvenile, Midget and Bantam—when he is eligible, would be changed to exclude players in those cities having teams in the "A" series.

2. To enable the executive to replace present home and home playoff series with two out of three or three out of five series.

3. To give the executive authority to say what overtime is to be played in "games" series.

4. To have the Association appoint all referees.

5. Endorsation of the rule instituted last year by which the executive issues cards to managers and coaches.

Joe Louis, retired heavyweight champion, fought a cautious but lively 10-round exhibition bout Tuesday night at Detroit with Joe Cheshul, young Bayonne, N. J., heavyweight.

A crowd of more than 5,000 saw Louis score but one knockdown, for an eight count.

The aggressor, Louis restricted his punching largely to left jabs and hooks as he tried in vain to catch up with the fast moving, shifty Cheshul.

Louis weighed 228 1-2, enjoying a huge weight advantage over Cheshul at 185.

Two exercise boys were hurt and two horses killed in accidents at the fair grounds race track in New Orleans Tuesday.

Lester Keene, 26, received a broken collarbone when his mount and another horse collided.

Both horses, two year old filly Maview and five year old gelding Capt. Dave, died within a few minutes.

Walter Lilley, 51, rider of Mayview, was unhurt.

About an hour later Joseph Barmore, 16, received a broken leg when a stirrup strap broke. He was riding Little Tuffy.

Dick Curley, veteran boxing promoter and manager, died on Monday night at Trenton, N. J., after a long illness. He was 73.

Promoter of the 1917 championship fight between featherweight king Johnny Kilbane and lightweight Benny Leonard, Curley was one of the last of boxing's old guard.

He managed such well-known fighters as Mike Dundee, Sailor Freedman, Cowboy Eddie Anderson and Walt Doyle.

Comedian Bob Hope still can list himself as one of the owners of the Cleveland Indians.

The baseball team's new president, Ellis W. Ryan, announced at Cleveland Tuesday that Hope has a "rooting" interest in the new corporation, the Cleveland Baseball Company.

Hope, who was raised on Cleveland's east side, held a small amount of stock under the Bill Veeck regime.

The annual Neill Trophy bonspiel got away last evening pretty well on time. The games were well contested.

On ice No. 1, T. Doughty and F. Green were tied coming home, with the Green boys winning out.

On ice No. 2, R. Williamson forced Dr. McKee to go overtime before he would concede the game.

On ice No. 3, Chuck Fraser and H. Green fought a good fight, Fraser finishing a few up.

On the centre ice, J. Dutton won from B. Switzer in a well played game, the last two ends doing the trick.

Ice No. 5: This game between C. Mowry and G. Clark was close, the Clark twice finishing three up.

O. Price and F. Paterson had a good game on ice No. 6. It was close most of the way but finally Mr. Price's boys won out by six shots.

The nine o'clock draw was just getting under way as we left the rink.

We overheard this remark on No. 8 last evening: "You know he is one of those chaps who would give his little boy an all-day sucker at 9 o'clock at night.

Neill Trophy, 7 o'clock results: F. Green won from T. Doughty; Dr. McKee won from R. Williamson (extra end); C. Fraser won from H. Green; J. Dutton won from B. Switzer; G. Clark won from C. Mowry; O. Price won from F. Paterson.

Ladies' scores: Mrs. J. Dunkerly 10, Mrs. J. Fanning 13; Mrs. R. Clarke 3, Mrs. G. Wood 12; Mrs. M. Holt 7 Mrs. H. Dulmage 6; Mrs. T. Doughty 12, Mrs. C. Westbrook 5.

Petes and Legion Entered In Two Senior 'B' Groups

The two OHA senior "B" clubs here—Legion and the Petes—will be the "hinges" of a "swinging door" grouping of eight scattered squads, according to arrangements completed by Frank Buckland of the OHA executive, convener in Central Ontario. The schedule will open next Monday night here with Gananoque playing Legion.

The idea adopted is to have three teams in one end of the area—Belleville, Kingston and Gananoque—play more games among themselves, and have a double schedule with the Petes and Legion, but no tilts with Stouffvile, Markham and Meteors, at the other end of the district. The latter three, likewise, will play more among themselves but will also have a home-and-home schedule with Petes and Legion. Thus the two local teams will travel in both directions from here, with all games counting in the senior 'B' standing.

Really In Two

Actually, there are two groupings in the area, but the Petes and Legion participate in both. However, Petes and Legion, if they qualify, will take part in the playoffs with the Belleville-Kingston-Gananoque group, first and third, second and fourth playing off. The winner will then meet the winner of a playoff series involving the group of Meteors (using Lindsay for home ice), Markham and Stouffville.

The various clubs have agreed to this involved grouping setup, and the schedule will be drawn within a few days by Frank Buckland, with approval of Lorne Cook of Kingston, the other OHA convener interested. At a recent meeting in Belleville, it was decided to group Gananoque, Kingston, Belleville, Legion and Petes together. However, Meteors, Markham and Stouffville protested to Acting Secretary George Panter of the OHA, wanting to be grouped with the two Peterborough teams. The OHA then ordered a revised grouping to include these teams, and this setup is the result.

Montreal Alouettes Hold Light Practices

MONTREAL, Nov. 23 (CP)—Come snow or mud, Montreal Alouettes will be in peak form when they tackle Calgary Stampeders in Saturday's big east-west football final.

They've been romping over a snow-hardened gridiron in light practice sessions after showing their prowess in the mud by routing Hamilton Tigers 40-0 in last Sunday's Eastern Canada final.

Coach Lew Hayman and his aides will take the Als through their large repertoire of plays again today, but it's not expected that the workouts will be too strenuous.

"We're as fit and ready as we'll ever be," Hayman said Tuesday night, but he admitted that Jack Harper is a doubtful starter.

Nursing a dislocated shoulder suffered in Sunday's game, Harper attended the team drill on Tuesday, but watched most of it.

The Montrealer's will have their last practice outing tomorrow and leave for Toronto the following day.

Monty Says Rommel Ends Life With Poison

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP) —Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Tuesday that German General Erwin Rommel, whom he defeated in North Africa during the Second World War, ended his life with poison after being implicated in a plot against Hitler.

He told the story to the National Press Club in reply to a question as to whether Rommel's death was a fitting end for him.

Lord Montgomery said that toward the end of the war a son of Rommel was captured. He said the son made a signed statement along this line about his father's death:

During the Normandy battle Rommel was wounded. While convalescing he was visited by two generals from Berlin who gave him the option of appearing before a people's court or taking poison. Rommel went off with the two generals and took poison

Grain Storage Problem In Latin America

By HAROLD MORRISON, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—(CP). — Dr. Harold E. Gray recently returned from a grain-storage conference with the news that Latin-America wants more Canadian wheat.

The government's delegate joined with others from the United Kingdom, the United States, France and The Netherlands in a week-long conference, designed to find means of coping with international wheat storage losses.

"Between 15 and 20 countries participated," said Dr. Gray, a 50-year-old Ottawa scientist who specializes in finding ways of keeping grain free of rodent and insect attack. The meeting he adds was "an outstanding success."

The conference was sponsored by the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations. Russia and her satellite countries did not attend. The Argentine sent an observer.

Millers in Colombia "were very euthusiastic about Canadian wheat, which is a harder variety than the Latin-American kind, but lacked sufficient dollars. There were indications, once the dollar shortage was met, Canada would find an enthusiastic customer below the American border.

International Problem

As to the meeting itself, there was every evidence that an international problem exists in grain-storage losses. These losses, if preventible, "would aid greatly in feeding a hungry world."

"The high temperature and high relative humidity throughout much of the year make storage problems in Latin-America much more serious than they ever are in Canada," noted Dr. Gray

Some countries reported losses as high as 50 per cent in stored beans and from 10 to 30 per cent in stored corn and wheat. Methods by which these problems could be met were outlined at the meeting.

One outcome of the conference —an outcome which may have ramifications in other international co-operation fields was a resolution to form a western hemisphere organization to meet annually to exchange information on the most modern control measures.

Dr. Gray is no newcomer to FAO conferences. He represented Canada in the Washington conference of 1946 and the London conference of 1947.

During the war years he supervised a control program to maintain vast stores of grain free from the grain commissioners. He is now chief of stored product insect investigations in the agriculture department's division of entomology.

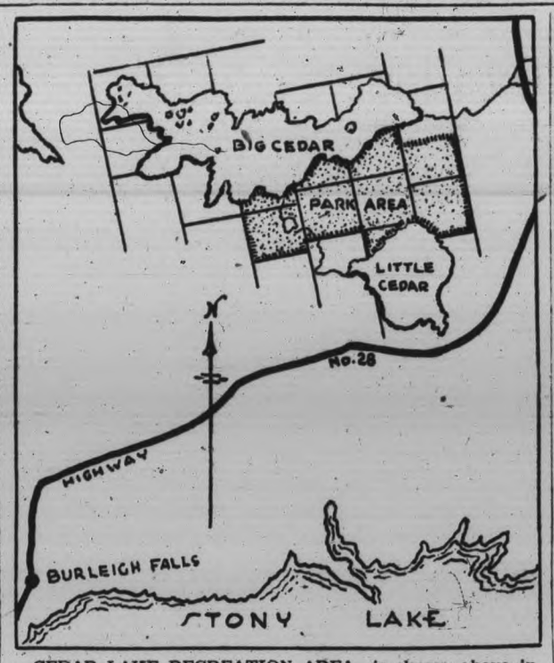
Bus Hits Pedestrian Only Minor Injuries

Crossing the Water St. intersection on Hunter St., William H. Morton, 627 Water St., was hit by a city bus driven by Fred LeBarr, 256 Aylmer St., at noon Monday.

Traffic Officer Harold Mesley reported Morton said he had been walking across the street to his car parked on the east side of Water St. While he was part way across, the light turned from green to amber. The bus with which he collided was being driven west on Hunter and turning south on Water St.

Morton was cut on the top of the head, complained of an injury to his right elbow and neck and has his glasses smashed.

Bus driver LeBarr was reported as saying the corner post of his bus blocked his view and he did not see Morton.



CEDAR LAKE RECREATION AREA is shown above in relation to Burleigh Falls, Stony Lake and Eel's Brook. Present negotiations will soon determine a Board of Directors and various working committees. It will belong to both city and county people.

Board Of Directors To Handle Cedar Lakes Recreation Project

The Cedar Lakes Recreational Area is taking shape according to a file of correspondence belonging to M. N. Clysdale, president of the Kawartha Conservation Association. The project will become a stock company, without share capital, with a type of charter granted to service clubs and other non-profit organizations.

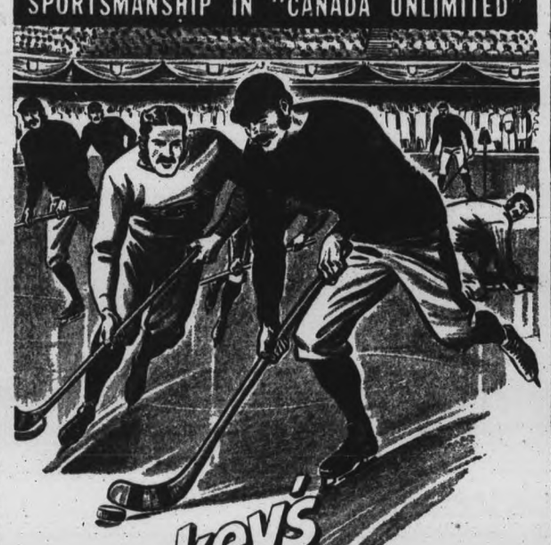
The proposed park area between Big and Little Cedar Lakes, north of Highway 28 above Burleigh Falls, consists of several hundred acres. Much of the water area has been formed by beaver colonies flooding low swamp land to make, at the present time, a great increase in lake shoreline. These animals will not be the only type of attraction, for the park will be a wildlife sanctuary, attracting deer and game birds from the nearby Eel's Brook Crown Game Preserve.

The recent delegation to Queen's Park was given the assured support of the Minister of Lands and Forests, the Hon. Harold R. Scott, and assistance from the Deputy Provincial Secretary, R. J. Cudney. Mr. Cudney has spent much time in preparing proposals for an organizational set-up that would best suit the requirements of the Peterborough city and county groups.

The Kawartha Conservation Association is now at the point when it can ask various groups to aid in naming charter members from which a board of directors will be elected. A meeting is to be called, a board elected and a working committee chosen to plan a course of obtaining financial support.

When Mr. Scott reviewed the project in Toronto, he said: "I am glad to see that you are drawing other organizations into this plan, as I feel that a good strong joint organization could really put over a project of this cize in a much better manner than if three or four smaller ones were each to undertake separate projects."

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"



Hockey's First!

The rules of the rink have changed greatly since hockey's first organized game . . . 74 years ago.

It was a March day in 1875. The indoor ice of Montreal's Victoria Skating Rink was a swirl of uniformed figures. Spectators who lined the rails were watching the first attempt to organize the increasingly popular game of hockey.

The teams had been reduced to nine men a side . . . each with a definite position to cover. Instead of the familiar rubber ball, a flat, round block of wood was being used. And for the first time, the goals were protected by goaltenders. Regulation hockey had been born.

Hockey holds a proud tradition of sportsmanship for Canadians. And Canadian teamwork has made us world leaders in the game. Together, sportsmanship and teamwork are working for you . . . by keeping your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

The Stanley Cup, today's emblem of N.H.L. Championship, was first won in 1894 by the Montreal AAA team . . . and for 17 years was a purely amateur trophy.

Leswick, Poile Hit Stride, Rangers Click

By The Canadian Press.

New York Rangers are moving up in the National Hockey League standings—they're tied for fourth place—and a lot of it may be due to Tony Leswick and Bud Poile finally getting the scoring habit.

Leswick staged a scoring splurge last Sunday night as the Rangers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 5-2. He rammed in three goals, one of them unassisted, in three minutes and five seconds for the fastest hat trick in Ranger history. It fell short of the league record set in 1938 when Carl Liscombe of Detroit Red Wings tallied three in a minute and 52 seconds.

With Leswick's work Sunday—he also picked up an assist—the 26-year-old native of Humboldt, Sask., doubled his season's point total. He now has eight points.

Poile, who came to New York with George Gee last season in a player deal with the Red Wings, made his first goal of the season Wednesday a game-winning one when the Rangers defeated Boston Bruins 2-1. He tallied another against the Hawks Sunday.

The goal-producing tactics of Leswick and Poile rounds out the Rangers' top line. Centreing them is Edgar Laprade, leading the Rangers with 13 points.

The Rangers will need that power tonight when they take on the leading Detroit Red Wings in Detroit. In another game the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs —seven points behind the Red Wings—meet the last-place Bruins in Boston.

Passport Office So Quick Officials Rather Worried

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 — (CP).— Canada's passport office— often the target of parliamentary criticism for delays — now handles applications so fast it has government officials a bit worried, the Comons Committee on External Affairs was told Tuesday.

A. D. P. Heiney, Under-Secretary for External Affairs, said passports now are granted in 24 hours and he is a bit fretful that maybe that is a bit too fast to permit adequate care.

Two years ago, he told Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto-Eglinton) the situation was markedly different from today's "assembly line" production.

From G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West) came two statements. One was objection to a 1947 government Order-in-Council which, he said, cancelled the right of members of Parliament to official passports good for a year. He was promised an explanation.

The other was objection to "the dump" the passport office occupies in downtown Ottawa.

A Good Description

Mr. Heeney agreed that it was a good description and announced that arrangements have been made for the office to move to another building.

Answering questions as the committee considered departmental estimates, the Under-Secretary said Canada grants passports to any country Canadians may wish to visit.

The reason letters were sometimes sent to applicants to ask where they were going was that this enabled the department to inform them of certain difficulties they may encounter in countries such as Germany and Japan.

Mr. Heeney said the External Affairs Department has doubled its size since 1946 and has grown nearly eight times its 1939 size. Of its 1,248 employees, half were abroad. It maintained 44 offices in 33 countries, including 14 embassies, eight legations, and six high commissioners' offices.

Its biggest office abroad was in London with 89 persons. A third foreign service officer was being sent to Moscow. The only new diplomatic office definitely slated to be opened this year would be in Pakistan, but it would be surprising if a similar step were not taken in Ceylon eventually.

In recruiting officers, the department required a college degree and it was true that post-graduate work in certain subjects was of obvious value. But it was not true that only persons with exceptional academic qualifications need apply.

"As the department has grown the need for people with a variety of gifts and experiences has grown with it. For different posts we find the need for different personalities. We hope our people won't fall into a pattern as has been the case in some foreign departments."

Ex-Jewel Thief Gains Freedom

MINEOLA, N.Y., Nov. 23 (AP) — White-haired Arthur Barry, who in the roaring 20s masterminded jewel thefts that netted him an estimated $4,000,000 or more, became a free man Tuesday.

Barry appeared before Judge Henry J. A. Collins for sentence. Last week he pleaded guilty to six felony indictments, involving 16 counts and dating back 29 years.

When the shackles were removed, Collins told Barry he thought he had paid his debt to society—and suspended sentence. Barry was released recently from Attica state prison after serving 19 years for a $60,000 jewel robbery.

He was arrested immediately on charges which grew out of the $100,000 robbery of the home of financier Jesse L. Livermore in 1927 and robberies of four other fashionable residences.

Court Finishes Consul's Trial, Verdict Soon

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP) —The Chinese Communists reported Tuesday that their People's Court at Mukden has finished an investigation and will give a verdict on Consul-General Angus Ward, of the United States, and four members of his staff in a matter of days.

This first word on their fate was received by the State Department and gave new urgency to American efforts to free the five from jail.

Two versions of a Mukden radio broadcast reported from Nanking and Shanghai call Ward and his staff members criminals and culprits and said they have been questioned repeatedly since their arrest Oct. 24. They were charged with beating a Chinese employee of the consulate.

The State Department, which has denounced the charges as trumped up, meanwhile awaited first responses from the 30 countries to which State Secretary Acheson addressed an unprecedented appeal for concerted action in behalf of the jailed consul. Acheson's message went to the foreign ministers of Russia and of four Eastern-European Soviet satellites, among others.

The British Foreign Office expressed concern today over Ward's detention, and said the American call for a concerted protest is being considered. The External Affairs Department at Ottawa said it had received the United States note, but declined immediate comment.

There appeared to be little doubt that the western governments would go along, but there was a big question whether Moscow would join in bringing pressure on its Chinese protege. Today's development raised new uncertainties—whether the Mukden court will go ahead with a Communist-style trial regardless of the international outcry, and if so whether it will decree stiff jail terms or impose merely nominal sentences.

Robert Dobson, 19, was one of the two who died.

Police Confer About Charges

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—(CP). — Police will confer with Crown Attorney A. D. Davis of Brampton today to decide whether any charges will be laid as a result of preliminary investigation into the death last Sunday of 21-year-old Margaret Robertson of Acton.

John Gross, 34-year-old Toronto brewery salesman, admitted to police he drove the girl to Brampton hospital Sunday evening. She was pronounced dead when admitted. Gross was released and was not charged.

Toronto morality police questioned a number of persons Tuesday and others are to be interviewed today. Police are satisfied the illegal operation, which caused the girl's death, was performed in Toronto.

They said "we are satisfied the operation did not take place in the hotel where she was staying." Miss Robertson came to Toronto three weeks ago from London, where she had been a second-year student at the University of Western Ontario. She told friends she was "looking for work."

Private Investments Abroad 15 Million

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP).— The Commerce Department estimated today that private United States investments abroad totalled $15,300,000,000 at the start of this year. It said they were rising at a $1,000,000,000-a-year clip.

Some $11,400,000,000 of the total it estimated, are in the form of "direct investments"—operations abroad by American firms through foreign branches or subsidiaries.

These, it added, paid off last year at a rate of better than 15 per cent. The return was reflected in earnings of $1,552,000,000 last year, after foreign taxes, on direct investments valued at $10,000,000,000 at the end of 1947.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 23. — (AP). — A 54-year-old school principal was arrested Tuesday and charged with sending and receiving obscene matter in the mails.

Pipe-Line Bill Filibuster Upsets Gov't

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—(CP). — Government hopes for an early end to a filibuster against two pipe-line bills were blasted in the Commons Tuesday.

Eleven speeches and a division on an Opposition amendment prevented the bills from advancing during the extra time allotted for discussion through a special government motion.

The motion set aside the three-hour evening session for discussion of the bills, but even a plea for action from Fisheries Minister Mayhew failed to spike opposition.

The bills would incorporate Prairie Transmission Lines Limited and the Alberta Natural Gas Company. Both are seeking charters to build natural gas pipe lines from Alberta fields to western United States and British Columbia centres.

In recent weeks the bills have been opposed every time they have been called during the one hour on Tuesdays and Fridays devoted to measures sponsored by private members.

Want Canadians First

Opposition has centred on the ground that the companies plan to build lines mostly through United States territory and serve American areas before Canadian points. Members on both sides of the Commons have argued that the companies should build the lines over a Canadian route and serve Canada first.

The defeated amendment, sponsored by T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview), would have killed the prairie transmission lines bill for this session.

Members voted 152 to 44 against the amendment, However, they no sooner had disposed of it when another was moved by Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East). This amendment, still undisposed of, asked that further consideration of the bill be deferred until Parliament is given assurances that the pipe line will be laid out to serve Canadian requirements before leaving Canadian soil.

When the debate was adjourned at the end of the sitting there was no indication of whether the Government will make another special move to provide more than two-hours weekly for discussion of the measures.

How does a Hillman go in Snow?

READ WHAT A SKI EXPERT HAS TO SAY ABOUT ONE OF HIS MANY LONG TRIPS

Mr. Douglas Mann, skiing enthusiast and former Canadian Champion, whose letter is one of many received from happy Hillman owners.

"On a Friday early last March," writes Mr. Mann, "we set out in our Hillman from London, Ont., for one of our regular weekend trips. We stayed in Ottawa overnight, and reached St. Jovite in the Laurentians next morning, after a lovely scenic drive over snowy mountain roads. We thoroughly enjoyed a strenuous ski-ing weekend, then left for London at 8 p.m. on Sunday, arriving at 10.30 next morning. Much of the credit for this wonderful winter trip goes to our Hillman! Even in deep snow, we cruised serenely along with ample power and traction. We covered a total of 1150 miles, at an average speed of 48 mph. Average gas consumption was a very welcome 39* miles per gallon!"

The Hillman Minx performs magnificently in the most exacting winter driving conditions, as thousands of Hillman owners know. A permanent network of dealers provides Hillman parts and service from coast to coast in Canada and the U.S.A. Ask your local dealer for a Hillman demonstration ride.

WHO DOMINATES THE U.E.?

It has been falsely stated that our Union is under "Communist domination".

Among the members of our Union there are people of all political and religious beliefs, as there are in every other Union in Canada. But none of these political or religious beliefs dominate our Union. UE members set aside their political and religious differences so that policies bringing genuine economic benefit to ALL of our members can be democratically arrived at and carried out.

DEMOCRACY IN THE UE

As loyal UE members we carry out to the full the principles of our Constitution, which states:

"We form an organization which unites all workers in our industry on an industrial basis, and rank and file control, regardless of craft, age, sex, nationality, race, creed, or political beliefs, and pursue at all times a policy of aggressive struggle to improve our conditions."

Could any Union raise the wages and improve the working conditions of its members if it split and divided its ranks over differences of political or religious belief?

THE RANK AND FILE

On the subject of "Who Dominates the UE" our International President, Albert Fitzgerald, has said the following:

"We are opposed to domination by the Communist Party.

"We are opposed to domination by the Socialist Party.

"We are opposed to domination by the Republican or Democratic Parties.

"And as a fair sort of Catholic myself, I am opposed to the Associated Catholic Trade Unionists dominating this Union.

"I would be opposed to the Elks, the Moose or the Oddfellows dominating this Union.

"As far as the UE is concerned since its inception it has been opposed to domination by anyone except the rank and file."

CAREY DENIES UE IS "COMMUNIST DOMINATED"

We would like to point out that in 1940 James B. Carey, who was then International President of our Union wrote the following:

"Our Union is managed and administered by leaders who receive their mandate directly from the membership--THERE IS NO CONTROL BY COMMUNIST LEADERS IN OUR NATIONAL UNION--"

Those are the words of James B. Carey before he was defeated as International President of UE by Albert Fitzgerald. Since his defeat as President Carey has repeatedly charged our Union was "Communist dominated." Why? In an effort to gain control of a membership that had lost respect for him Carey began to "red-bait" everyone who opposed him, regardless of their political beliefs.

WE ARE LOYAL TO THE UE

We, the Stewards' Council and the Provisional Committee of UE Local 524, endorse the statement of our International President, Brother Albert Fitzgerald, and we reaffirm our loyalty to the democratic principles of our UE Constitution.

We emphatically deny that our Union is "Communist dominated". OUR UNION IS DOMINATED ONLY BY THE ECONOMIC NEEDS OF OUR MEMBERS.

C. S. Jackson, President of the UE in Canada, has sworn two oaths that he is not a member of the Communist Party.

WE MUST BE FREE TO MAKE OUR OWN DECISIONS

We consider it AN ACT OF TREACHERY AGAINST THE WELFARE OF OUR FAMILIES AND OUR COMMUNITY to attempt to WEAKEN THE BARGAINING STRENGTH of our Union by CREATING FEAR AND SUSPICION of our officers and members.

Our membership in Peterborough, and throughout Canada, must remain FREE AND INDEPENDENT OF AMERICAN CIO POLICY OF "RED-BAITING" AND RAIDING, which can only lead to the DIVISION AND RUIN OF THE CANADIAN LABOR MOVEMENT.

The majority of CGE workers, regardless of what you hear to the contrary, have freely chosen to remain members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, (UE), and our UE Local 524, despite the efforts of American CIO to set up a rump union in Peterborough.

The majority of our members spurn the efforts of our former leadership in UE Local 524 to use us as A STEPPING STONE FOR THEIR PERSONAL AMBITIONS TO SECURE POSITIONS IN AMERICAN CIO's "RED-BAITING" AND RAIDING ORGANIZATION.

WE ARE YOUR FELLOW CITIZENS

Our members are your friends and neighbors. We go to the same churches that you go to. Our children go to school with your children. Many of us served in either the First or Second World Wars with members of your families.

Our sole purpose is to live with our families in a peaceful and democratic Canada where we are free to work together to raise our living standards, where we are free to worship God in whatever manner we choose, and where we are free to hold any political belief, or change our political beliefs if we so desire.

We are confident that the good common sense of our fellow citizens of Peterborough will reject and condemn the efforts of so-called labor leaders from the U.S.A. to frighten CGE workers with "red-baiting" and raiding into accepting American dictation as to what Union they should belong to.

Canadian Expert Guides Ethiopia's Education Policy

By HOMER SMITH

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Nov. 23—(CP)—The educational future of this African country of 15,000,000 persons rests to a large degree with Frank G. Patton, former superintendent of schools in Ottawa.

Forty-five fellow Canadians who have been hired as teachers also will play a big role in Ethiopia's future.

Mr. Patton for the last six months has been deputy director general of education here — an enormous job," to describe it in his own words.

Since most Ethiopians are illiterate and education is the personal interest of Emperor Haile Selassie, "The Lion of Judah," his mission ranks with the most important in the country.

Mr. Patton brings to his new job a background of long educational experience. His record in Canadian education includes, before his 1941 appointment as Ottawa superintendent of schools, the job of principal of Ottawa's High School of Commerce and several years on the faculty of the York Memorial Collegiate Institute in Toronto.

He came to Ethiopia by government invitation. His abilities promptly advanced him to the key position of deputy director general of education. In this position, Patton supervises the big foreign teaching staff and acts as an advisor and supervisor on education problems.

Hears Teachers' Problems

Mr. Patton's office in the ministry of education is one of the busiest places in the building. Foreign teachers — Canadians, Americans, French, Swedish, British, Indians and Egyptians—regularly beat a path to his office with their problems and needs, always sure of a sympathetic understanding.

Since he took over his present job, an appreciable improvement in the morale of the foreign teaching personnel has been noted.

A typical problem was that of a school principal from the United States, who was due for a vacation and revision of his contract. Things were moving slowly until Mr. Patton took over the problem.

The principal soon got his revised contract, spent his vacation back home and returned with three new teachers for his school.

"Education has an enormous job to do in Ethiopia," said Mr. Patton, "and I am convinced that education is the fundamental task of the country.

"Emperor Haile Selassie is a staunch believer in, and patron of education."

Ethiopia is almost an agricultural country. There must be a much higher degree of literacy if the country's farm products are to compete with those of other countries, Mr. Patton believes.

"But, all in all, the outlook is promising," he said. And he is doing all he can to help make the outlook brighter.

FIGHTS ILLITERACY — Frank G. Patton, a former superintendent of schools in Ottawa, now is deputy director-general of education in Ethiopia. Forty-five fellow Canadians are serving as teachers in Haile Selassie's kingdom.

Reporter Says No Cliques In Yellowknife

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP)—Reporter James McKeachie likes the people in the Northland and says there are no "artificial cliques" in the town of Yellowknife.

In an address here, Mr. McKeachie described his voyage from Victoria to Great Slave Lake aboard the converted landing craft Yellowknife Expeditor.

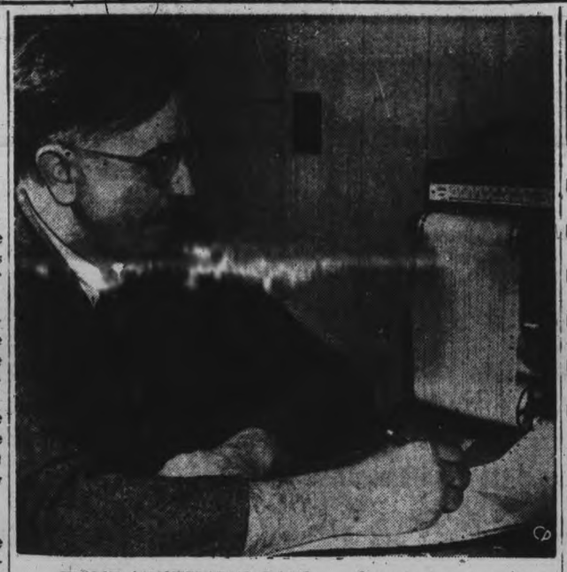
"People of Yellowknife are genuine," he said. "They are proud of their country and want the rest of the world to know about it. It's a rugged country . . and it's for young people."

Everybody there — and there are about 7,000—seems to be directly interested in gold stocks. It is not uncommon to see several waitresses in a huddle discussing prevailing gold price standings.

He said the 13-year-old town is no longer a boom town, but is settling down into a small progressive city.

Because transportation of any kind in the area is at a premium and costs of delivering goods are high, Yellowknife people are a practical lot.

He told of the local undertaker there whose former R.C.A.F. panel truck served as a hearse and when funeral business was not booming, as a taxi-cab. His rates: $200 horizontal and 50 cents sitting up.



THOSE MYSTERIOUS RAYS — Canada has launched a new experiment in her far northern regions to study changes in intensity of cosmic rays in correlation with meteorological changes, magnetic disturbances and solar phenomena. Here Dr. D. C. Rose of the physic division of the National Research Council studies a highly sensitive ray recorder, similar to those being used on Cornwallis Island, some 580 miles inside the Arctic Circle. One of the benefits that may follow the experiments is more accurate weather forecasts.

Plan Food Supplies For Labrador Winter

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 23 — (CP). — The Newfoundland government is taking action to prevent any regions in Labrador being without food this winter.

This action is answered to requests from various parts of Labrador that food stocks be built up at different points, to be available should winter stock run out.

Most requests have come from Southern Labrador where the fishing industry has failed, and where the need for relief is expected to be great this winter.

Last winter the icebreaker Saurel had to carry food to six communities along the Southern Labrador coast. The hamlets, hemmed in by ice, were threatened with starvation

Sues RKO Pictures

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23—(AP) —Ann Sheridan has filed a $350,000 breach of contract suit against RKO Radio Pictures, Incorporated. The actress' suit, filed Monday, claims she was contracted to play the feminine lead in the film "Carriage Entrance," but that the studio gave the role to Ava Gardner. Miss Sheridan said the studio terminated her contract Aug. 17.

Aleric Letellier Visiting In Montreal Dies

A son of one of the oldest families of Peterborough, Aleric A. Letellier, 123 Crescent St., died suddenly in Montreal on Tuesday.

Mr. Letellier had recently been called to Montreal by the critical illness of his brother-in-law, Dr. Jean O. Langevin. The death of Dr. Langevin occurred on Sunday, and the funeral took place this morning from his late residence in Montreal to Coteau du Lac.

Mr. Letellier was born in Peterborough, son of the late Leger Letellier and Louise de Lapiante. He received his education at Lake St. School and Collegiate Institute, and was employed for some years with the Kingan Hardware Company. He was engaged in contracting for a time, but for years had confined his active interests to his own properties.

The news of the death of Mr. Letellier has been a deep shock to his host of friends. It was accentuated by the affecting circumstances of his last visit to Montreal and the death of his brother-in-law for whom he had a fraternal attachment. Mr. Letellier had lived in Crescent St. all his life and was widely known throughout the city. Possessed of an amiable and cheery personality, he had won many friendships and the general esteem of those who knew him.

Mr. Letellier was a devout member of the Church of the Sacred Heart from the time of its building, and entered actively into its life and affairs. He was also a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Letellier leaves his wife, the former Marie Langevin, his stepmother, Mrs. Azilda Letellier, and his sisters, Misses Louise and Eva Letellier, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Felix (Cecile) Gagnon, of Montreal.

Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed today.

Present Sweaters To Beach Patrols

Eight boys who patrolled beaches at the organized swimming areas in the city during the summer, are to be presented with sweaters in recognition of their services.

The sweaters have been purchased by the Recreation Commission and will be presented Thursday evening at a Kinsmen dinner at the Kawartha Club.

The boys will be dinner guests of the Kinsmen, who sponsored the organization at Inverlea. They are Raymond and Harvey McFayden, Bud Cruickshank, Fred Griffin, Stan Gordon, Leo Howren, Bobby Beaubiah and Ron McIlwain.

JOHN G. MORTON, head of the right wing CGE group in Peterborough, CENTRE, adds a few words to his introduction of James B. Carey, RIGHT, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, and provisional chairman of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO). The new electrical union, locked in conflict with the UE in both the United States and Canada, was formed after the expulsion of the UE at the recent CIO convention. Cyril O'Donnell, Mr. Morton's right-hand man in organizing the right-wing CGE unionists, is also shown. Examiner Staff Photo

Labor Council Asks Electors Given Vote On Ward System

Peterborough's Allied Labor Council has once again gone on record supporting the ward system of municipal elections and asking that the voters be given a chance to give their opinions in a referendum. A letter to this effect will be dispatched to the City Council. A protracted correspondence between the Legal Committee of the City Council and the ALC has gone on since last year's municipal elections over this issue.

"Our original request was that the issue be put to the public for a referendum vote, where the voters would be given every opportunity to hear argument pro and con and decide for themselves the respective values of one or the other system," an extract from the letter reads.

Gist of the city's reply to the original request of the ALC was that the other method had been tried and found wanting at a previous date. Councillors felt that aldermen elected by a general vote rather than by the ward system gave better overall community service.

"Labor has traditionally sought closer control and the right of recall over representatives of the public," the letter adds.

The ALC also approved draughting of a letter to be sent to City Council outlining some suggestions for improving the bus service.

Two members of Local 1320 of the Amalgamated Street, Electric, Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, said speedier and more efficient service could be given to the Peterborough public if there were an extension of regular bus stops. Apart from the shopping district of the city passengers can get on or off the buses wherever they please.

Impedes Good Service

This impedes good service in the opinion of bus drivers Ed Simmons and William Holland.

To save on a costly outlay for signs they suggested that a wide yellow stripe be painted around poles at the desired transit points.

A letter was also approved that will be sent to the Federal Government protesting the 18-22 per cent rent increases on homes, effective March 1.

The ALC called on the Government to rescind this order and before any other rent boosts are even considered to ensure sufficient low-cost housing is available through public and private home building.

John Rowley, UE organizer and Donald Rosenburg of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees made the motion that was accepted unanimously.

Swimmers In Red Want A Hand

The Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, whose activities are of international fame, has told the Recreation Commission that it is unable to meet its expenses and has asked for financial assistance.

When the Commission considered the application Tuesday it was decided to ask the Service Club Council to consider making a donation to the club, with a recommendation that the club be given high priority.

A financial statement presented to the Commission revealed that annual income was $600 and expenditure $1,500. Income comprised of $150 from the Commission, $175 fees, swimming display $125 and donation $150. Expenses were: pool $250, swim suits $270, robes $135, club pins and stationery $100, scenery $100 and travel and social $670.

The Commission was also asked whether anything could be done to provide more adequate facilities for the club, which found the YWCA pool too small.

Fear Hopper Plague

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23 (CP)—Dr. R. D. Bird, Dominion entomologist, Tuesday night told a conference on provincial and muhicipal control of grasshoppers that Manitoba next June will face its greatest threat from the insects since the 1930s. Grasshopper eggs have been found in disturbingly-large numbers over areas totalling 10,727 square miles, he said.

Citizens Petition Commission For Three Rinks

Two petitions and one from the chief instructor of PCVS cadets for ice rinks to be established in three different parts of the city, has led to formation of a committee of the Recreation Commission to make a survey of all skating rink facilities in Peterborough.

Before the individual requests are dealt with, the Commission will consider the overall picture and then establish rinks where it is felt they are neded.

H. A. Craig has asked the Commission to establish a rink in front of the Collegiate for the use of 16 hockey teams. He suggests that it could be reserved at certain times for the hockey games and at other times could be available for public skating.

Western Rink

Residents near Prince of Wales school have asked the Commission to approach the CGE with a view to having a rink on the firm's land on Monaghan Rd. south of Sherbrooke St. The Commission discovered, however, that the Board of Education already had an option on the property and the matter is being left in abeyance for the time being.

Hazlitt and Roger St. residents have also petitioned for a rink in that area. The nearest was at Inverlea and the walk was too far for the children, parents claimed.

An application by Rube Brady for equipment for a group of boys he has organized to play hockey was refused. It was against the policy of the Commission to supply equipment to any one group. The Commission helped to make available such facilities as rinks but could not undertake to supply equipment.

Peterborough Unlike Brantford Not Worried About Travelling Aldermen Spending Money

Because "travelling is increasing and proper returns are not being made," Brantford Council is tightening up on the issue of expense money to its members Any travelling expenditure over $25 must be authorized by the Council. Travelling and expense account vouchers must be properly itemized and signed. Authorization of expense up to $25 shall be given by the mayor or the chairman of the committee concerned.

City Treasurer A. S. Couper commented today that the members of Peterborough's Council did comparatively little travelling on city business, and when they did, any expense accounts had to be itemized and passed by the mayor and chairman of the finance committee.

"Toronto is about as far as any of our members go," Mr. Couper said. "They have occasional interviews with the Ontario Municipal Board or with ministers of the Provincial Government, but that is the bulk of it. When any deputation is away on the city's business The Examiner usually mentions it. Three members of the Council made a trip to Kitchener, Galt and one or two other places this summer. I think Ald. Herb Young was one of the members because the visit had something to do with parks departments and boards in other cities."

That Kitchener trip was concerned with the system of park management in other cities of the size of Peterborough. The question of a parks commission recurs here nearly every year, and the Council was seeking information about the practice in several other Ontario cities comparable with Peterborough.

Communist Controlled UE Bitterly Assailed By James B. Carey At Rally

By DAVE WHITE

"The impact of the success of the new union here in Peterborough will be felt among organized workers in industry all over Canada," James B. Carey of Philadelphia, chairman of the new CIO-affiliated International Union of Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers (CIO) stated Tuesday night. Carey, president of the UE from 1936 to 1941, was making his first speech to Canadian electrical workers since he was appointed temporary head of the new UE-CIO after the parent organization was expelled from the CIO at the annual convention this Fall.

He is also secretary-treasurer of the CIO.

More than 800 CGE union members were estimated by right wingers to have attended. The meeting was completely orderly; there was no heckling. And Carey, used to the hectic sessions at recent electrical workers' meetings in the United States, described it as the most peaceful he had seen in months.

Claims Majority Signed

Before Mr. Carey spoke, John G. Morton, leader of the right-wing group in Peterborough and recognized as the key man for them in Canada, announced that the UE-CIO now has a majority of the workers signed in the Peterborough plant. About 3,200 production workers are included in the bargaining unit.

He also stated that out of an original 390,000 members of UE in the United States, the rival UE-CIO has now signed about 200,000, or more than 50 per cent. And this figure was later unofficially confirmed by Carey

The dark, slight UE-CIO leader bitterly assailed the so-called Communist control of the UE. President Albert J. Fitzgerald, Organizational Director James J. Matles, Secretary - Treasurer Julius Emspak and International Vice-President C. S. Jackson were all singled out for attack.

States Their Crime

"Their crime is that they attempted to turn the labor movement into an instrument for the benefit of the foreign policy of the Soviet Union," he said referring to the leftist leaders.

He said he had helped in the campaign to get Jackson out of the concentration camp where he was placed early in the Second World War.

For nine years the internal battle between sincere trade unionists and the Communists has continued within the ranks of the CIO, he stated. The ordinary trade unionists got a "rude awakening" when they found the pro-Soviet attitude of the UE after the Stalin-Hitler pact in 1939.

Carey said he also found one had to be a Communist to be an organizer in the UE.

25 Apply For Job Of Recreation Director

Twenty-five applications for the position of recreation director, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Jack Dane, have been received by the Recreation Commission. Some are from as far as Saskatchewan and Manitoba and there are none from Peterborough.

The Commission Tuesday decided to have the list compiled ready for consideration Friday.

Mrs. Helena Munro, who has been a member of the Commission since its inception in February, 1947, announced her resignation, stating that illness in her family prevented her from continuing. She had been chairman of Arts and Crafts committee of the Commission.

Two Cars And Truck In Banging Series

Three vehicles were involved in an accident Tuesday afternoon when a Lindsay car banged into the rear of another pushing it against a truck at the corner of McDonnel and George streets.

Irvine J. McIntosh, 533 Bolivar St., driving a truck east on McDonnel stopped at George St. A car driven by Jack Wilson, 1208 Monaghan Rd., going in the same direction behind the truck, stopped as well. A car driven by Albert G. Bocker, Lindsay, also going east, failed to stop and smashed into the rear of Wilson's car.

Little damage was done to the truck. The Bocker car had a damaged bumper, radiator and front fender. No estimate was made at the time of damage to the Wilson car. Constable Dennis Traynor investigated.

APPLIES FOR WOLF BOUNTY

Vernon J. La Plante of 90 Ware St. has applied to the County Clerk and Treasurer for the $25 wolf bounty paid in Peterborough County. He shot it in Burleigh Township on Nov. 16. It is the first claim in several months.

Little Lake Main Took 3 Weeks To Flush Clean

The concluding detail of the Utilities job of laying a 12-inch main across the river at Burnham's Point to increase Ashburnham water pressure was a flushing-out of the pipes. The job required nearly three weeks.

In order to lower the pipes down to Little Lake bed, they had to be filled with water. They became polluted with the river water. R. L. Dobbin, manager, related today that "ordinary flushing was not effective enough to get rid of persistent and remaining spots of contamination. We had to use three doses of concentrated chlorine before we were satisfied to let the city water flow through the connection."

Mr. Dobbin explained that the flushings were discharged into the river.

'We have got the job done, but we may not know its full effect until next summer when the use of water climbs up to its seasonal peak. The main was laid across the river at McDonald's Point to raise Ashburnham pressure. We had complaints from the Western Clock Co. of weakness at the taps, and the company reminded the council and the Commission of the assurance of adequate water service, including fire protection.

"The worst reports were of summer conditions, and it was to meet those extremes of demand that we put in the 12-inch main across the river."

Mr. Dobbin said that when the same amount of demand returned, the operation at the river crossing would be put to full practical test.

65 Boys Registered In New Boxing Club

There are now 65 registered members of the boxing club sponsored by the Recreation Commissions, Jack Dane, recreation director, told the commissioners Tuesday.

Membership ranged from boys aged 12 to men of 35 and weights were between 85 and 200 pounds.

The club meets three nights a week in Ashburnham Hall and has planned a program of display bouts to be presented sometime before Christmas.

Ask Scout Troop To Vacate Northend House

Parkhill Boy Scout troop is to be asked by the Recreation Commission to vacate Dixon House, which has been used as the troop's winter headquarters for the past three years.

The Commission instructed Jack Dane, recreation director, to notify the Scout district commissioner that the troop is asked to leave the building because the boys have persisted in causing a nuisance.

Mr. Dane said at a meeting of the Recreation Commission on Tuesday that in spite of repeated requests to the Scouts to take greater care of the building, they had continued to make marks on the polished hardwood floor and act in such a way as to make the upkeep of the building increasingly difficult.

The boys had been requested to take off their rubber boots before going into the room, but they had failed to do so, Mr. Dane said. They took a delight on sliding on the floor while wearing boots and made marks which were almost impossible to remove.

From time to time lights had been left on, doors which should be left open had been locked and in one instance a lock was forced, the director said.

The Recreation Commission had been promised from time to time that the Scouts would give greater consideration to the welfare of the building, but the promise had not been fulfilled.

Nursery School Has Class Of 20 In Morning

The Recreation Commission's nursery school which opened at Dixon House last week, already has a waiting list of children unable to be accommodated in the morning class, Wilfrid Langan told the Commissioners Tuesday.

A capacity class of 20 youngsters between the ages of three and five are attending every morning but the afternoon class has not yet reached capacity.

Mr. Langan reported that favorable comments on the work of Miss Wyatt and Miss Stuart, in charge of the school, had been made by a number of parents.

Writer In Hospital

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23 (CP) —Craig Rice, 41-year-old mystery story writer, Tuesday was committed for an indefinite term in a state hospital on an alcoholism petition signed by her daughter. At the hearing in Psychopathic Court the daughter, Mrs. Nancy Atwill, testified that Miss Rice had used liquor to excess for four or five years and needs institutional care.

To Be Decorated

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP) — When Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson pins a Distinguished Flying Cross next week on John Ogle, ex-Flt. Lt. Ogle will be sitting in a wheelchair, but it's not because of war injuries. Ogle, who retired in 1945 after 33 sorties over the Ruhr as a tail-gunner in Lancasters and Halifax bombers, went back to the Toronto police force as acting detective. He was stricken with poliomyelitis last September but is almost recovered.

Party Lines Split As Senate Debates DST

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP) — Party lines were split in the Senate Tuesday as members argued fast time versus "God's time." It was one of the liveliest discussions this year in the Upper Chamber.

The Senators debated the topic for two hours. Fifteen speakers, mostly farmers and representing all parts of Canada, had their say. Eleven opposed daylight saving; four expressed approval.

Senator W. D. Euler, (L-Ontario), whose persistence got the Supreme Court to rule on the legalization of the sale and manufacture of margarine, initiated the discussion. He moved a motion to make daylight saving time compulsory and uniform throughout Canada for periods specified by the government. He insisted, too, that the railways should follow suit.

The motion carried no legislative weight and was merely an "expression of opinion" of the Senate. However, as a matter of form it was declared carried without a vote.

Senator Euler said the principle of daylight time seemed to be that an hour of daylight is preferable to an hour of darkness. This was generally accepted, but the present system, with railways and various communities on different times at different times of the year, caused "inconvenience, confusion and chaotic conditions."

Emphasize Problem

The railways made the problem even more onerous since they did not conform to daylight time, even in the summer.

Daylight time had "come to stay" and should be made uniform. He recalled that the government had passed a bill to make it uniform in 1918, but the bill had lapsed the following year and was never renewed. He suggested the government bring a bill next session to bring this into effect.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC-Saskatchewan), farmer, led off a list of speakers who opposed daylight time. He sympathized with the objection to the confusion caused, but felt the answer was to stick with standard time. Daylight time had never worked with farmers and last year the province of Alberta had outlawed it entirely.

Senator Norman Lambert (L-Ontario) described himself as a farmer. He had some sympathy with urban dwellers, factory workers and baseball fans, but he felt it would be an eternal issue between "town and country" and would continue to be insoluble. He insisted on being "governed by nature." Cows could only be milked at certain time of day. The birds and poultry woke up by the sun and not by an artificially-imposed time.

He was supported by Senator W. Rupert Davies (L-Ontario) who said the matter had been "up and down" in Kingston many times. The United Kingdom had uniformity and had maintained it throughout the war, but possibly this was because it was a small country.

He felt Canada should continue the present practice. Farmers did not like daylight time but consideration had to be given others.

Mr. Davies said he had much sympathy with the motion and favored daylight time in towns and cities. He felt the motion, however, was "impractical."

He wondered if United States railways planned to change from standard to daylight time. If Canada changed and U. S. lines did not, there would be "great confusion" for border travellers.

Canada, he said, should continue the present practice.

Business Good Third Baby Born In Plane

STORNOWAY, Scotland, Nov. 23 (AP)—A boy was born Tuesday night in an airplane speeding his mother over the barren outer Hebrides Islands to a hospital. He was the third infant born in a plane over the Atlantic in the last 35 days.

He was delivered in the poorly-lighted cabin of the plane. His mother is Mrs. Margaret MacLellan of Loch Caran, on the island of South Uist off the northwest coast of Scotland. His father died four weeks ago.

A Nurse Docherty, who delivered the child, said "we had no facilities—not even hot water—but we managed somehow without much dificulty."

Hospital officials said both mother and son were "quite comfortable." The boy's weight was not given.

On Oct. 16 Mrs. Darinka Parker, 20, wife of a United States Air Force sergeant, gave birth to a four-pound boy in an American Overseas Airlines plane shortly before reaching Shannon airport in Ireland.

Last Wednesday a girl was born to Mrs. Leokadia Rolbiecki, Polish displaced person, on board a Scandinavian Airlines plane en route from Prestwick, Scotland, to New York.

Delay Subway Strike Till Conference Held

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP)—A threatened strike of workers on Toronto's rapid transit subway, now under construction, was called off temporarily Tuesday after a representative of the General Truck Drivers Union (AFL) conferred with Mayor Hiram McCallum.

The union spokesman said the strike, to have been launched Tuesday, will be held in abeyance pending outcome of a meeting today between the mayor, the general contractor, Toronto Transportation Commission members and union representatives.

William Mills, union president, said Monday night a strike would be called because contractors refused to deal with the union and did not pay prevailing rates for trucks.

Given RCMP Promotion

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP) — Promotion of Superintendent Josephat Brunet, officer commanding the RCMP at Montreal, to the rank of Acting Assistant Commissioner, was announced on Tuesday night by RCMP headquarters. Date of the promotion was made retroactive to Nov. 15. He will remain in charge of the Quebec division.

Dismisses Theft Case

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP) — Magistrate F. C. Cullen ruled Tuesday that a man who takes money from his wife can't be charged with theft unless the couple were legally separated. He dismissed a theft count against John Tunstead, 45, whose wife had complained he stole her purse and $36 when he returned home after a month's absence.

Gets Second Remand

CALGARY, Nov. 23—(CP) — William Lee Wallace, charged with the beer-bottle murder of Yvonne Levesque, 24, in an auto cabin here Aug 11, was remanded Tuesday for eight days. It was the second remand request by the Crown since Wallace was returned here Nov. 13 from Detroit where police said he confessed to killing the young woman during an attempted robbery.

Strain On Relations

LONDON, Nov. 23—(CP) — A strain on Anglo-Canadian trade relationships is predicted Tuesday in a long editorial review by the Financial Times. Cuts in British purchases from Canada without a sharp increase in exports to the dominion, the newspaper says, would be ineffective steps toward bridging the dollar gap. Falling with disproportionate severity on some Canadian industries, they only jeopardized relationships.

Launch Protest

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP) — J. S. Stauffer, president of the Property Owners' Association of Toronto, Tuesday lodged an official protest against the city's action in making representations to the federal government against the new federal rent regulations. Present rents are uneconomic and encourage properties to deteriorate and become liable for tax seizure, he contended.

Only Civil Marriages

PRAGUE, Nov. 23—(AP)—The Communist government Tuesday approved a new marriage law and family code which decrees that church marriages will not be legally recognized in Czechoslovakia after Jan. 1. The law provides that only civil ceremonies performed before the National Committee (local governing bodies) will be legal. Church ceremonies may be held afterward but they will have no legal basis.

Made minister of public works in 1942, he frequently acts as House leader of the Liberals in the absence of Prime Minister St. Laurent. He was born March 24, 1893, at Methuen, Mass.

Eleanor Powell Sets Feet Tapping Again

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23 (AP)—Sounds of tapping feet are again coming from the Eleanor Powell bungalow, long a landmark at M.G.M. studios.

The boards are once more groaning under the onslaught of the long-stemmed tapster. Miss Powell has returned to the studio where she once reigned as a musical queen. She was away seven years, during most of which she was merely Mrs. Glenn Ford, wife of the Quebec-born star.

Thus begins another chapter in the career of the Springfield, Mass., dancer who has travelled from ballet to be-bop.

"I studied ballet for 13 years," she recalled, "to me ballet was everything. But then I tried out on Broadway before such producers as George White, Flo Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll. 'Very nice' they said, 'but can she tap.'

"So I invested $35 on 10 tap lessons. Those were the only lessons I've ever had and I've been tapping ever since."

In A Rut

After starring in many Broadway shows, she came to Hollywood in 1935 and repeated her success in films. After several years of hits, she found herself in a rut."

She left M.G.M. in 1942. She did one outside film, "Sensations Of 1945," but it turned out not to be.

One night the Fords were out socially with the Joe Pasternaks when the producer suggested a film return for Eleanor. She laughed it off and forgot about it. But Pasternak persisted. He conquered her fear of returning to the old haunts and signed her to appear in "Duchess of Idaho."

"It's just a brief appearance in the picture," she said, "but it's handled very well. Van Johnson introduces me at a night club Then he looks right at the movie audience and says, 'would you like to see Eleanor Powell dance again?'

"The audience's reaction to that will determine whether or not I do any more pictures."

Dutch Invite Canadians Too

MONTREAL, Nov. 23 —(CP)—Canadians have been placed on the same basis as British next-of-kin regarding visits to war cemeteries in Holland, J. Hogenkamp of Montreal, representatives in Canada for the Netherlands war Graves Committee, said Tuesday.

Mr. Hogenkamp said that from the time of arrival at any port in Holland until the return to that port, next-of-kin may visit graves as guests of the Netherlands committee. The committee will be responsible for costs of the trip to and from the cemetery and for expenses incurred during a three-day visit.

Notification regarding trips should be sent the British Legion in London, England, who will make arrangements through the Netherlands committee, said Mr Hogenkamp, but it is also possible to make direct arrangements with the general seecretariat, Netherlands War Graves Committee, 442 Keizersgracht, Amsterdam.

Kennedy challenge trophy donated by the Ontario minister of agriculture. The Guineas were originally donated by King Edward VII when he was Prince of Wales.

Looking After Big Group Of Murderers In Britain

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Nov. 23—(CP)—Around 7.30 every morning Harry Willett takes off his jacket, picks up a brush and sets about valeting the ripest collection of scoundrels ever assembled under one roof. He gently runs a comb through the raven hair of Dr. Buck Ruxton, adjusts the set of Neville Heath's tie, smooths down the pocket flaps of John George Haigh's jacket and polishes the spectacles on Dr. H. H. Crippen—just a few of Britain's most notorious murderers.

As custodian of the Chamber of Horrors at Madam Tussaud's famous waxworks, Harry has been doing much the same job for nearly 50 years. First thing in the morning and last thing at night he visits all his charges and makes them as presentable as possible.

First he calls on Haigh, one of the latest additions to the chamber, since he was executed only a few months ago for the murder of an elderly woman.

"We usually reckon that a new murderer in the chamber is worth an extra 30,000 visitors in the course of a year." Harry said. "Haigh has brought us 80,000 since his execution."

In Select Group

In a neat grey suit and flamboyant tie Haigh stands near the entrance in a small, select group of murderers that includes Health, Cruxton, Crippen and a sinister-looking Frenchman named Marcel Petiot, who was guillotined in 1946.

"Petiot is supposed to have killed 63 people during the war," Harry continued, "and they say he made £200,000 ($620,000) out of his work, but he's not what I call really popular with visitors. Too continental, perhaps."

Least popular among visitors to the Chamber of Horrors, it seems, are Hitler, Mussolini and one or two other wartime figures.

"No one cares much for that lot," said Harry disdainfully.

When the gallery opens for the day, Harry moves into a box office near the entrance and takes the money from customers as they go in.

"I've been doing this job so long I almost feel as if the exhibits belonged to me," said Harry, who in his time has admitted more than 15,000,000 visitors.

Ask Centralized Plan For Licensing Resorts

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP) — The Ontario Tourist Court Association, in annual meeting here, Tuesday adopted a resolution asking the Provincial Government to set up a centralized system of licensing resort owners.

Under the present system, granting of licences is left to the discretion of the municipality. The resolution also urged that full-time provincial inspectors carry on inspection of tourist accommodation for health and safety requirements.

In another resolution, the OTCA urged that Labor Day be observed on the third, instead of first, Monday in September in order to lengthen the tourist season.

Britain Keeps Her Share Of Good Methods

By FORBES RHUDE.
Canadian Press Business Editor.

A lot of people are trying to decide whether or not Britain can come through in her quite difficult post-war position.

If you wish to get discouraged about it, you can think of Britain as an island off the coast of Europe which has finally come to the place of being just that.

If you wish to be optimistic, you can think of Britain as the place with nearly the most industrial know-how on the face of the earth; and on an earth which needs the products of the relatively few countries with such industrial know-how.

A recent "Bulletin for Industry" issued by the United Kingdom Information Office in Ottawa, puts the matter into the hands of commentators within and without Britain, and quotes some of them as follows;

"British manufacturers have not yet begun to tap the huge reservoir of American buying power. It is a very large market. In 1948 its gross national product was $254,000,000,000. Just one per cent of that sum spent on British goods, and the dollar gap can be more than closed."—Paul Hoffman, United States Economic Co-operation Administrator.

"Canada, today, is one of the largest import markets in the world, and offers unparalleled opportunity for absorbing exports."—Trade Minister Howe.

And so the quotes go on.

One Thing In Short Supply Yugoslavia Needs More Men

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

BELGRADE, Nov. 23 (AP)—A wealthy country in raw materials. Yugoslavia suffers from one commodity in short supply—manpower.

It needs muscled men to get out the goods and skilled technicians to process them for use at home and for sale abroad, as much, and perhaps even more, than it needs machinery.

Both problems—men and machinery — stem from Marshal Tito's ambitious five-year plan to balance the country's fruitful agricultural production with industrial development.

The task he and the country have set for themselves has been made doubly difficult by the Moscow-directed cominform's campaign against Yugoslavia.

Border provocations, the cominform economic boycott and Russian propaganda pressure — all of them adding to an uncertain threat of war—have forced Tito to maintain an army of about 800,000 men.

Heavy Drain

In a country with a population of approximately 15,000,000, this represents a heavy drain on the manpower reservoir.

Part of the problem has been met through use of "voluntary" work brigades drawn from factories and farms and universities to push completion of certain priority projects.

These work brigades are building a completely new city of Belgrade at the confluence of the Danube and Sava Rivers with government buildings, apartment houses, shopping centres and schools.

They are laying out a new road between Belgrade and Zagreb, Yugoslavia's second city, which is scheduled for completion late this month. Thousands of army troops are shovelling here also.

Back-Aching Chore

In many ways, all these projects have been a back-aching chore; an expenditure in sweat and toil which could have been cut substantially by a few score more bulldozers, cement mixers and steam shovels.

The Yugoslav authorities recognize all that. But it takes hard cash—or loans—to overcome the difficulty.

The country is approaching a solution from two directions: first, by pushing production with all available manpower and machinery; second, by seeking financial support from the west to increase its mechanical output while decreasing its manpower outlay.

Elected President

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)—T. H. Baulant of Toronto was elected president of the Ontario Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers at its 33rd annual convention which closed here on Tuesday. He succeeds W. G. Toner of Guelph. C. M. Yeates of Guelph was elected a director.

New Health Division

More Home Building

CHATHAM, Nov. 23—(CP)—Officials here connected with administration of the Veterans Land Administration Act said Tuesday that the build-your-own-home movement is spreading. Some of the war veterans even do their own bricklaying, wiring and plumbing, though in most cases sub-contractors do the expert work.

Driver Let Off

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP) — Police had a bit of a chat Tuesday with the driver of a vehicle which struck Mrs. Alice Mayberry, 75, fracturing her wrist. They debated, too, whether he should be charged. They sent him home with a reminder that five-year-olds should be careful with their tricycles.

Opposition Parties Are Lacking Unity As Election Time Nears

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 23—(CP)—With the date of the next general election drawing steadily nearer, Britain's out-of-power parties face a perplexing problem. Like a couple of outfielders straining after the same fly ball, they can't make up their minds whether to stop running, and let the other fellow make the catch, or keep on going and run the risk of a collision.

The baffled fly-chasers are Winston Churchill's Conservatives and the still-haughty remnants of the once-powerful Liberals. Expressed in the simplest terms, the problem is whether either one can lick the ruling Labor party single handed, or whether they should reach some mutual understanding.

Unless some arrangement is reached, many political observers are convinced the Conservatives and Liberals will succeed only in splitting the anti-Socialist vote, thus assuring another term of office for Labor.

In Better Position

The Conservatives appear in a better bargaining position. With some 200 seats in the House of Commons compared with nearly 400 for Labor and 10 for the Liberals, they appear to have a good case in arguing that the election result would be a foregone conclusion if the Liberals came over to their side.

The Tories have been trying for four years to achieve such a coalition on the ground that there really isn't any major difference between the two parties. But the courtship hasn't brought any encouraging response.

As the Independent Sunday Observer wittily remarked, all the Tory advances have run the same sad course—"a snatched kiss in the dark, followed by a loud slap and the fearful howls of outraged vanity."

Why are the Liberals so cocky?

There seem to be two reasons. One is that they still have a traditional distrust of the Tories, whom they regard as reactionaries The second is their claim that Liberalism is the political creed which most closely matches the mood of the British people.

Most neutral observers agree that the Liberals could catch more votes if the people didn't feel that voting for so weak a party would have the same effect as voting for Labor.

But there is a dark side of the moon, even for Labor. As long as the possibility of a Liberal-Tory hookup means, the present rulers cannot afford to relax.

BIGGER AND BETTER — Everything is bigger and better in British Columbia, says George Cruickshank, an irrepressible prankster from Clayburn, B.C., who has represented Fraser Valley in the Commons since 1940. A Liberal and a farmer, Mr. Cruickshank was born Feb. 13, 1897, at Minot, N.D., but settled in the Fraser Valley as a child.

Short Skirts Soon Be Back Paris Hemlines Climbing Up

By FLORENCE MILLS

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP)—It won't be long before the ladies are showing their knees again.

This is a deduction from the current mid-season fashion showings here, where short evening dresses are featured by almost every house, and hemlines are creeping steadily higher.

Captain Molyneux is showing winter suits with slim skirts that reach a bare two inches below the knee. Jackets of these are either tight-waisted and longish or brief and boxy.

Marcel Rochas gives top billing to the short evening dress, favoring those with straight skirts and halter bodices. All are sharply nipped in at the waist, banishing, for the time being at least, fears that the "sack" silhouette of the 1920s may be on the way back.

Rochas introduces a heavy wool jersey shot with metallic threads for many of these brief sheath evening gowns.

Pullover Fur Coats

One of the sensations of the current openings is Schiaparelli's pullover fur coats. These, done in such upper-bracket pelts as mink and baby seal, pull on over the head and have no buttons or fastenings.

She makes a step-in jacket of seal which looks exactly like a middy blouse, and uses mink for a circular-cut pullover with short sleeves.

The eccentric Elsa also introduces "kite" jackets this season, strictly hazardous for wear in a high wind. These have stiffened points that stand out at least two feet from the body back and front. She also shows wide, gaping necklines that sag down in front, often aided by fancy buttons. Her jackets are extremely brief, with side slits to reveal coffer-shaped hip pockets.

Slim Day Dresses

Lanvin shows skirts at modest mid-calf length and likes slim day dresses in pastel wool with discreet drapery and patent-leather belts dipping in back.

You need Betty Grable legs and a colossal amount of nerve to wear some of the daring winter sports fashions created by Paquin this season. Biggest stare-catcher in his winter collection is a skating outfit with fire-engine red wool stockings and a black jersey flared skirt cut so short it barley meets the stocking tops. With it is worn a princess-style black coat and hood lavishly trimmed in white fox fur, lined in red wool to match the stockings.

Jacques Griffe goes all out for buttons this season, using as many as 50 black bone ones on a single suit. He also shows short party dresses with unwieldy crinoline skirts. These have extremely full overskirts made of layers upon layers of net, set over strapless sheaths.

PROOF! THAT BRUSHING TEETH RIGHT AFTER EATING WITH

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM HELPS PREVENT TOOTH DECAY!

Exhaustive Research by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using COLGATE DENTAL CREAM Helps Prevent Tooth Decay!

NOW dental science offers proof that always brushing teeth with Colgate right after eating helps prevent tooth decay. Proof—based on hundreds of case histories, two years of continuous research at leading universities—the most conclusive proof in all dentifrice research on tooth decay.

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate right after eating was a startling reduction in number of new cavities—far less tooth decay! The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

Modern research shows tooth decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals or snacks. When you brush your teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating, you help remove acids before they can harm enamel. And Colgate's penetrating foam reaches crevices in teeth where food particles often lodge.

THE MOST CONCLUSIVE PROOF IN ALL DENTIFRICE RESEARCH ON TOOTH DECAY

The Colgate now at your dealer's is the same formula used in the tests. Colgate contains all the necessary ingredients, including an exclusive patented ingredient, for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums! And no change in flavor, or foam—and no change in cleansing action.

No claim is made that using Colgate can stop all tooth decay, or help cavities already started. But brushing teeth right after eating is the proved way to help prevent tooth decay with Colgate Dental Cream.

NO OTHER DENTIFRICE OFFERS PROOF OF THESE RESULTS

Bailey-Hopcroft Wedding

St. John's Anglican Church was setting for a lovely wedding on Saturday afternoon of Beverley Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hopcroft of Peterborough, to Owen Ivan Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bailey of Milton. Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson performed the ceremony.

White 'mums and ferns were at the altar and the wedding music was played by Mr. F. G. Mann. During the signing of the register the choir boys sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father the bride was in white slipper satin gown with long train edged with Chantilly lace and trimmed with a lace peplum. The skirt was caught up at the front to show tiers of lace bordering the underskirt. Her vail of tulle illusion was edged with a wide band of the same lace and caught to a white satin bonnet that was trimmed with scattered seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red Bettertime roses.

Attending the bride were her sister Mrs. Ken Nesbitt gowned in Marquis mauve velvet, her sister-in-law Mrs. Gerald Hopcroft in burgundy velvet, and her young sister Karen Hopcroft whose gown was of laurel green velvet. Each wore a headdress and mittens of the same material as her dress. Mrs. Nesbitt and Mrs. Hopcroft had bouquets of bronze 'mums and Miss Hopcroft carried yellow 'mums.

The groomsman was the bride's brother, Mr. James Hopcroft. Ushers were Ken and Jim Bailey, brothers of the groom from Milton.

The reception following was at the bride's home where about 80 guests gathered. Mrs. Hopcroft received in a gown of grey slipper satin and lace with which she wore navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother was gowned in navy and ware green accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was lovely with clouds of pink tulle dotted with mauve pansies and tiny silver slippers. Talisman rosebuds decorated the cake. Friends of the bride assisting to serve were Misses Marion Smith and Shirley Andrus.

When leaving later on a wedding trip to Ottawa and points east the bride was wearing a grey dress and accessories and a royal blue coat and hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will live at 704 Armour Rd.

Put Resolutions Into Action Women See Frost

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP) — Premier Frost Tuesday received a deputation from the Provincial Council of Women who formally presented a request that a woman be named to the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

The request originally was raised at a mass meeting of women in Massey Hall here Nov. 3.

Tuesday's delegation, headed by Mrs. James Roberts of Ancaster, near Hamilton, also asked the government to appoint a special body to study and review the whole question of the terms and operation of legislation governing sale and use of spirits.

Earlier the delegate met with Education Minister Dana Porter who was urged to inaugurate a course of study on alcohol and its effects in the schools.

During dinner Wattie McNee, one of the founder members of No. 6 District Kiwanis Club, which includes Peterborough, presented 28 roses, symbolizing the 28 years, to Mrs. W. A. Richardson, wife of the Club's Lt. Governor elect.

Ted Pridham of Toronto, immediate past president of the Peterborough club, was chairman.

Miss Helen Hajnik of Peterborough and Albert Marston, Toronto, sang to the accompaniment of Stanley Northrop.

During the dancing the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bastable was announced.

Head table guests were Vincent McCabe, president and past presidents and their ladies: Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Richardson, Mr and Mrs. John McKone, Mr. and Mrs. M. Sewing Classes Send Garments To Red Cross

Regular meeting of Peterborough branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held at the Red Cross rooms Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. C. J. Ray presiding. Since the December meeting would come on the Tuesday prior to Christmas, it was agreed that the next meeting will be held in January.

The Women's Work Committee will start a sewing group on Monday, November 28, at the Red Cross rooms. This group expressed gratitude to Miss Helen Gerrard and sewing class pupils at the Collegiate for beautifully made garments received from them this week.

Mrs. J. Sharp reporting for home nursing said the classes are well attended. Dr. R. A. Kelly gave an interesting lecture Monday evening. Last lecture in first aid was given Tuesday evening by Dr. D. Whyte and examinations will be held next week.

In co-operation with the first aid group of disaster relief six owners of panel trucks have offered the use of these trucks to form an ambulance brigade in case of emergency.

It was reported that up to October 31, Red Cross blood donors had given 777 donations this year. In future a blood bank is to be maintained at each of the Peterborough hospitals and it will be replenished by donations taken Tuesday afternoons at Civic Hospital and Friday afternoons at St. Joseph's Hospital. This should mean that donors can make an appointment for either of these days rather than accept emergency calls at inconvenient times.

Reports of visiting, junior Red Cross and loan cupboard conveners were also given.

Members were encouraged to attend the meeting of Community Welfare Council on November 29. Mrs. Ray was appointed Red Cross representative to the Community Chest.

WI Wins Award

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP)—Mrs. Sanford Aikins of Creemore, Ont., Tuesday told the Ontario Women's Institutes convention that historical research at last is coming into its own. "The present can only be interpreted in terms of the past," she said.

Nearly every one of the 1,426 Ontario institute branches has compiled one of its own Tweedsmuir histories, a recording of the early days of the community, a movement initiated some years ago by Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the then Governor-General of Canada.

For this work the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada has been presented with an award of merit by the American Association for local and state history, the Ontario convention was told.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Woman's Spinster Sisters Seek To Be Back-Seat Wives

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have two single sisters, business women, who constantly harp about my husband's neglect of me, and my being a slave to him and my children until I could scream. My husband is everything that is fine and solid and dependable. He gives my sisters the use of our home with all its privileges as though it was theirs, yet they are always criticizing him. When he returns from a hard day at the office he must not sit down and take his ease. He must sit up as if he were entertaining company, or take me out somewhere. The children must watch their steps as to manners and speech. Sometimes they become so unbearable in their strictures we must go out visiting to get away from their bickering. If my husband suits me, what business is it of theirs?

MRS. J. M.

✣ ✣ ✣

ANSWER: None whatever, and my earnest advice to you is to stifen up your backbone and tell them so. Also, while you are telling them that the theory of how to be happy though married is one thing and the reality of it something quite different, and that a spinster is no more fitted to give advice concerning the holy estate than a landlubber is to pilot a ship across an unknown sea.

Wasting Their Pity

Tell them, to begin with, that they are wasting their pity upon you, and that in the domestic slavery they so much deplore you are finding your greatest happiness. Perhaps you do have to work about fourteen hours a day, but it is labor that is more interesting and exciting to you than any other occupation on earth Perhaps the four walls of your home do bound your universe, but it is a tight little Paradise for you.

Everything in life depends on the point of view. A home is a jail or the dearest spot on earth. Working to support a family and making a husband or wife comfortable and happy is the most worthwhile work in the world, or an insupportable burden. Children are tiresome brats, or adorable angels. Sitting by the fire with husband or wife of an evening is a pleasure or a bore just as you find it, and just as you feel about it. We take out of marriage just what we put into it.

And so your unmarried sisters, who see in you only a woman who is, as the phrase goes, "tied down by her husband and children" and who has to work, and who can't get around of an evening or have as many clothes as they do, feel sorry for you, and they don't know that you are having a better time than they are, and that you are secretly extending your sympathy to them.

✣ ✣ ✣

DEAR MISS DIX: You ignore the question to legal and financial responsibility when you advocate woman's right to propose. What does a proposal from a woman consist of? Simply an iron-bound request that a man will assume all the legal and financial responsibilities of a marriage for ever and ever. How can a man who has 2 cents' worth of brains not wander if he is not simply being roped in and tied to the millstone for the rest of his days when a woman proposes?

MONTREAL

ANSWER: Well said, but you ignore the fact that even if woman had the right to propose, man would still be a free agent in the matter and have the right to refuse. The woman couldn't drag him to the altar against his will, and if the lady didn't appeal to him and if her proposition didn't look good to him, all he would have to do would be to say: "Why, Miss Smith, this so sudden. I never dreamed you felt about me like that, but while I like you very much I don't love you and I can only be a brother to you."

You seem to think that a wife is a terrible financial burden on her husband. This is not always the case. Many women keep on with their jobs after marriage and are often better money-earners than their husbands.

And surely you must admit that even the domestic woman, who cooks and cleans and scrubs and mends and makes a man a comfortable home and rears his children properly, earns her board and keep. Every widower finds out after his wife dies that it takes about all he makes to pay the salaries of housekeeper and nurse and seamstress and laundress and charwoman to do the work that she did.

So you see there is no real reason why women proposing should work any hardships on men. Nor need they dread it. Being courted is really a most pleasant experience.

✣ ✣ ✣

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What are the duties of a doctor's wife?

MRS. A. B. C.

ANSWER: Primarily, the same as the duties of any other man's wife. These, I conceive, are for her to be good-natured and companionable; to be a good sport and take whatever comes; to be a good housekeeper and make a comfortable home.

In addition to these, the chief duty of a doctor's wife is to put an extinguisher on her jealousy A great many doctor's wives are so greeneyed that they imagine that every woman who consults their husband is in love with him. It is also the duty of a doctor's wife to suppress her curiosity and to keep her tongue between her teeth.

Without doubt, a doctor's wife can do much to enhance for forhe must necessarily leave her tune by making friends for him. all by not badgering him because But perhaps she can do most of much alone.

Polish Refugee Women Designing Accessories

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 23 — (CP) — "Little Warsaw,' as London's Earls Court district is called by its residents, can vie with Paris and New York in the design and quality of its fashion accessories

Its fame began about a year ago when some disabled Polish war veterans banded together under the leadership of Mrs. Bogna Szymanska, a fellow-countrywoman.

With her flair for design, she patterns all the latest fashion whims and the veterans turn out top-rate hand-made accessories at well below most retail prices.

There are bags, gloves, shoes, belts, slippers and other leather goods. Also produced are handwoven materials, woodware and fancy jewelry.

Everything is individually designed and anything can be made to order to customers' requirements. Example? Red snakeskin bag, gloves, shoes, and belt to match would work out at less than £20 ($62) for a completely hand-made set.

More than 100 belt designs and dozens of novel handbags similar to recent Paris designs were shown at a recent exhibition and sale of work by War Disabled Ex-Servicemen—an organization whose patrons are the King and Queen.

"Because we have no overhead expenses and are able to buy up odd sackloads of leather and skins, our prices can be kept much lower than those of the average manufacturer," says Mrs Szymanska, who sells the goods in her tiny shop.

Shop Space Free

This little shop, with a window on Brompton Road, Knightsbridge, is a corner of the famous Lord Roberts Workshops. The workshops provide accommodation, free of charge, for shops selling goods made by all disabled ex-servicemen.

Twenty-six-year-old Mrs Szymanska, a Polish refugee who left Paris one day ahead of the German invasion, spent the rest of the war in Britain, raising a family and attending Cambridge University. Already an economist and political science graduate in Paris, it was her intention to fit herself for diplomatic service in her own country.

When the end of the war brought this plan no nearer possibility, Mrs. Szymanska started fashion designing. It was in this work that the plight of the disabled Polish veterans came to her notice.

She is now a voluntary, unpaid worker on their half and a happy and busy woman. Her dearest wish is to find sufficient market for her goods to keep the men working the year round. She is now trying to export their production to North America.

A new line which was started for a United States buyer is an exquisite selection of tiny dolls from the fairy tales. There is everything from gnomes and leprechauns to Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Cinderella and the Wicked Sisters.

The dolls are made in chamois leather with special stuffing and paint to give an appearance of a rough, realistically-tinted clay They are dressed with intricate precision in detail, and prices range from 12 shillings ($1.85) to 30 shillings ($4.65).

Pakistan Family Finds New Home Full of Wonders

OTTAWA, —(CP)—She is so eager to find out more about Canada, that the Begum Mohammed ali has quite forgotten to be lonely for her far away homeland.

"I have much to learn about your country." The tiny, dark-haired wife of Pakistan's high commissioner to Canada spread her arms to indicate the amount. "There are so many things that are new to me."

To date this quiet-spoken, but enthusiastic young woman hasn't done badly. In the few weeks since she accompanied her husband to his new appointment in Ottawa, the Begum has done a bit of travelling—chiefly in south western Ontario and to Niagara Falls, which, she exclaims, is one of the finest sights she has ever come across.

In addition she has seen some football and hockey, and has come to the conclusion that she prefers the latter.

"It is fast," she said. Her brown eyes sparkled as she recalled how "very exciting she had found her first hockey game.

Canadian football was not at all like football played in Pakistan. "What you call 'soccer' is more like our football," she explained.

The interview with the high commissioner's wife took place in the pleasant drawing-room of the Pakistan residence in suburban Rockcliffe, a room furnished in bright colors and along modern lines. Distance and difficulty of travel has not made it feasible for Mrs. Ali to bring many of her own furnishings to this coutry.

Home Is Colorful

Yellow curtains create an effect of sunshine in this room, even in the dullest weather. The carpet is of soft green—the Begum's favorite shade, not necessarily because it is the Pakistan color, but because it has so many beautiful tones.

The conversation turned to the Canadian climate and Mrs. Ali recalled how surprised she was upon arriving here last summer to find the weather exactly as it was at home.

But temperatures in Pakistan don't drop below 45 degrees at any time during the winter, and she is prepared for a colder season in Canada. In fact she is even looking forward to it with interest.

However, not any more so than her two young sons, 11-year-old Hammad, and nine-year-old Hamde.

"Early every morning they come running to me and ask 'mummy, will there be any snow today?' " She laughed. "You know they have never seen snow before, and they are looking forward to it."

The boys are rapidly falling into Canadian ways. They attend Ashbury College, a boys' private school in Ottawa, and already have picked up several new games. Both have cowboy suits and are learning to "twirl" their toy guns, western style.

The Begum raised her hands from the folds of the pastel-toned sari she wore, and attempted to imitate their motion. "It seems a very popular game in your country—this game of cowboys," she said.

WomanUrges Peace Flag For World Friendship

By O. H. P. KING

TOKYO, —(CP)—A little woman with a big idea is plodding around the world to see if she can make the idea grow even bigger.

Lady Butterfield of Keighley, England, lately has been here with her idea for an International Friendship flag. The purpose behind the flag is international friendship in a quarrelsome world.

The selfless, self-appointed, self-financed woman ambassador of friendship was born Hilda Johnston 66 years ago in Milwaukee, Wisconsin where she maintains a home. Her husband, Sir Frederick Butterfield, died in 1943.

"Hitler took only 10 years to educate the youth of Germany for war," she said in an interview. "I am calling on the ministers of education throughout the world suggesting youth be educated for peace."

She has had response from about 40 nations to date, she said She hasn't heard yet from Russia, where she said school children were to vote on whether they would participate.

"The friendship flag plan is in different stages of development in 34 countries." Lady Butterfield said, "and in six it already is working in the schools."

The design of the flag will be chosen from those submitted by school children of the world to judges provided by the United Nations Educational Scientific and cultural Organization.

Lady Butterfield, who set out on her mission 18 months ago said she had found the Netherlands, Belgium, France, Italy South Africa, Australia, Singapore, Siam, Hong Kong and China co-operative.

After visiting occupation and Japanese educational officials here she will go on to Ceylon and the Middle East before returning to the United States.

In addition to the flag, the children are designing friendship stamps. The winner will tour the world and personally present a friendship flag to the head of each nation, Lady Butterfield said.

Friendship letters will be encouraged between children of different nations.

"Peace is in the hands of educationists," she declared. "The statesmen have struggled for peace, made treaties, economic plans and pacts, but they have not marshalled the greatest power for peace in the world—the youth. Politicians could not bring about war if the youth were educated with proper international vision.

Lady Butterfield displayed letters from ministers of education of a half-dozen countries praising her friendship plan and promising co-operation.

She plans to return to the United States next year and visit the heads of departments of education in each of the 48 states.

Bridges' Lawyer Given 6 Months

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23 — (AP)—With Harry Bridges taking a back seat during his perjury trial, the Longshoremen Union leader's lawyer Tuesday was sentenced to six months in jail for criminal contempt of court.

The lawyer just missed having to go to jail immediately.

Federal Judge George B. Harris imposed the jail sentence on counsel Vincent Hallinan after a bitter, scathing excoriation, the like of which probably never had been paralleled in local federal court history.

The judge ordered the colorful and stormy figure of the San Francisco bar taken into custody immediately. But he later relented and granted a stay to permit Hallinan to continue to represent Bridges for the duration of the trial.

Bridges, 48, a naturalized Australian, is head of the left-wing CIO Longshore Union. He is charged with falsely swearing at his 1945 naturalization hearing that he never had been a Communist. He and two union aides, J. R. Robertson and Henry Schmidt, are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government.

U.S. Blocks Reds On Shipments

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP) —During a three-month period, the commerce department says, it blocked efforts by Communist-controlled countries to slip some $5,000,000 worth of strategic goods out of the United States.

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer reported that Tuesday to President Truman and Congress in a report on export control activities from July through September.

Sawyer didn't amplify the statement, but other officials said attempts were made to evade U.S. regulations by first shipping the strategic goods to non-Communist countries, then re-shipping them to members of the Soviet bloc.

The materials included chemicals used for making explosives, certain electrical machinery, rubber products, aviation gasoline and other critical products.

Plan Plane Transport To Carry 400 Men

FORT WORTH, Tex. Nov. 23 (AP)—The company that builds the mighty B-36 bomber said today it has designed a transport that could carry 100,000 pounds or 400 armed men from the east coast to western Europe without straining a rivet.

Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation said it has submitted its production design to the United States air force.

Thehuge, six-engined transport would be called the C-99. It could haul bigger loads in both size and weight than any other aircraft now made or known to be planned.

Destroyed By Fire House Now Rebuilt

It was intimated in Oshawa on Tuesday that Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O'Connor and children will move into a partially-completed home in that city. It replaces their original house that was burned three weeks ago and has been built by voluntary labor of UAW, Local 222 members. Mr. O'Connor, a member of the union, has ben advised the O'Connor Fire Fund passed the $1,000 mark on Tuesday.

Mr. O'Connor and children have been staying with her mother in Peterborough.

Crushed By Piano

TRUFANT, Mich., Nov. 23 — (AP)—Three little girls accidentally tipped over a piano during a school play period Tuesday and it crushed one of them to death. The victim was Barbara Jean Newell, 8, a third-grade pupil.

ALASKA TO MAINE VIA DOGSLED—Off on a 5,000-mile dog-sled trek, from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Lewiston, Me., is letter-carrier Cecil A. Moore, right. Fairbanks postmaster Maude H. Boyle, left, gives Moore one of 12,000 letters bearing a special Alaska commemorative stamp, which he plans to mail back from Maine. Along the way, Moore will pick up cacheted envelopes from 25 cities, which will be sold in an effort to raise a $200,000 fund for underprivileged children.

BNA Recognizes Canada Nation In Own Right

LONDON, Nov. 23 (CP)—The British North America Bill now before parliament "recognizes once and for all that Canada is a nation in her own right, free to take her proper place in the world," the News Chronicle Observer editorially today.

The newspaper says the bill, which enables the Dominion parliament to amend the Canadian constitution without reference to Britain's parliament, represents only "a tidying up of a formal relationship between the Commonwealth and Great Britain." It could have been cleared up any time during the last three decades by Canada "and no finger could or would have been raised in this country to hold her back."

Canada's accession to her "proper place" in the world is "certainly what all good Canadians desire," the paper comments. "And they know they have the support and good wishes of the British people, now as always in the past."

The bill, which received third reading in the Lords Tuesday, must be approved three times by the Commons before receiving royal assent.

(In Ottawa, Prime Minister St. Laurent marked the Lords' action with the hope that "by the end of 1950 Canada will have assumed all the attributes and all the responsibility of full nationhood."

(With the passage of the new act, the "last traces of colonial status" would disappear, provided federal and provincial governments agreed on methods of amending the constitution on matters affecting both of them.)

Knuckle Duster Carrier Fined

Found guilty of carrying concealed knuckle dusters considered offensive weapons, Norman Howard, 19, 144 London St., was fined $15 and costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

The charge was laid as a result of a complaint received by police from a downtown restaurant about 4 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 6. A group of boys were said to be causing a disturbance.

When Howard was arrested with the others, Sergeant Leo Murphy testified, he was wearing one knuckleduster and had another in his pocket.

Three of the others were charged with vagrancy and found not guilty in trials earlier. Gerard Clancy, 21, 200 Antrim St., was charged with carrying a concealed knife with intent to do injury and was found not guilty. Howard was also found not guilty at the same time of a charge of carrying knuckle dusters with intent to do injury. The crown later laid the second charge.

Howard said he was wearing the ring-like piece of metal as an ornament and it was used for putting tips on pool cues. "They sell bigger rings than that," he declared.

In passing sentence, the magistrate pointed out the maximum was $100 or a three months' jail sentence.

Hearing Case Of Obscene Book

BRANTFORD, Nov. 23 (CP)—After an all-day hearing Tuesday, "The Amboy Dukes" case involving two charges of exposing for sale an obscene book was adjourned to this afternoon by County Judge D. J. Cowan, with one defence witness to be heard.

Charged are John R. Goodman formerly manager of the Brantford branch of the American News Company and the company itself which has its headquarters in New York. Pleas of not guilty were entered.

Charges followed police seizure here last March of pocket-book editions of the novel.

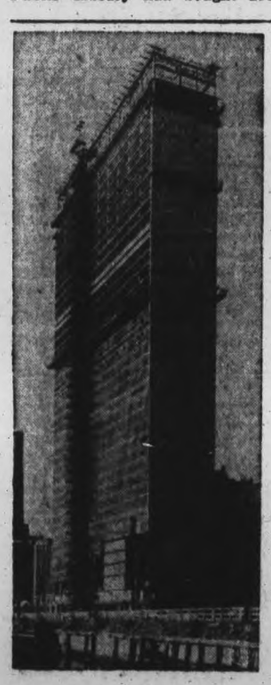
Edwin J. Lukas, executive director of the New York City Society for the Prevention of Crime is expected to be the final defence witness.

Maurice Diamond, vice-president of the Avon Publishing Company of New York, testified for the defence that the Brooklyn Public Library had bought 200 copies of the book last spring.

In earlier Crown evidence, Headmaster W S. Turner of the Brantford Collegiate and Vocational School, called the Amboy Dukes "literary sewage."

Other defence witnesses, were two Toronto newspapermen, James Scott, a literary editor (Toronto Telegram), and J. V. McAree, a columnist (Globe and Mail).

The Amboy Dukes deals with juvenile delinquency, and Mr. Scott said it discussed honestly and frankly a difficult and vicious problem in present-day society. He did not believe the book had tended to deprave the reader, but he knew of no newspaper in Canada which had reviewed it.



UN RISES—The skyscraper home of the United Nations on the east side of Manhattan, New York City, continues to take shape. This is a view of the east wall, which is built entirely of glass windows.

Communist Controlled

Since those pioneer days of industrial trade unionism the right-wing leaders have learned much, the speaker observed. They have read Marxian literature and now look for the next move of their opponents by reading the Moscow-directed "New Times."

By reading this "bible" an observer could have learned the tactics of the UE at the last CIO convention, he maintained. An issue of this publication, just prior to the election, stated the UE would leave the CIO and lead the development of a third trade union organization in the United States. Such an organization would re-establish contact with the World Federation of Trade Unions.

Big Movements Withdraw

The CIO in the United States, the British TUC, and the Canadian Congress of Labor withdrew from it on the grounds it was "Soviet dominated."

Carey said he had been to the Soviet a number of times in past few years. One of his visits had been concurrent with the coup in Czechoslovakia.

"I don't think we on this continent would want the type of unions they have in the Soviet Union. No one in Canada or the United States can conceive of conditions as they exist in the USSR today."

Trade unions in the Soviet exist for no purpose other than to get production.

While in the Soviet he said he saw one strike, but declared it "only a show." It lasted only two hours and was put on for the benefit of the visitors, he said.

In contrast with the Soviet idea of trade unionism he said that of the CIO was "a union free from Communist domination or interference of any sort."

The split between right and left-wing factions in the United States became wide open after the leftists championed the presidency of Henry Wallace.

Wallace was chosen not because the leftists thought he would be successful, but because they wanted to give the workers "the choice between communism and reaction."

"Aim of the Communist leaders was to make it appear democracy cannot work."

Not Superior Contracts

Carey ridiculed UE claims of superior contracts. Average electrical worker's wage in the United States today is $1.358 cents an hour; this compares with $1.65 in steel, and $1.638 in the auto industry.

"On behalf of the CIO let me assure you that no worker will get inferior treatment to what he got from Fitzgerald," he said.

He described the turnout at Brock Street Summer Gardens as "wonderful" and said the growth of the new union was greater than had been anticipated.

"Before the convention is held at the end of this month we will have a report that will startle the labor world," he said.

Tom Fitzpatrick, of Pittsburgh, reiterated a statement of Philip Murray's that there was ample room in the CIO for disagreement but none for Communism. And he pledged the support of the CIO in the struggle for birth of the new union.

Fred Hannah, CCL organizer, pointed to what he considered an important difference in trade union conceptions.

Robert Harrison Buried In Fort Erie

Requiem mass for the late Robert Harrison, of Fort Erie, was celebrated at St. Joseph's Church on Tuesday by the Rev. D. McNamara, and burial was at St. Joseph's Cemetery. Mr. Harrison died in a Hamilton hospital on Saturday following a two-month illness.

Born in South Shields, England, 46 years ago, he was employed as a sander in Fort Erie prior to his illness. He leaves a wife, the former Josephine Bedore, of Peterborough. One son, James, lives in Fort Erie and a brother, Isaac Harrison, in this city. Three other brothers and two sisters live in England.

Trenton Plane Joins Search

SOUTH BAY MOUTH, Ont., Nov. 23 — (CP).— A plane from the Trenton RCAF Station today joined the search for Jack Wolford, a 45-year-old hunter from Windsor, last seen Friday when he walked ashore from a boat at the nearby Wikwemikong Indian Reserve and disappeared into the bush. The plane carried a two-man para-rescue team.

Wolford and three other Windsor men, Eugene Belleperche, Stanley McMangin, and Bruce Williamson, landed at the Manitoulin Island Reserve to make repairs to their boat. Wolford went into the bush during the repair work.

Two boatloads of searchers on Tuesday continued a hunt started during the week-end. Cold weather and choppy water hampered their efforts.

Fellow-employees of Wolford at the Ford automotive plant in Windsor Tuesday contributed $200 for a search fund. Officials of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) also said they would help pay for the search.

Stole Mantel Radio Man Gets Two Months

A two months' sentence was handed out to Auriol Vallee, no fixed address, when he was found guilty or stealing a mantel radio by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

The radio, the property of Michael A. Doherty, was taken from his room in a rooming house at 248 Charlotte St. about three weeks ago.

Harry Adlam, 508 Wolsley St., testified he had been approached by someone by the name of Wilcox and Vallee at an auction sale. He said Vallee had told him he wanted to leave town and would sell him an almost new radio for $8.

He said he went to a Charlotte St. rooming house with the two men to get the radio. He said neither one knew how to turn on the radio or how to disconnect the aerial. He also overheard Wilcox tell Vallee to put the radio under his coat taking it out of the house.

Becoming suspicious, Adlam said he went downstairs ahead of the men and told the landlady about the radio. He then went in search of the radio's owner, but could not locate him. He said when he went back to the auction rooms, he found Vallee with the radio trying to sell it to someone else.

Adlam testified he told Vallee he had better take the radio back and there would not be any trouble. But he said Vallee answered, "It's my radio and I'll do what I want with it."

He said the last he saw of Vallee, he was walking along Hunter St.

50 Ships Driven To Port As Gales, Snow Sweep Across Ontario

Snow Plows Tackle First Blocked Roads In Dufferin County; New Storm Heading For Province Tonight

TORONTO, Nov. 24—(CP)—Great Lakes shipping hugged shelter and snowplows were busy throughout the night in some areas as Ontario today weathered winter's first onslaught. The snowfall ranged from one to five inches and drifted several feet deep by winds that reached 50 miles an hour in the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay regions. The winds dropped as the storm moved eastward, but another disturbance was to move into Ontario later today.

The Government Weather Bureau at Toronto predicted more snow in Western Ontario this afternoon with freezing rain and dangerous driving conditions in the Toronto area tonight

The forecast was for more snow in southwestern Ontario this afternoon, spreading eastward tonight. Wednesday's low temperature was 14 degrees above zero at the lakehead, with the mercury at or below freezing in northern Ontario and just above freezing in London, Toronto and Ottawa. Continued cold was forecast, with temperatures from 15 above in northern Ontario to around 30 degrees in the rest of the province.

One freighter had its anchors fast, weathering the storm with a full crew aboard, at the upper tip of Lake Erie, and a coal barge aground for half an hour in the Detroit River. It was estimated that a total of 50 lake vessels took shelter in various ports Wednesday, three at Kingston, seven at Port Colborne and 40 on the long circuit between Sault Ste. Marie and the lakehead.

Crew On Board

The lake freighter J. P. Wells, about two miles offshore when caught by a storm at Colchester, 25 miles southeast of Windsor, was released early today and towed to dock at Ecorse, Mich., by the tug Atomic.

The freighter became wedged in position Tuesday night by stuck double anchors when she threw anchor offshore as her engines gave trouble. The Atomic reported the freighter had broken propellor blades and other mechanical troubles. Capt. Clyde Tobin and his crew of 18 remained aboard the freighter throughout the rescue.

A few miles farther northwest, off Amherstburg at the mouth of the Detroit River, the coal barge Resolute pulled free early today from where she went aground and proceeded to Detroit without having suffered any damage.

The Ontario Highways Department said its plows were having their main tussle in two districts, one around London and the other in Dufferin County 30 miles northwest of Toronto. The Dufferin County village of Honeywood was isolated for a time Wednesday until plows broke through.

David Lilienthal Resigns Atomic Post

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—David E. Lilienthal, the foe of extreme secrecy on the atom Wednesday resigned as chairman and member of the Atomic Energy Commission—partly, he said, in order to speak out "with a greater latitude."

Lilienthal only last month urged that the United States "stop this senseless business of choking ourselves by some of the extremes of secrecy to which we have been driven."

He urged broader sharing of atomic information with Britain and Canada, in the interest of speedier atomic development.

His appeal did not check a new drive in Congress for atomic security, spurred by the Russian atomic explosions.

Accepted With Regret

President Truman accepted the resignation, effective Dec. 31, with the "utmost regret." He named no successor for the Commission, which holds powers almost unparalleled in Democratic government.

But Truman voiced confidence that "should the exigencies of the public interest demand. Presumably, if a war crisis comes—Lilienthal would stay his departure.

Now 50, Lilienthal sprang into the public eye as chairman of the Tennessee valley authority power project. On Oct. 28, 1946, he was appointed chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. He stayed there three action-packed years, climaxed by last summer's investigation of a charge of "incredible mismanagement" in the A.E.C.

A majority of the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Committee cleared the agency of this accusation, made by Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (rep. Iowa).

Say Unemployed Have Doubled

OTTAWA, Nov 24 — (CP). — Nearly twice as many persons are unemployed as a year ago, a Commons return showed today.

The return, tabled for Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) showed 83,525 persons received unemployment insurance in September and 105,064 in October This compared with 44,761 and 55,384, respectively, for the same two months of 1948.

New applications for unemployment insurance in September totalled 51,935 and in October 69,349. This compared with 28,143 and 38,104 respectively in the same months a year ago.

Man 74 Badly Hurt By Driverless Car

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (CP) — Joseph Demers, 74, is ni serious condition in hospital today after being knocked down Wednesday by a driverless automobile which had just been involved in a collision.

Police say Miriam Anderson was thrown out of her car when it collided with another. Miss Anderson's car went out of control and struck Demers and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Annette Demers, standing at the curb Mrs. Demers also is in hospital suffering from injuries.

Neither driver was injured in the collision.

It's Time To Act

OTTAWA, Nov. 24—(CP)—Dr. C. J. MacKenzie said today he feels the time has come for the government and parliament to decide on Canada's next major step forward in the atomic field. The chairman of the atomic energy control board told a Commons committee he has his own views but can only discuss them at a closed meeting.

Flour Millers Asked To Refund Part Of Profits

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP). — Flour millers were asked to refund some of their excess profits to the government during the war.

Donald Gordon, wartime prices board chairman, suggested this move as a means to counter any possible criticism that the millers were making excess profits at the government's expense

Evidence of this was contained in a two-page document tabled in the Commons Wednesday, along with other memoranda which disclosed that the government had not intended to prosecute industry for wartime practices undertaken at the prices board's request.

The documents were tabled by Justice Minister Garson as he defended the government's 10-month delay in tabling the combines investigation report

Offer Suggestion

The document, dated June 21, 1943, was a memorandum of a talk between C H. G. Short, president of the Flour Millers Association and then a price enforcement officer, and Mr. Gordon.

"As a result of the wheat board's action in stabilizing the cost of wheat for flour millers at 77⅞ cents per bushel, basis No. 1 Northern, Fort William, it appears that the flour millers are obtaining cheap wheat at the expense of the treasury," said the memorandum, signed by D S. Hart, a prices board official.

It continued:

"It is the chairman's desire that the millers should consider seriously refunding to the treasury profits in excess of, say, 116 2-3 per cent of standard profits

"By so doing, the industry, if and when criticized, could then say that it was not making excess profits at the expenes of the government."

The memorandum continued that "the chairman," apparently Mr Gordon, had agreed that the industry was not being subsidized.

And it was "not his desire to ask the industry to reduce prices or to reduce the amount of drawback which it is presently receiving from the treasury."

Mr Short was to get in touch with Finance Minister Abbott's economic adviser, M W. Sharp, and develop a "suitable formula for application of profit control."

Other documents in the return show that the lumber industry was particularly worried about the possibility of prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act, because of practices it might have to establish under prices board edicts.

Thanksgiving Dinner In US Breaks Heart of Italian Chef

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—A top-ranking Italian chef scoffed today at America's ideas of what it takes for a Thanksgiving dinner.

"American women can't cook, they don't want to learn, and American men don't appreciate good cooking," Guido Mori said. "Americans just pick at their food. A real Thanksgiving dinner you rarely see anymore.

"You heap a plate with turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, and it comes back hardly touched. It breaks your heart."

Mori, now a chef at one of America's best known and most exclusive restaurants, said "things were different in the old days, back in Italy."

Feast An Event

A feast on Italian Constitution Day, Sept. 20, was an event, he said. Several families would get together, sit down at the banquet table at 3 p.m. and not get up again until 11 p.m. or so.

A typical menu included a vermouth cocktail, antipasto appetizers, soup and a preliminary fish course.

"Then we began eating," he said.

"The main course was wild pheasant, or leg of lamb, or perhaps a whole baby goat—with olives, salad, stuffed zucchini and vegetables. Afterwards we would have spumoni with cakes and wine and a demitasse of coffee and rum

"With every course we would have an appropriate wine and afterwards we would sit back and tell stories.

"In America it is not so. The men and women are watching their diets and they are in a hurry to finish their meal so they can get up and go somewhere. How can you enjoy a meal that way?"

Cooking is a lost art, he sighed. "American women like the tiny waistline They are afraid to eat anything. As a result their cooking is bad. You will notice that many American men are thin, too."

Envoy from China Can't Be Questioned

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP).— Canada's Ambassador to China will not appear before the Commons Committee on External Affairs.

The government made that point clear Wednesday when it repeatedly rejected Opposition member requests that the Ambassador, T. C. Davis, bring the committee up to date on the Chinese siuation.

Walter Harris, Parliamentary Assistant to Prime Minister St. Laurent, said in view of the purpose of the committee, appearance of Mr. Davis before it "has been considered undesirable on every reasonable ground and that it would not be proper to have the Ambassador appear before the committee as it is, presently constituted."

External Affairs Minister Pearson told the committee last week he had no objection to the appearance before it of Mr. Davis now home for consultations on the Chinese Communists' bid for recognition by Canada. But he pointed out the possibility of difficulties arising if the envoy returned to China after making public statements here

Ask Modification

In the discussion Wednesday on the requests for the appearance of Mr. Davis, Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) asked the government to modify the "drastic" decision in view of "tremendous" public interest It wanted "factual background" and did not want to question policy.

Mr. Harris said there was no desire to refuse the committee necessary information but it could be given by the minister, his deputy or the head of the Far Eastern Division of the External Department's headquarters here. Ambassadors were "in a somewhat different class."

Mr. Hansell suggested a closed meeting might be held if necessary. The discussion on Mr. Davis finally was closed off with a suggestion by Mr. Graydon that members "sleep on it."

Then A. D. P. Heeney, Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs, answered the question that had touched off the whole discussion. There were, he said, about 50 Canadians, largely missionaries, in China—half of them in Communist territory. There were no indications yet of Red persecutions of them

Arrest of Mukden Consul Effort To Discredit US

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—State Department officials expressed hope today that American Consul-General Angus Ward shortly would be able to begin his long-delayed departure from Communist-ruled Mukden, China. They are anxious to have him safely home and they want to ask him some detailed questions about his imprisonment by the Chinese Reds.

The fact that a Communist court ordered Ward and four staff members deported gave rise to the belief here that the Communists would no longer place any obstacles in the way of closing the consulate at Mukden and removing all the personnel.

News of this release was announced by the Department Wednesday after Ward himself had sent word of it through Consul-General O. Edmund Clubb at Peiping.

Six-Months Terms

Ward, who was born in Alvinston, Ont., said that he and four of his staff members had been convicted of various charges revolving around the alleged beating of a Chinese employee last Oct. 11. He reported they had been given prison sentences ranging from three to six months. All sentences, however, were commuted to deportation. Ward drew the six months sentence.

Diplomats here said that the Ward case had worked out about as they expected. They regarded the whole affair as an effort by the Chinese Communists to disgrace an American official and cause him to leave the country under a cloud.

That the Chinese Communists will treat the matter that way in their anti-American propaganda is a foregone conclusion here.

Germans Keep 18 Factories

BONN, Germany, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Western Allies agreed today to stop the dismantling of 18 big western German factories in return for German pledges to help keep the peace in Europe.

The plants to be removed from the dismantling list include the August Thyssen steel works, one of the largest in Europe.

All dismantling in divided Berlin will stop under the agreement announced today by the Allied High Commission with the West-German government.

In return for sweeping Allied concessions, the west-German government agreed to join the International Ruhr Authority and "to maintain the demilitarization of the federal territory and to endeavour by all means in its power to prevent the re-creation of armed forces of any kind."

The communuique announcing the agreement said the west-German government "affirms its resolve as a freely elected democratic body to pursue unreservedly the principles of freedom, tolerance and humanity which unite the nations of western Europe and to conduct its affairs according to these principles."

Argentina Seizes News Offices

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 24 (AP) — An Argentine congressional committee today seized the business offices of the United Press and the Associated Press.

Business offices of the four newspapers in Buenos Aires opposing the regime of President Juan D. Peron were seized Wednesday. While federal police stood guard today government auditors examined the financial records of the newspapers

Led by a two-man congressional committee, the business offices of the newspapers were taken over to determine whether they had received money from a liberal and left-wing coalition that unsuccessfully opposed Peron in the 1946 presidential elections.

The four newspapers, the only independent dailies in Buenos Aires, include the widely-read La Nacion and La Prensa, the Communist La Hora, and the tabloid Clarin.

The newspapers were permitted to continue publication.

The two congressmen leading the investigator ordered seizure of all books dating back to Aug. 1, 1945, when the anti-Peron coalition was formed.

The two Congressional committeemen arrived unannounced at the United Press office at 9:25 a.m. They were accompanied by reporters and photographers and armed Federal Police.

Deputy Emilio Visca, assistant Leader of the Peronist Party in Congress, informed William H. McCall, United Press director for South America, that his bookeeping department had been taken over. Visca posted two Federal Police in the United Press office and left an auditor in charge.

Gives $350,000 Away Aurora Man Dies

AURORA, Ill., Nov. 24—(AP)—James Powell, recently disclosed as the man who had given away $350,000 to make his friends happy "while I'm still alive," died early today.

Powell, a 74-year-old retired real estate man, had been in failing health for several years and lived in semi-retirement at an Aurora hotel.

Powell had tried to keep secret the gifts to his friends, charities, schools and city government—ranging from $100 to $50,000. He specified only that the beneficiary should not disclose his identity.

"I do not want it to appear that I am doing what I am to gain publicity or glory," Powell said in announcing the various gifts. He urged that he be identified only as "an unknown soldier marching away."

RCAF Squad Locates Lost Hunter

Fliers Spot Words Written In Snow On Indian Reserve

GORE BAY, Ont., Nov. 24 (CP) —John Wolford, Windsor hunter, missing since last Friday, was found alive today by a Royal Canadian Air Force rescue squad.

RCAF authorities said they received a radio message from the rescue team saying: "Man is Wolford and is in good health."

The rescue party, Sgt. Bill Farr and Cpl. "Dobbie" Dawson, accompanied by provincial police, went in to the Manitoulin Island bush country on foot and brought Wolford out.

Exact location of where Wolford was found was not immediately available.

An RCAF Dakota plane sighted the missing hunter Wednesday night just at dusk, as they cruised over the 45,000 acre Wikwemikong Indian Reserve

See Words

The words "come" and the letters "F.O." were written in the snow. Flt.-Lt. M. J. Cowie, pilot, saw the lettering and a man standing beside a hut. A message was dropped saying "if you are Wolford, lie on the ground.'

A sleeping bag and food were dropped.

The plane returned to Gore Bay and the two-man rescue team went with provincial police to Little Current. From there a high speed launch took them along the coast.

This morning, at dawn, the rescue party was guided by the Dakota flying overhead to the spot where the man was found.

Wolford disappeared last Friday after the boat carrying his hunting party was driven ashore near Thomas Bay. Little hope was held he would be found alive after six days exposure in the severe weather.

A resolution passed by the convention said the committee could study systems of taxation on forest indusries, control of forest resources ond forestry operations on private property.

300 Whooping Calgary Fans Given Key To Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (CP) — Toronto opened the door, threw away the key and gave a royal welcome today to more than 300 whooping, football-crazy Calgary fans.

There were speeches, bands, a few songs and square-dances — and a big traffic bottleneck in the downtown area.

Stampeder supporters, wearing ten gallon cowboy hats, colorful shirts and high-heeled boots, travelled 3,000 miles to watch their Dominion champions tangle with Montreal Alouettes in the Grey Cup final here Saturday.

Everything went off on schedule except the arrival of Mayor Hiram McCallum. He was five minutes late.

A fife and drum band, lariat tossing majorettes leading the way marched up and down in front of the Union Station, with hundreds of rubbernecking Torontonians flocking around.

"We're glad to have you back" the Mayor said in his official welcoming speech. "The town is agog and alive with interest in Saturday's game."

Citizens who expected a big show were a trifle disappointed but that comes later. Horses, chuckwagons, a 100-foot miniature train and a teepee were dropped off just outside the city. They'll be used in the big parade—with Mayor McCallum in the saddle—on Saturday morning.

Incidentally the number of the model train is 12-7—a number Calgarians won't forget in a hurry. It was the 1948 Grey Cup score when the Stampeders beat Ottawa Rough Riders to bring the foothills city its first Dominion football title.

"We'll make this town rock with some good clean hearty razzle dazzle" one fan yelled at the crowd.

Demands Resignation

OTTAWA, Nov. 24—(CP) Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) said bluntly in the Commons today that Justice Minister Garson should resign because of the way he handled the report of an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry. Mr. MacInnis said he agreed with George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that the Justice Minister had placed himself in a position where he should not be given any more powers under the Combines Investigation Act.

MP's Preparing To Play Saturday Hookey

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP). — Arthur Smith (PC-Calgary West) solemnly informed Prime Minister St. Laurent today there must be some mistake behind the Prime Minister's request that the Commons sit Saturday to speed the drive for prorogation.

The sittings, he said, should be called for Varsity Stadium, Toronto, because that was where the majority of members would be—watching Calgary and Montreal in the Grey Cup final.

The Prime Minister — whose notice of a Saturday sitting was placed on this morning's order paper—equally solemnly replied that he hoped members' sense of public responsibility "will prevail over their desires" to see the game.

Mr. Smith promptly assured him that, with him, the final comes first.

The Speaker, Ross Macdonald, assured Mr. Smith that his sympathies were all with him

To Play Hookey

A second notice of intention to play hookey came from Frank Lennard (PC-Wentworth), a former Canadian Rugby Football Union official, who said "it's an insult to the sports fraternity" to have the House sit Saturday.

He said the Calgary-Ottawa final last year did more for East-West unity than "this House has been able to do in the last 10 years." The game this year would do the same.

The Speaker finally cut the discussion short by saying the motion for the Saturday sitting was not before the House yet anyway It is due to come up officially tomorrow.

Prime Minister St. Laurent gave notice that he will ask that the House sit morning, afternoon and evening six days a week in an effort to conclude its business.

Try To Keep Measures

OTTAWA, Nov 24 (CP)—Power to keep prices support measures for fish and agricultural products in force until the next general election is being sought by the government Fisheries Minister Mayhew and Agricultural Minister Gardiner today gave notice in the Commons that they will seek extension of the Prices Supports Acts until "dissolution of the 21st Parliament"

Family Of 3 Flee Blaze During Night

Storage Department On Second Floor Suffers Most Damage

ORILLIA, Nov. 24 (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin gutted the upper storey of the Orillia creamery early today causing damage estimated at $90,000.

The blaze was discovered about 4 a.m. by W. G. McKechnie, ice cream foreman at the plant, who with his wife and four-year-old daughter, occupies an apartment on the second floor of the plant.

The McKechnies, awakened by the smell of smoke, fled from the building by an outside entrance and then turned in the alarm.

The McKechnies' daughter, who usually sleeps in her own room, had awakened earlier and was in bed with them at the time. Her own room was smoke-filled and had she remained there the child would probably have suffocated.

Fight Six Hours

The Orillia fire department fought the blaze in freezing weather for six hours before the last flames were extinguished.

Most of the fire damage is in the storage department of the second storey, and to the roof which has fallen in. Large quantities of materials were destroyed.

The McKechnie apartment too, is gutted and their furniture lost.

Extelsive water damage has been done to the ground floor where plant and offices are located, but the fire did not reach this part of the premises.

The Orillia creamery is almost 70 years of age and is a modern plant in every respect. It is managed by H. A. Burnet.

Venerated Shrine Swept By Fire

AMMAN, Hashemite Jordan, Nov. 24—(AP)—A fire in one of Christianity's most venerated shrines, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, sent King Abdullah and European diplomats hurrying to the Holy City today.

Reports reaching here said the upper dome of the church caught fire Wednesday night but that all valuables had been removed to safety.

Fire brigades from Jerusalem, Amman and from the RAF joined many civilians in fighting the blaze.

(A report from Damascus said the fire destroyed the main dome of the church.)

The church, credited by Christian tradition as being the sepulchre to which Christ was taken after the crucifixion, is in the old city of Jerusalem, which is occupied by Hashemite Jordan's Arab Legion.

Flame and smoke columns could be seen above the old city walls. Lack of communications prevented a report on whether the fire is being brought under control.

The Israel government has offered to send in firemen, if the Hashemite Jordan regime will let them cross the lines to the old city, occupied by Jordan's Arab Legion since the Palestine War.

Counterfeit Tickets Expected For Saturday

TORONTO, Nov 24 — (CP).— Possibility that Toronto may be due for a flood of counterfeit tickets for Saturday's Grey Cup game betwten Calgary Stampeders and Montreal Alouettes is being checked today by police.

The investigation was touched off when police learned tickets to the game were being sold on Wednesday in a downtown restaurant.

At least one person thinks he unwittingly bought phoney tickets at premium prices, police said The tickets he purchased resemble legitimate ones, but the paper on which they are printed is more flimsy.

The bogus tickets in circulation are believed to be of the $2 variety. Police said they knew of cases where up to $50 had been offered for a pair of tickets

Canada-Big 5 Try Again On A-Control

Explore Every Angle To Protect World From Atomic Menace

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 24 (CP)—United Nations hopes for East-West agreement on the problem of atomic control today lie in the scheduled talks among the Big Five powers and Canada.

The U.N. Assembly Wednesday night approved a Canadian-French resolution recommending continuation of the six-power talks which began last July. The vote at the Flushing Meadow hall in New York was 59 to 5 (Slav bloc). Yugoslavia, Israel and South Africa abstained.

Today the U.N. spotlight swings back to Lake Success where votes are expected in the political committee on a Russian proposal for a peace pact among the Big Five powers and an Anglo-American resolution outlining the essentials of permanent peace.

Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines told the Assembly Wednesday night the meaning of the approved Canadian-French proposal could be summed up as:

"Save humanity while there is time."

The resolution calls on the Big Five powers and Canada to explore every possible avenue which might lead to East-West agreement on the problem. It also urges all countries to give up that part of their sovereignty necessary for effective international control of atomic energy and prohibition of atomic weapons.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada told the assembly that "none of us must ever give up hope of attaining agreement on this question which is so vital to the future of all the peoples of this earth."

A leading figure in international atomic talks since their beginning in 1946, McNaughton will be chairman of the next six-power meeting slated to be held within the next two weeks.

The Assembly rejected by an overwhelming vote a Russian resolution which blamed United States and Britain for the atomic deadlock; contended that the six-power talks have been useless; and called for immediate resumption of work by the 11-member U.N. Atomic Energy Commission which suspended work last July.

Winter Fair Ends Cup Well Distributed

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (CP)—The 21st Royal Winter Fair closed on Wednesday night. Farmers led beribboned cattle into box cars for the journey home and workmen began dismantling booths promoting sale of tractors, feed grain, and the 101 things a farmer has to buy.

Six world champion farmers had grain trophies to show for the week-long fair. Three of them went to the west, one to Ontario and one to the United States. They were awarded for wheat, corn, rye, oats, and potatoes.

Championships in beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine were fairly evenly distributed across the Dominion. A host of other grand championships were awarded for animals ranging from rabbits to tropical fish.

The fair was closed with an address by Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario. Taking part in the closing ceremonies were the military jumping teams of Mexico, Chile, Ireland and Canada, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who staged a musical ride each night of the fair's horse show, and the Mounted Police of Toronto.

Mushroom Mushroom For Edmonton Pair

EDMONTON, —(CP)— A lot of talk is heard these days about Edmonton's "mushroom" growth. That expression has a real meaning for two young Edmontonians.

Recently Peter Eliuk and Paul Lazurak, whose business it is to grow mushrooms, harvested a whopping 7,000 pounds of the product—more than enough to supply the city's 137,000 persons.

Just two years ago the young partners decided to grow mushrooms commercially. Now operators of Edmonton's only mushroom industry, they supervise operations at five large processing plants.

Market Slump Feared On Eggs

OTTAWA, Nov. 24—(CP)—A disastrous slump in market prices will occur if Canada does not obtain a renewal of her egg contract with the United Kingdom, spokesmen for Canadian poultry producers said Wednesday.

C. F. Luckham, chairman of the Canadian Poultry Council, and C. G. Groff of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, urged adoption of government floor prices for eggs if a new egg contract with Britain is not obtained.

Views of the poultry producers were presented at a meeting with A. M. Shaw, chairman of the Agriculture Department Prices Support Board. Representatives said later that Mr. Shaw promised full consideration.

A brief was presented to Mr. Shaw urging that an early decision be made on future policy so producers might be guided in planning production for the coming year.

Mr. Groff, presenting the views of the National Poultry Committee of the Federation, said if price support is considered such a program "take fully into account the heavy increases in production costs due to the heavy prices of feed and other needs of the poultry industry."

Stomach Pump Quells Flames

PARKVILLE, Mo., Nov. 24 — (AP)—A stomach pump put out a fire yesterday where a bucket brigade failed.

Fire broke out in the attic of a home. Driving by was Dr. T. M. Eagle, a veterinarian.

He climbed a ladder and broke an attic window to throw water on the small blaze, but lacked room to manoeuvre.

While other motorists fought the fire with buckets of water, he raced to his car for the pump and a 12-foot rubber tube.

He jammed the pump into a bucket and passed the tube to Highway Patrolman Roscoe Laurie on the ladder. Bystanders kept the buckets of water coming.

The pump, a two-way apparatus used for pumping out stomachs and administering medicines, threw a stream about 15 feet into the attic.

The fire was out when the volunteer fire department arrived. They estimated damage at $50.

Police Cruiser Struck By Car

A police cruiser was slightly damaged in an accident at Water and Sherbrooke Sts. Wednesday evening.

Constable Sherman Keliele, who was driving the police car, reported he was travelling slowly east on Sherbrooke. He said he saw two cars on Water St. approaching Sherbrooke. The front car had no lights on and was being pushed by the second car, driven by George Dumm, 99 Aylmer St.

Constable Keliele reported he thought the two cars were travelling too fast to make the turn. He said the first car did not turn, but went straight on into a car lot and service station, circled the gas pumps and came to a stop.

The constable said the second car skidded into the police cruiser which had been pulled over to the curb and stopped by this time. He reported the only damage were two dents on the left front fender of the police car.

Ordered To Pay $23 For Careless Driving

Found guilty of careless driving, Melville Fountain, 659 Donegal St., was fined $15 and $8 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

The charges arose from an accident in which Fountain's car met in collision with two cars at the corner of George and Lansdowne Sts. about midnight Oct. 15.

Fountain said he had been travelling west on Lansdowne and turned right to go north on George St. His front left fender hit the left rear fender of a car driven by Wally Steenburg, RR 6, Peterborough, stopped on the west side of George St.

He said he stopped his car and it was then hit by a car travelling south on George St. driven by Hum Yee, Coderington. He admitted he was west of the centre of George St. when he collided with the other cars.

Constable D. M. Traynor, who investigated the accident, said that when he arrived at the scene, Fountain was a borderline drunk case.

Howe Resignation Threat Denied

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Suggestions that Trade Minister Howe had threatened to resign earlier this year if the report on alleged price-fixing in the flour industry was published were denied Wednesday.

During the combines debate, John Diefenbaker (PC, Lake Centre) asked: "Did Mr. Howe threaten to resign if you published the report?"

"Oh, no," was the chorus from several members.

Mr. Diefenbaker: "Is it true? The papers said so."

Revenue Minister McCann: "Do you believe all you see in the papers? It is not true, and you know it."

Mr. Howe has expressed opposition to suggestions that flour-millers should be prosecuted. He contends their wartime actions were the result of prices board direction.

He was one of the cabinet members who last spring opposed immediate publication of the report.

Bell Singers To Visit City

The Leslie Bell Singers are coming to Peterborough Dec. 2 to present their third concert in this city. Sponsored by the Major Bennett chapter of the IODE, they will sing in St. Paul's Presbyterian church and proceeds will be used by the IODE for charitable purposes.

Since its formation in 1939, when the singers were 17 former students of Parkdale Collegiate, three of whom are still with the present organization, the choir has won fame as the leading choir in its own field and, in addition to visiting communities throughout Ontario, has attracted a wide radio audience.

Since its early days, the choir has grown in numbers and during the 10 year period, 162 girls in their late teens and early twenties have been active members. They have been recruited from more than 60 secondary schools.

Few of the choristers are full time music students. They come from all walks of life, devoting much of their free time to rehearsing and presenting concerts. They follow a rigid set of rules regarding conduct and attendance at rehearsals which is reflected by the quality of their performance.

Report Urges Small Fleet

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP) — A Maritime Commission report made public today recommended that Canada's security requires maintenance of only a "small and efficient" ocean-going merchant fleet.

It also recommended that shipping and shipbuilding industries should be maintained "on a nucleus basis capable of rapid expension in an emergency."

The report, tabled in the Commons by Transport Minister Chevrier, was made by John V. Clyne, chairman of the Maritime Commission which was established Nov. 1, 1947. It covers the year ended last March 31.

"Having regard to cost of construction (about 25 per cent higher in Canada than in the United Kingdom) and taking trade balances into consideration, it is inadvisable as well as uneconomic for Canada to consider the construction and operation of a Canadian flag, ocean-going merchant marine of sufficient dimensions to accommodate all her export trade or any fixed percentage hereof," the report said.

Both front fenders of the Thompson car were badly dented. The grill was damaged, the radiator was punctured. Constable Sherman Keliele investigated.

The Porcupine Union now has been certified as the bargaining agent for Broulan Porcupine Mines Limited, employees in Whitney Township, with certain exceptions in the case of shift bosses, foremen and other of similar rank. The IUMMSW, fought the application without success.

Declare Resignation Won't Affect Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP)—Resignation of David Lilienthal as head of the United States Atomic Energy Control Commission should have no effect on atomic relations between Canada and the U.S., a Commons committee was told today.

He was answering questions by J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West).

Father Watches Son Fall 40 Ft. To Death

SUDBURY, Nov. 24 — (CP) — A father watched helplessly Wednesday night as his 20-year-old son slipped and fell 40 feet to his death in an ore chute at Levack Mine of the International Nickel Company, 30 miles northwest of here.

Roger Trahan, Jr., was working with his father 1,200 feet underground when he fell into the chute, suffering severe head injuries. He died today at Copper Cliff hospital.

Roger Trahan, Sr., is a former alderman for Sudbury and was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor for about nine years ago.

The younger Trahan was standing on timber over the chute passing up a piece of blocking to his father when in some manner he fell into the chute.

The speaker was F. C. Ethier, manager of the Stewart-Warner Company, Belleville. The subject of his talk was "What are we waiting for?" It was an appeal to management and employees for more action and enthusiasm in the important work of preventing accidents in the industrial field.

Mr. Ethier said that co-operation and vigilance should be steadily sustained to reduce to as low a rate as possible injuries that should be regarded as preventible.

Men Are Pessimists Black Spot Proves

TAUNTON, England—(CP) — The trouble with people today is that they always look on the black side of life, Rev. M. L. Murphy, Taunton Baptist minister, told a meeting of young people here.

To illustrate, he held up a large sheet of white paper with a tiny black spot in the middle and asked his audience what they saw.

The reply in chorus: "A black spot."

Said Mr. Murphy "We must think much more of what is white and right in the world.

Historic Hollow May Become Park

TORONTO (CP).—A hollow where William Lyon Mackenzie marched his rebels during the 1837 uprising in Upper Canada may become a Toronto park.

The city is expanding northward and appears about to take in the area. William Carson, who has lived all his life in the hollow, is bargaining with city council for sale of the land for a park.

The area in the deep valley is officially called York Mills, but an earlier name—Hogg's Hollow—still sticks. The name is from the Hogg family, well-to-do grain merchants who led the village to prosperity from their mills.

Police Besiege School Students

PANAMA, Panama, Nov. 24—(AP)—Police laid siege to high school students in a national university building Wednesday night after fighting a gun battle with the youths in which seven persons were wounded.

The police, Panama's only armed force, said the students opened fire on a patrol car that was dispersing groups gathering to demonstrate in support of efforts by Daniel Chanis, Jr., to regain Panama's presidency.

The students claimed the police opened fire on them without provocation.

The students had tried first to demonstrate in a downtown plaza, but were prevented by police patrols. They were reassembling at the university when the shooting started.

Many of the students fled into the building adjoining. Others were arrested. Police tear gas forced still more out and into custody.

A 41-year-old woman was critically wounded, but police said she suffered gunshot wounds while walking on a street far away from the university area. Two policemen were among the injured.

An hour after the firing a university professor entering the building with a medical team said about 100 students were inside, though many had escaped. The professor said the youths were not armed but were pelting the police with broken flower pots and tiles.

By midnight only 30 students, described as "high school boys," still were inside the building.

Three Provinces Criticize Highway Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP)—At least three provinces have criticized the Federal government's proposed agreement covering construction of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Governments of Quebec, Alberta and New Brunswick have requested changes in the agreement which Reconstruction Minister Winters sent out to the provinces two months ago.

Their views were contained in additional Trans-Canada Highway correspondence tabled Wednesday in the Commons. This correspondence showed no replies from other provinces concerning the agreements. Correspondence with four other provinces—Newfoundland, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Prince Edward Island—merely gave approval to table the exchange of letters previously made public.

In the correspondence tabled today, Alberta suggested that the proposed Federal contribution—50 per cent of cost—should be increased to 66 2/3 per cent.

Up To Ottawa

"A Trans-Canada Highway of satisfactory standards and worthy of the name should have at least two-thirds of its construction costs borne by the Federal government," wrote D. A. Ure, acting minister of public works for Alberta. His reply was dated Sept. 27.

W. S. Anderson, New Brunswick's minister of public works said on Nov. 4 that instead of the highway being the "shortest route" as suggested by Mr. Winters, it should be the "most practical route.". New Brunswick would not consider any route which would by-pass Saint John.

Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec wrote Mr. Winters on Oct 26 that the terms of the agreement were not clear enough.

He felt certain that plans for building the highway could be worked out, but it had to be sufficiently clear and precise before Quebec would co-operate.

Highway Through Canada

Canada is to have a completed two-lane highway from Atlantic to Pacific in seven years. That is the implication of a Bill introduced in the House of Commons on Tuesday which will authorize Federal Government payments towards the completion of a Trans-Canada highway, up to 150 million dollars. The time-limit is established through a clause in the Bill which states that no contributions will be made on construction costs incurred seven years after the Trans-Canada Highway Bill comes into force. Only if a Provincial Government is blind or broke will it not build the section of the road through its province within the seven years since Ottawa will pay fifty per cent. of the cost.

* * *

There is bound to be further quibbling about the route and relative Provincial-Federal shares of the costs. However, recent conferences between Dominion and the various Provincial authorities have been amicable and undoubtedly a large measure of agreement has been reached. One point of the Bill which should please the Ontario Government is that Federal payments will be made for existing roads which will be incorporated into the Trans-Canada highway. These will not exceed fifty per cent. of the original costs of constructing them. Most of Ontario is served by good roads already paid for; Federal money for some of them would be a boon to the Treasury and help to pay the fifty per cent. of the cost of closing the gap in the Trans-Canada system in north-western Ontario.

Andre Gide At Eighty

On Tuesday last, Andre Gide was eighty. He is one of the great writers of our time, and although his works may not be familiar to a large public in Canada they have for many years been familiar to a smaller public which follows closely the development of contemporary literature. Gide is not a popular writer, but he is an enormously influential writer. As a poet, essayist, critic, novelist and playwright he has been a powerful influence upon his time, and in an era when ideas have been regimented, and writers have been labelled and catalogued to excess, he has been remarkably catholic in his thinking and expression.

Gide is a creature virtually unknown in Canada—he is a man of letters. That is to say, he lives entirely by writing, by weighing the works of other men, and by bringing the special outlook of the literary man to the life of his time. The life of a writer is not easy in France, where literary reputations are almost as mortal as political reputations. During his sixty years of active literary life he has been extravagantly praised, and extravagantly reviled. He has been called a puritan and also a corrupter of youth. He has been accused of reaction, and of extreme radicalism. It is true that he has pretty well boxed the compass of political and moral opinion, but he has never been sensational or superficial. His own career is an assurance that, even in the most difficult times, men of great courage can assert the freedom of the mind.

We need such men. Many people find them irritating, and they are often called undependable. But a man of boldly original and honest mind is always likely to be irritating, and he is not the lackey of any political or artistic clique. Gide is one of the great men of our time, and as he enters his ninth decade we may take time to be thankful for him. He is a symbol of that free and civilized intellect which is in such grave danger today.

Selling The Indians

The Indians have been sold for two million dollars. This alarming statement will not, however, cause tribes and chieftains to rise in revolt against high-handed white men's dealings. The days when the Indians of this continent were required to sell their birthright for a mess of flour, fire-water and annuities has passed. The people who were sold Monday were white men, as far as we know, a Cleveland baseball team, and they are not likely to object to the sale. If they do, no attention will be paid to their objections.

It is a curious anomaly that in this enlightened, reputedly civilized age, hockey, football and baseball players are bartered on open markets like slaves of old. Yet no one is scandalized; there is no popular movement to free the slaves. Perhaps it is because the prices fetched are so good. A hunk of football player sells for several thousand, not several hundred dollars.

Is it ridiculous to call these professional players slaves? Are they not bought body and soul? Are they not disciplined as strictly as slaves on plantations? They must go to bed at fixed hours, they must eat what they are told, drink only what is approved, keep themselves in sound physical condition so that they can work on ice or in stadiums at jobs fully as strenuous as those of galley-slaves. They cannot quit one master and go to work for another if they please. They cannot move about the country except at their owners' pleasure and dictation.

Perhaps it is time a Bill of Rights was adopted to protect professional games-players from the slavery which binds them to chains—or skates, bats and balls.

New Windows On The World

We have commented before on the enterprise of the local movie managers who bring foreign films to Peterborough. They make it possible for all of us to see what others countries than the U.S.A. and Britain are doing in a form of entertainment which has the largest audience in the world. The most recent foreign film to be seen here was Paisan, a great film indeed. Anyone who saw it must have come away with a better understanding of Italy and the Italian people. Better understanding of other lands and other peoples is what the world sadly needs. These foreign films open new windows on the world for us.

We live in a small Ontario city. We like our own ways. But it is very important that we should not think that our ways are the only ways in the world, and that anywhere which is not in step with Peterborough is necessarily wrong, or inferior. An understanding of other nations is not likely to make us disloyal to our own land; it is likely, on the contrary, to give us a better understanding and appreciation of our own country and ourselves; it will help us to see Canada in perspective.

The foreign films shown in Peterborough so far have not been well attended. Few people, we think, would turn down the chance of a trip to a foreign country at a low price; a foreign movie gives us a chance to see something of a foreign country and of foreign people, for a couple of hours, with the least possible inconvenience. A foreign film is, in a mild sense, an adventure. Surely an adventure on such terms is attractive?

A Monopoly in Greenstuffs

Last week the Market Gardners' Association of the Montreal district passed a resolution urging the Dominion Government to ban the importation of all American garden produce during the winter months. No doubt the Association had some fancy reason to support this demand, but the real reason is plain enough—it wanted a monopoly in greenstuffs.

Last winter we saw what happened when there was an embargo on American produce of this kind; prices of vegetables became so high that many people could not afford what are not, to modern people, luxuries, but necessities. Our ancestors went without fresh vegetables during the winter from necessity, and their health suffered; we are not prepared to make such a sacrifice needlessly. It is a fact of modern dietetics that everybody needs green foods all through the year, and because we live in a fortunate era we are able to meet that need.

The establishment of a monopoly in green foods would be directly against the interests of the Canadian people generally. As it is, the ten cent difference between American grown greens, and the Canadian produce gives the local dealers a considerable advantage. The establishment of a monopoly for them is out of the question.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Newsreels must become rather boring about this time of the year to persons who do not care in the least which end of what field who carries a football to.

We suppose there will always be a small percentage of after-dinner speakers who begin by remarking that they hadn't expected to say anything—and then go on to prove it.

Scientists continue to make untimely discoveries about mosquitos. One now says mosquitos can quite easily find enough food without having to bite human beings. When the time comes, we hope he'll tell the mosquitos about it.

We read that Canada's schools are crowded "under pressure of war babies". We knew that babies were getting bigger and better; but did not suspect that they were quite so heavy and hefty. The remedy, we suppose, is to strengthen school floor, to support the pressure.

Will France And Germany Get Together

By SEBASTIAN HAFFNER

THE last few weeks have seen the beginning of a subtle shift in French-German relations which, if continued, may have tremendous implications for Europe as a whole. Up to now, the French had been least among the Western Occupation Powers to relax the grip on Germany which common victory had given them. Official French policy had been far more reluctant than American or British policy to give the Russian danger precedence over the German danger, or to regard Germany as a potential friend and partner rather than as a permanent enemy. In all the Western Allied Conferences on Germany in the last two years, which led to the establishment of the German Federal Republic, France was the retarding element. It is fair to say that if France had had her way there would probably not yet be a Bonn Republic.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUT now that this Republic has become an accomplished and irreversible fact, there are indications that France is reconsidering her German policy. French-German antagonism, though it is sometimes taken to passionate lengths, is not a very stable factor in European politics; it has several times already given way rather suddenly to its exact opposite.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE French are realistically conscious that the security which they need against their more massive and inherently stronger neighbour can only be found either in complete suppression or in friendship; there is no half-way house. In the 'twenties, accordingly, there was a full about turn, after Poincare's policy of suppression had failed, to Briand's policy of Franco-German rapprochement. The same logic is working again now that France's long delaying action against the economic and political re-establishment of Germany has been lost. There is still some bitterness and a great amount of caution in France vis-a-vis Germany. In any negotiations for a French-German understanding, France will certainly still insist on the maximum of security guarantees. But, with effective suppression more and more ruled out, French policy is almost irresistibly driven towards seeking a French-German understanding instead—though naturally on the safest possible terms.

◇ ◇ ◇

AT the same time, the Bonn Government has, almost since its inception, concentrated on wooing France. The new German Chancellor, Dr. Adenauer, has declared that he attaches "the greatest possible importance" to the improvement of French-German relations, and that reconciliation with France must be "a pivotal point in German policy". There is no doubt that Dr. Adenauer personally is sincere in his French sympathies; his whole life and public career bear witness to that. There never was a more pro-French statesman in power in Germany. If French-German friendship is ever to be established on firm foundations, there will hardly be a better chance than while Dr. Adenauer is in control in Germany.

◇ ◇ ◇

ALREADY there are now a number of new topics in the wind of which nothing was heard between France and Germany as little as two months ago. A comprehensive trade pact between France and Germany; French capital investment in Germany, in one form or another; possible inclusion of Germany in the planned French-Italian-Benelux currency union—all these things are now under informal discussion. This, even short of any hard-and-fast agreement, marks a definite change of climate.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE difficulties in the way of a new French-German rapprochement need no stressing. In some ways, M. Schuman (French Foreign Minister) and Dr. Adenauer have a harder task than had M. Briand and Herr Stresemann, if only because theirs is the second attempt and is haunted by the failure of the first. But there are also some factors which are more favourable now than twenty-five years ago; France has this time no East European alliances to complicate a policy of French-German understanding; Germany has no Rapalo Treaty (Russo-German pact of 1922) to provide her with a standing choice between East and West (in fact, Dr. Adenauer has by his public declarations burned his boats in regard to his relationship with Russia). French-German reconciliation is strongly favoured by America, and American influence is strong in both countries because both are economically dependent on her. (On the other hand, Britain appears to be playing a far more passive role under Mr. Bevin than she played under Sir Austen Chamberlain.)

◇ ◇ ◇

ALTOGETHER, in spite of obstacles and possible hitches, it would not now be surprising to see in a year or two another reversal of French-German relations accomplished, and to find in the place of deep mistrust and antagonism of the last four years something like an economic partnership and a political entente established between France and Germany. It is obvious that this would give Western Europe a new centre of gravity and would open up completely new possibilities. In particular the West European Federation, which many had hoped could form itself around the Paris-London axis, might still, without Britain, take shape around a Paris-Bonn axis.

Donald Gordon: 'Tough Guy'

Since word came that Donald Gordon was to be the next president of the Canadian National Railways the newspapers and others have had much to say about him. Nothing said has been much livelier than this from Calgary's Farm and Ranch Review:

"Donald Gordon is a masterful, stubborn, confident, sometimes arrogant, courageous, honest and patriotic citizen of very substantial intelligence.... He is a 'tough guy' and he is just as tough mentally as he is physically. Nobody is going to push him around, and once he gets an idea in his head nobody is going to divert him very far from the course that idea dictates."

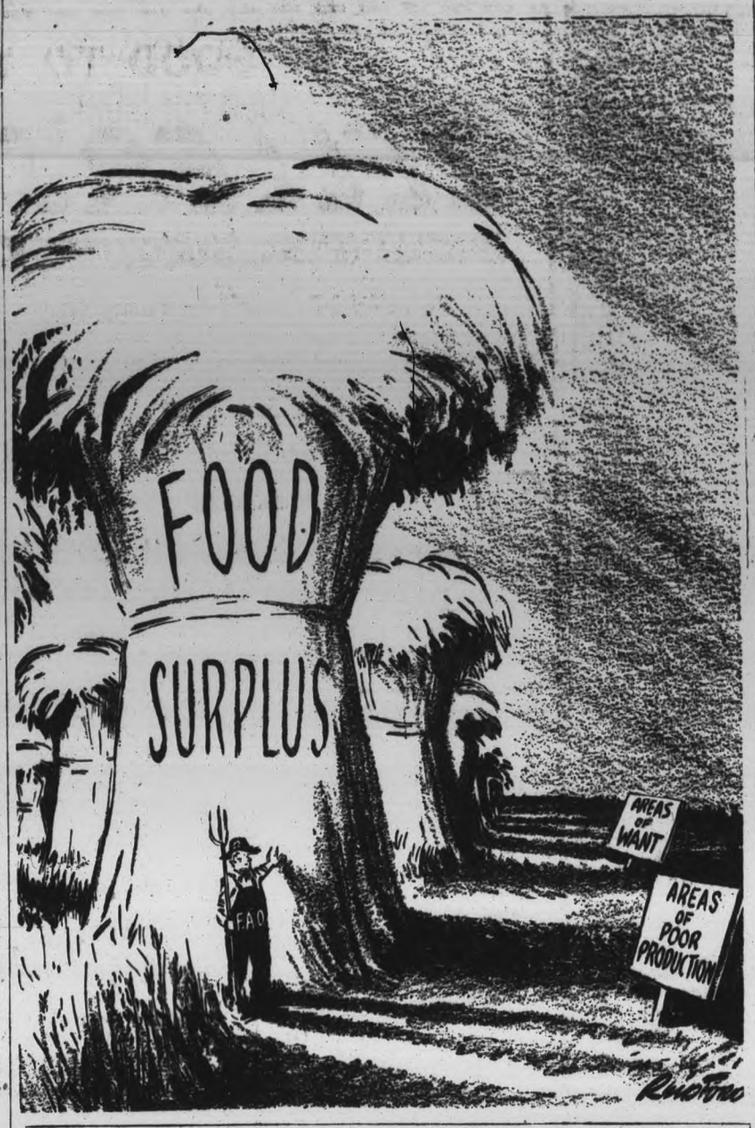
THOSE "BACK ACRES"?



Letter To The Editor

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE ARE TOUGH

Sir: In answer to "Weary Landlord" letter Nov. 12, I would say that he gives a very exaggerated account of taxes. All tenants pay landlords' taxes. Roomers contribute to them. A landlord renting a self-contained house figures on rent covering taxes, repairs (if he makes any) and 7 or 8 per cent. interest on his investment. Some figure that on the amount they can sell for, but it should be on the amount they pay for property. The bank pays 1½ per cent.—bonds 3 per cent. and less, but the landlord never figures less. Does the weary landlord stop to think of what inconvenience his roomers may suffer, such as sharing a bath room, waiting their turn, getting washing done and a place to dry it? Let me quote the landlord one case I know of. A man bought a house a year ago. He rents the four bedrooms singly at $10 per week each—$160 a month. If he spent $80 of this repairing greasy paper, stair treads, and W.C. lid, he would still have $80 left, a good rent for four rooms. There are a good many people in this city whose salaries have not increased very much, and they have a right to raise a hullabaloo as he calls it.

I am a tenant of 35 years—17 of these in this city—and I would like to say that the landlords of my home city were princes compared with landlords in Peterborough. I have always been counted an A1 tenant. Came here in '32 which was depression time or tailend. Paid a good rent. Had a very good house, but no floor in basement, one ordinary sized register upstairs to heat four bedrooms and bathroom. After three years, due to death, I got a smaller home. Was there 4½ years. My son and I were starting to home city for week to visit cemetery. The morning we left a young lawyer came to my door, handed me a notice to vacate the end of month. My landlord sold the place without telling me. The people who bought it, knew the place and bought without looking at it. When we returned we had three weeks to find a place and move. This house had only one register to heat three bedrooms and bathroom. At that time just ten years ago I rented the bungalow I am in at present. I built up the furnace fire, checked and went to bed. Next morning got up to get breakfast and fell unconscious to the floor. There were three different experts gave their opinion to my landlord on this furnace to pull down for $10 and renew cement. He refused to do it. I have not pulled the check chain in ten years. We have a large basement with mud floor, two windows up all summer will not dry it out, a pipeless furnace puts very little heat into a basement so it is still damp in winter. All we use this large space for is fuel and a few vegetables. We run a coal range as well to have enough heat. Owing to chimney, coal range and furnace register in same room, which is usually 90 degrees and rest of house not warm enough to sit in and the W.C. lid is cold too (this for the weary landlord). Although I am a woman, I am thoroughly experienced in running fires. Have handled several makes of furnaces. I can truthfully say that in my home city I lived in good homes, never came across a house without a basement floor, never one register to heat all upstairs, and my landlords always showed appreciation for a good tenant.

Peterborough is a lovely city, but there is no doubt about it, the people are tough. I have had business men speak to me as if they were beasts instead of men. Clerks are insolent. It is too bad business men can't realize how much trade they lose by their manner and that of their clerks. I could go on and on with personal experience. I am not the only one, but a great number will not take the trouble to tell it.

I spent four years alone in this city while my son plodded through France, Belgium and Germany. Did anyone ask me how I got along? Did anyone offer to shovel a path? No, oh no. Young men greedy after the big wages, on war work, passed my door without a thought.

TOUGH GOING FOR THE WIDOW.

LONG GRAIN HAUL

Sir: I notice an item in the news columns, in which the organized farmers at Regina, Sask., "urgently recommend that the (freight) rates established under the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement be not increased, and that control of these rates remain vested in the Parliament of Canada".

Somehow the above item reminded me of a quotation at the masthead of your editorial columns recently, from the luminous mind of Emerson: "The existing world is not a dream, and cannot with impunity be treated as a dream.... Reality, however, has a sliding floor."

Just what was in the minds of the respective parties to the above "Crow's Nest Pass Agreement" in establishing a maximum rate on grain and flour from the three Prairie Provinces "in perpetuity", I am not aware of, and could not be discussed within the boundaries of this little letter even if I were. On the other hand, there can be no question about the basic role played in Canada's economy by that long-haul grain and flour tonnage from those Western fields—which one observer terms as being "locked at the heart of the continent"? Then, too, who can measure the value of westbound tonnage from eastern plants?

So, despite the fact that it is obviously beyond man's mental power to build "agreements" that can be kept valid through the centuries — because "reality has a sliding floor" — I favour the farmers' viewpoint in this vital problem. It seems pertinent to recall two related, but contrasting, aspects of this problem: (1)—When the cash value of a bushel of wheat slithered down to less than 30 cents during the depression years, I saw no suggestion that freight rates should be revised downwards; and (2)—I have a vivid recollection of an assertion by the late Sir Edward Beatty, as president of the C.P.R., pointing out to an annual meeting of the shareholders, that his organization's welfare was "dependent upon a prosperous agriculture on the prairies", the source of just 60 per cent of the railway's net revenues!

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

But it came to pass, that when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites, heard that the walls of Jerusalem were made up, and that the breaches began to be stopped, then they were very wroth, and conspired all of them together and to fight against Jerusalem, and to hinder it. Nevertheless we made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them day and night, because of them....

And our adversaries said, They shall not know, neither see, till we come in the midst among them, and slay them, and cause the work to cease. And it came to pass, that when the Jews which dwelt by them came, they said unto us ten times, From all places whence ye shall return unto us they will be upon you....

And I looked, and rose up, and said unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, Be not ye afraid of them: remember the Lord, which is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, your wives, and your houses. And it came to pass, when our enemies heard that it was known unto us, and God brought their counsel to nought, that we returned all of us to the wall, every one unto his work....

They which builded on the wall, and they that bare burdens, with those that laded, every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon. For the builders, every one had his sword girded by his side, and so builded. And he that sounded the trumpet was by me. (Neh. 4: 7-9, 11, 12, 14, 15, 17, 18.)

Ride Perfect To Public But Real Torture To Boss

TORONTO, Nov. 24—The man behind the famed musical ride of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is Staff Sergeant C. W. Anderson.

While Royal Winter Fair crowds sigh and applaud the precision movements of the scarlet-clad Mounties and their coal-black horses, Staff Sgt. Anderson stands and suffers.

At any of the rides at the Fair, Staff Anderson may be spotted at the rail. Chances are he'll have his eyes covered with his hands, groaning meanwhile: "No, no, not that. He's done it again."

Though the ride instructor is a perfectionist, he realizes that he has 32 distinct personalities in his men—and as many in the horses.

In 1930 he went with the musical ride to the Royal Horse Show at London.

"I got bawled out for mussing things up when I was a trooper," he recalls. "Maybe that's why I take the same dim view of slip-ups in the ride."

Share His Ideas

But not a man in the detachment has anything but affection and respect for his complete fairness and impartiality. This feeling by the men and Staff Anderson's demands for near-perfection, undoubtedly make this year's ride the ultimate in horsemanship.

An added touch this year in addition of a stencilled maple leaf on each horse's hip, was Staff Anderson's idea. It's simply done, too, by brushing the hair with water through a stencil in reverse direction.

Though last year's ride came from Regina, the Mounties in this year's edition were recruited from across Canada. All are volunteers and all had received the initial equitation course. The horses were broken but untrained in ride manoeuvres. Only two months of practice preceded the opening performance on Sept. 17.

Staff Sergeant Anderson breaks the ride down into four groups of eight, each under a leader.

According to the instructor, there is a "certain something" about potential horsemen in a group of raw recruits which "sticks out all over them." Horses aren't so easily selected.

The horses must be trained to ignore distractions such as rifle shots, shouting, music, waving arms, umbrellas, flying hats and heavy applause. They get a real baptism of all these things in training.

Charged With Spying

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP) —Albania Wednesday accused Britain, the United States and Yugoslavia of "persistent" spying against Albania. The Soviet satellite country made its charges in a 4,000-word note to the Yugoslav government, broadcast by Tirana radio.

UE Officials By Ex-Treasurer Sued For Libel

Trial of an action for libel against officials of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (CIO) opened yesterday before Mr. Justice Chevrier in civil assize court. Reginald Hebert, former treasurer of the union, is suing its district president, Clarence Jackson; J. F. Douglas, editor of the union paper which allegedly published the libel, and Everready Printers, publishers of the paper.

Hebert claims substantial damages for libel for statements contained in an article and an editorial in the Canadian UE News which termed him a "stooge" and a "willing tool of the bosses."

The case was to have been tried before a jury, but after lengthy consultation between Mr. Justice Chevrier and counsel, it was agreed to dispense with the jury. The case will proceed today before his lordship alone. F. Andrew Brewin is acting counsel for Herbert and C. L. Dubin for the defendants. Mr. Jackson was not in court when the case opened.

Plaintiff claims that comments published in the News concerning a meeting at which he was expelled from the union last year were a "serious imputation" in suggesting "disloyalty to his associates," Mr. Brewin explained.

Mr. Brewin, outlining the basis of the libel claim, said Hebert was an inspector at the Ward St. plant of the Canadian General Electric Co. Hebert objected to certain acts of the union officials and issued pamphlets attacking them. The pamphlets were distributed at the plant. He criticized Jackson, in particular, counsel said. Heber tried, he added, "to get the workers to select new leaders not subject to sinister influence."

As a result, Hebert was tried by 12 officials and expelled.

Thereport of a general meeting which followed and sustained the expulsion recommendation is the basis of Hebert's damage claim.

Defense maintains the report was true and in good faith and had to do with a matter of public interest.

Killed At Crossing

ALBANY, Ore., Nov. 24 (AP)—The second blind member of a family died in a highway accident near her Wednesday night. Deputy Coroner Walter Kropp reported Silvery O. Goodman, 64, was run over as he walked across a rural highway to perform the evening milking chores. His father, also blind, died at the same crossing in 1938 under similar circumstances.

V.C. WINNER—George Randolph Pearkes, leading Progressive Conservative military critic in Parliament, went to France in 1915 as a private in the Canadian Mounted Rifles. At the end of the first world war he was a lieutenant-colonel and held the Empire's highest award, the Victoria Cross, won at Passchendaele for "utmost gallantry" and "conspicuous bravery" in leading an attack despite severe wounds. His bravery also won for him the Military Cross, the Distinguished Service Order and the Croix de Guerre. He remained in the army after the war and during the second world war commanded the 1st Division in England and later was in charge of the Pacific Command. He left the army in 1945 and was elected to the Commons as Progressive Conservative member for Nanaimo. He was born Feb. 26, 1888 at Watford, England.

Houde, Watson To See Game

TORONTO, Nov. 24—Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, and Mayor James Watson of Calgary, will journey to Toronto to support their respective teams in the Grey Cup final at Varsity Stadium Saturday.

Mayor McCallum said yesterday that he had received word from both mayors that they would attend the East-West classic.

The mayor immediately put the wheels into motion, and already a civic reception has been arranged for the two mayors at city hall Saturday morning where each will receive a memento of his Toronto visit.

The arrival of Mayor Houde and Mayor Watson marks their first official visit to Toronto. Mayor Watson is expected to arrive Friday night by plane from Calgary, while Mayor Houde likely will accompany the Alouettes to Toronto by train the same night.

Meanwhile, Toronto's delegation to the Calgary Stampede is preparing to welcome the westerners when the Calgary trainload arrives today. They expect to board the train at Bolton, west of Toronto, to renew friendships and to distribute welcoming literature.

The Calgary good-will delegation, as Mayor McCallum likes to call the group which accompanied him to the Stampede this summer, has set up information booths in Union Station and the Royal York Hotel to arrange accommodation for the western fans.

Hotel space was limited, the mayor said, and the good-will crew had long lists of homes which will be thrown open to visitors.

48 Descendants Home For Thanksgiving

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 24—(AP)—The Weikert family thanksgiving dinner became a full-scale project today as 48 direct descendants came home for the United States holiday.

It was a double ceremony for Edward L. Weikert, 89, and his wife, 86. They also observed their 66th wedding anniversary and all their children, grandchildren, great grandchildren and even great great grandchildren were on hand to help celebrate.

"No indeedy," said spry Mrs. Weikert, "I don't have room for them all, and besides I'm getting too old for that cooking."

So the dinner was shifted to the Social Hall of the two taverns Grace Lutheran Church where the ladies and society helped prepare the meal.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 24.—Local 533, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, representing workers in Belleville Lock and American Optical of this city, on Tuesday night endorsed the left wing UE.

"That this regular meeting of local 533, UE, go on record as supporting our parent body, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America against any attempts for disruption; that we intend to stay with our parent body; that we notify the district office in Toronto to this effect, and also send pledges of unqualified support to those provisional committees set up to carry on the good work of the UE in Peterborough, Cobourg, Guelph and Brockville.

"We also condemn the activities of those former UE members who by unfounded red-baiting seek to disrupt and divide us so that they can attain their own selfish aims."

Engaged To Princess

BRUSSELS, Nov. 24 (AP) — Unofficial sources today reported that Belgium's regent, Prince Charles, is engaged to the sister-in-law of the Count of Paris, the pretender to the throne of France. These sources said the Prince's fiancee is Princess Marie Therese d'Orleans-Bragance, sister of the Countess of Paris. A source close to the Prince Regent's palace declined to confirm or deny the report, but said "the news is premature."

Produce Plutonium

PARIS, Nov. 24.— (CP) — The French atomic energy project has produced about one milligram of plutonium, it was announced yesterday.

The creation of this one 30,000th part of an ounce will enable French physicists to perform experiments barred to them heretofore.

The French atomic energy pile at suburban Chatillon, nicknamed Zoe, is under the supervision of atomic energy commissioner Frederic Joliot-Curie, a Communist.

Freighters Clear Welland Canal

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Nov. 24—(CP)—All seven freighters which were bottled up in the Welland ship canal and Port Colborne harbor Wednesday for 12 to 15 hours because of a near gale, cleared for their destinations later in afternoon when the storm abated.

Navigation returned to normal in the canal. Seven boats made the transit downbound between four o'clock in the afternoon and midnight. The first upbound vessel entered the canal this morning.

Laborer Killed By Scalding Lye

WINNIPEG, Nov. 24—(CP)—A47-year-old laborer Wednesday fell to his death in a vat of scalding lye at the Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive shops in suburban Weston.

Dead is Josef Kardasz, whose body was immersed in the 12,000-gallon vat approximately six hours before being lifted out by a crane. No one saw the railway employee fall.

After Kardasz was found to be missing from his post, foreman John Lingwood immediately organized a search. The foreman and other workmen combed the large shops until early afternoon without locating the missing man.

Lingwood then ordered the vat drained of its lye and water contents, seething at 200 degrees (fahrenheit).

Kardasz' body was found at the bottom of the empty cement tank, and identified by the foreman.

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

The open bonspiels are now in full swing, and as it is to be expected, local curlers are in attendance.

On Tuesday Ward Smith skipped a rink at the Oshawa all-week 'spiel and reports having a good time. He tells us that the Oshawa club has made a wonderful improvement to "No. 8"—all fixed over, new front, cafe counter, billiard and card tables and new seats. Some class.

Gar Braund and Dr. R. Clark each skipped a rink at this 'spiel on Wednesday.

We hear by the grapevine department that the lady curlers of the Lakefield club have started an extensive program to raise money. The object is a new curling rink. Nice going and good luck.

Going To Give Waitkus Chance For Comeback

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24 (AP) —Can Eddie Waitkus make a comeback in baseball in 1950?

President Bob Carpenter, of Philadelphia Phillies, believes the brilliant first-baseman can. As a result Carpenter is going all out to see to it that Waitkus will be in top shape when the 1950 season gets under way.

Waitkus, shot by a Chicago bobby-soxer last spring, now is in Clearwater, Fla., taking light workouts, swimming and walking.

But Carpenter isn't going to take any chances that may hurt him.

So, next Monday trainer Frank Wiechec, a therapeutic expert, leaves for Clearwater with instructions to supervise all of Waitkus' activities and see to it that he takes the proper exercise.

TONIGHT AT THE BROCK —Pat Flanagan, above, who meets Bill Stack in the opening bout at the Brock tonight. The main go brings together Seelie Samara and Jim "Goon" Henry. It should b a breath-taking match. The talented Samara is very popular here while Henry is just the opposite. The semi-final event is attracting almost as much attention as the main for it features the sensational young Polish grappling star, Wladek Kowalski doing battle against Joe Christie. A well-balanced card.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Wildcats, newly-crowned Canadian junior football champions, suffered their first defeat of the season Wednesday at Saskatoon, as Saskatoon Hill Tops rolled to a decisive 16-2 victory on a snowy gridiron.

More than 4,500 fans braved the wintry weather to watch the exhibition contest.

Wildcats are on their way home after winning the Dominion title for the second successive season. They won the title at Vancouver by beating the Blue Bombers, who had previously nosed out Hilltops in the last minute of play to win the western crown.

Diminutive fullback Ron Tinkler starred in the Hilltop victory. He made a brilliant 70-yard runback of a Hamilton punt in the first quarter to set Hilltops up for their first major score. He also accounted for Saskatoon's final touchdown late in the third frame.

Heavy betting on Saturday's east-west football final was reported along Toronto's Bay Street with Montreal Alouettes being quoted 7-5 favorites over Calgary Stampeders.

Bets up to $2,000 offered by supporters of the Eastern Canada champions were reported snapped up by followers of the defending Dominion champions.

To offers to cover more bets, western rooters were quoted as advising eager Montrealers: "Wait until the train (from the west) comes in."

Would-be spectators meanwhile, were reported offering as high as $30 for "good seats," defined by some as "anything inside the gates."

The 1951 Walker Cup match, involving the best amateur golfers of the United States and Britain, will be played at Birkdale, Lancashire, England, June 8-9.

The site and date were announced Wednesday by the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland.

The Royal and Ancient also announced that the 1951 British Open Tournament will be played at the Royal Portrush Club in Northern Ireland, starting July 3, and the British Amateur at Royal Porthcawl, Wales, starting May 22.

Alan McFater, dynamic Toronto fighter who made his pro debut two weeks ago, will fight Jean Richard of Montreal in Toronto Monday, Dec. 5.

Jack Allen, Toronto boxing figure, announced the eight-round bout Wednesday. Richard's Canadian featherweight title, which he has held for about two years, will not be at stake.

Richard recently returned from France where he lost a split decision to Andrew Famechon, French featherweight champion.

At Stockholm, the Hull Volants Wednesday night skated to their third straight victory on Stockholm ice, defeating the Hammarby club 4-2 in an exhibition hockey game.

After each team scored once in the opening period, the touring Volants ran the count to 3-2 in the second session and then added another marker in the finale while holding the Swedish team scoreless.

Top women swimmers from five eastern universities will compete in the women's intercollegiate swimming meet in Hamilton Dec. 3, it was announced Wednesday. Entrants will be from McMaster University, University of Western Ontario at London, University of Toronto, Queen's at Kingston and McGill at Montreal.

Buffalo Bisons of the International Baseball League Wednesday night announced the purchase of first baseman Hank Biasatti from Philadelphia Athletics with whom the Bisons have a working agreement. Biasatti from Windsor, Ont., saw little action last season as stand-in for the A's Ferris Fain.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

The saddest words—it seems a shame—no tickets left for the Grey Cup game. Yeah, the annual football classic in Canada has grown too big for its pants. And much too big for Varsity Stadium, which packs in about 20,500 customers. You just can't buy a ducat for the final between Calgary Stampeders and Montreal Alouettes in Toronto this Saturday aft. You couldn't for more than a week back. The place will be jammed, but probably twice as many would go if there was the room. Looks like they'll just have to switch it next year to the CNE grounds. It must be sad for the CRU and other grid officials to know they're getting just about half the do-re-mi they might on this tilt.

* * * * * *

Alouettes were given 30 per cent of the 20,500 tickets—and they can't begin to satisfy the Montreal fans' demand. Same percentage went to Stampeders, and they had to come east a week early to get away from the howls of disappointed western fans. ORFU share was 10 per cent, and that left just 30 per cent for folks in Toronto, including the ticket agencies. Mayor McCallum tried for some extras and was turned down. So were many other prominent parties. We couldn't even get a ducat from sports editors in Toronto—they were swamped with requests from scribes, fellow workers, friends, etc. Yeah, the annual grid classic in Canada is the country's outstanding sports' attraction.

Whoops, Hoops, Oops!

Two colleens' cage contests scheduled for the YWCA gym this Friday evening: Nurses seniors vs. Nurses juniors at 8.15, followed by Black's against Neill's. And the Dec. 2 twin bill has Neill's meeting the Electrics, and Black's going against Nurses seniors. Some lively basketball served up by the lasses as the season progresses, and the public is invited to view these jousts each Friday e'en. The Towne Togs are drilling away, Harry Yudin advises, and may be in LOBA lakeshore league action along about the middle of December. A schedule meeting is set for Dec. 11.

Both the Petes and Legionnaires went through stiff puck practices last eve preparing for their clash tomorrow night at 8.30 in Civic Arena. An exhibition senior "B" scrap betwixt these local rivals, and we use the word "scrap" advisedly. Petes would sooner beat Legion than get backing from Boston Bruins, and Legion will take a win o'er the Petes anytime rather than have Toronto Leafs send 'em money and players! Some think that play will be much closer between these clubs this season, arguing that Legion aren't quite as strong as last semester and that Petes are considerably stronger than the 1948-49 campaign. That remains to be seen, and folks can get a preview of it in the hot tussle coming up on the morrow.

Comes That Schedule

From Frank Buckland of the OHA comes a copy of the Group 1 senior "B" schedule—appearing tonight—which includes Gananoque, Kingston Nylons, Belleville Diesels, Legionnaires and the Petes. With some games from Group No. 2 (Markham, Meteors, Stouffville) worked in. The teams will be designated later in inter-group play. Monday sees the schedule opening with Petes at Belleville, and Gananoque playing Legion here. The following Friday has Legion at Petes. A hefty schedule running till Feb. 10, with first and third, and second and fourth, in group semi-final, the group winner then meeting the winner of Group 2. Better clip out this list tonight.

While a number of applications have been received by the Recreation Commission here for the job of recreation director—to replace Jack Dane, who resigned to take a similar post elsewhere—no Peterborough applications were had up to yesterday. Why is this? Ordinarily, you'd expect a number of men here to be interested in such a position, and there were plenty of local applicants nearly three years ago when the spot was first considered. Of course, uncertainty surrounds the situation to some extent now as to duties of the director, his pay, his tenure of office, his bosses, etc. It would seem to us that clarification is required as much as possible, as insecurity certainly kills off ambition.

CITY CARPETBALL

For the week of November 28 the schedule is: Legion No. 7 vs S.O.E. No. 3. Big Bens No. 1 vs. Legion No. 5 Legion No 6 vs. St Georges No. 2. Quakers No. 4 vs. Glens. No. 10. Treasurere's 9 vs L.O.L. No. 8.

King Billie and his men visited the Legion Hall; but forgot their white horse and the Bakers seized that opportunity and stole two close games 13-9 and 11-8.

The Old Sweats tried heavy mortar fire against the Treasurers at the Fire Hall but failed in both attacks, 10-17 and 11-18.

The Postles tried their luck in attacking the Sons at the "Old Citadel" and while almost successful, were turned back by those violent defenders, 10-8 and 11-9.

The battle-cry Glens, Glens, that roared across the blattel field proved too much for the balance wheel of the Big Bens and were routed in both encounters. 7-17 and 9-11.

The game between Quakers No. 4 an d St. George's No. 2 was postponed; this is the first break in our perfect schedule to date Don't forget that game must be played the week following schedule or some will be defaulted. Big Bens are the latest team to pay their entry fee and that leaves only the Legion teams outstanding.

Keep pushing those draw tickets; money and stubs must be turned in by December 14 at Legion Hall.

MINOR HOCKEY

In their first encounter of the season Clappers and Trojan Juveniles played to a 2-2 draw. Play was fast although Clappers were the faster team. Trojans however put on a good exhibition as this was only their second time on the ice. A crowd of about 200 saw Trojan goaler McGrath turn aside some tough ones and make many fine stops. Penalties were few but Wilson and Douglas went off for two minutes for roughing. Trojans took the lead by scoring at 3.05 of the second period, Dunn unassisted. Sullivan from McGrath evened the score at 13.10. It remained tied until 15.20 of the third period when Clappers went ahead on a goal by Douglas from Stuart. With a minute and 15 seconds left to play, Wailing set Trojans back in the game with the tying goal. Clappers had a man off for the last half minute of play but Trojans appeared too tired to take advantage to score.

Last night's Midget encounter although the score was onesided, was played in a speedy manner. St. Petes couldn't seem to get organized and play was in their end most of the game but they showed good form in checking their opponents and following every play right through. Turner scored two for Marines with Frizelle, Ball, Burns, McGrath and Kearns getting one each.

Friday Optimists Bantams meet St. Petes at 5.45 p.m., and it is St. Petes' vs. Keene at 6.45 in a juvenile game

Schmidt Brings Home Bacon As Bruins Edge Leafs 3-1

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Milt Schmidt, a smooth piece of hockey machinery who's been operating on the professional scene for nine fruitful seasons, picked a tense moment Wednesday night to score his first goal of the current National Hockey League campaign.

Schmidt unleashed a solo dash and broke up a 1-1 deadlock against Toronto Maple Leafs as his last-place Bruins gained a 3-1 victory in Boston.

The 31-year-old playmaker alternating on offensive and defensive posts for the last two seasons, broke up the hectic game midway in the last period.

In the only other game the leading Detroit Red Wings had their hands full in turning back New York Rangers 4-3. The victory gave the Red Wings a string of nine straight games without a defeat.

The Bruins' win moved them into a fourth-place tie with the Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks. All have 13 points.

Broda Out

At Boston, the Bruins—who have managed only five victories in 17 starts—got their last goal after Broda was yanked from his chores for a sixth attacker with 80 seconds left in the game. Peirson, who got two, scored that one when he rifled a 30-footer into the open cage.

Peirson scored the first Boston goal after he took a deflected puck from Toronto defenceman Gus Mortson.

The Leafs got the equalizer late in the second period. Ted Kennedy beat goalie Jackie Gelineau from the edge of the goal-crease.

At Detroit, Joe Carveth got two goals while Ted Lindsay and Jimmy McFadden tallied singles. Pentl Lund, Ed Slowinski and Allan Stanley scored one each for the Rangers.

The teams battled to a 1-1 draw in the first period, but the Red Wings took a 4-1 lead by the end of the second.

Both Detroit and Toronto get back into action tonight. The Leafs take on the third-place Montreal Canadiens at Montreal and the Red Wings clash with the Black Hawks at Chicago.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

The Detroit Red Wings today held the three top spots in the see-saw battle for individual scoring honors in the National Hockey League. Ted Lindsay scored a goal and an assist Wednesday night to bring his point total to 24, three ahead of teammate Sid Abel, and five more than Gord Howe. Doug Bentley of Chicago rides alone in fourth place with five goals and a dozen assists for 17 points, one up on Boston's John Peirson. Another point behind—with 15 points — are Paul Ronty, Boston, and Roy Conacher, Chicago.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts
Lindsay, Detroit	9	14	23
Abel, Detroit	6	14	20
Howe, Detroit	9	9	18
D. Bentley, Chicago..	5	12	17

Stamps Change Policy, All Hush-Hush

OAKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 24 (CP) —It could be that coach Les Lear is showing those "unauthorized" Ottawa-Montreal Big Four football playoff final films to his Calgary Stampeders, but any outsider around the Stamps camp wouldn't know it.

But one thing is certain: there's a lot of hush-hush stuff going around at their highway tourist-cabin headquarters.

Departing from his custom of two a day practices at the nearby Appleby College ground, coach Les Lear has halved this outside work and has adopted behind locked doors skull sessions. The blinds of the main cabin, a 200 foot long building, are drawn and the door locked while Lear talks to his defending Grey Cup champions.

The outsider wouldn't know whether they are "stealing" some of the Alouette plays, via smuggled films, before their Grey Cup date with the eastern champions at Toronto's Varsity Stadium on Saturday. Films are being shown —and $1 will get you $10 they have a lot to do with the Riders-Als final—but no one is saying.

The heavy equipment—about the size of a club bag—Lear carries into the "chalk talk" looks mighty suspicious to hovering newspapermen.

No Loopholes

If Montreal hopes to resiprocate and "steal" some of the Calgary plays, their scouts are in for a tough time. Stampeders practice grounds are situated well off a highway and some energetic students have been posted at the only entrance to keep outsiders from the property.

Lear had his first secret workout here Wednesday afternoon, with only a few sports writers on hand, and it was one of the toughest scrimmage sessions of the season. The players were told by Lear to "let her rip" and the way they went at each other was an invitation to injuries, but they came out of it without a scratch.

Normie Hill, the 20-year-old end who picked the sleeper pass out of the air in the 1948 cup final against Ottawa, arrived shortly before the practice and was going full steam ahead.

Hayman Never Has Coached Losing Team

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL, Nov. 24—(CP)—Lew Hayman has never coached the losing team in a final for the Dominion football championship.

He has never been beaten in the Eastern Canadian final, and only once has a Hayman-coached squad failed to make the Big Four playoff.

That's the record of this serious, 40-year-old executive-coach who will send his Montreal Alouettes against Calgary Stampeders in the Grey Cup classic at Toronto Saturday.

Hayman's accomplishments properly date back to 1933, the year after he came to Canada by way of Paterson, N.J., his home town, and Syracuse University.

In that same year, his first crack at Canadian football as a full-fledged coach, he piloted Toronto Argonauts to the Canadian title. He gave Argos two more, in 1937 and 1938.

In the war years Hayman was an officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force and in 1942 coached the Interservices RCAF Hurricanes to the Canadian championship.

Three Out Of Four

Since coming to Montreal in 1946 he has been in the Big Four playoff three times in four attempts. Now, as a winner in the Eastern final, he moves into the all-Canadian thriller with a powerful team built from scratch in four short seasons.

Missing the playoff in his second year here was a disappointment to Hayman, denied football stardom as a player in his youth. A badly broken leg shattered his dream.

It was during his freshman year at Syracuse University that this misfortune struck him—in football. Before that Hayman starred at high school in his home town and at New York Military Academy, a prep school for the United States Military Academy at West Point. After the accident he was able still to play basketball and baseball.

He was playing-manager of a baseball team of college all-stars in 1932 when he got a call for help from his old Syracuse friend, Warren Stevens, football coach at University of Toronto.

Hayman answered the call, and next season was in the Big Four piloting Argos.

Hayman has the carriage and poise of an athlete. He is no man mountain. He is a trim 156 pounds and stands five feet, nine inches.

Spitfires Crush Dukes 6-2 Barrie, Teepees Battle To Tie

By The Canadian Press.

Even the mighty must take a tumble once in a while, Toronto Marlboros learned Wednesday night as they lost their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A tilt. It was only the third loss for Marlies in 16 games.

Windsor Spitfires, fourth team in the loop, turned the trick by blasting the Dukes 6-2.

In other games Wednesday night, Toronto's Senior Marlboros won the game with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 6-2 to cement their hold on first place. Barrie Flyers and St. Catharines Teepees played to a 6-6 overtime tie in the junior division.

A serious accident marred the senior encounter. Alfie Childs was boardchecked in the third period. He was taken off the ice on a stretcher and removed to hospital where it was reported he was suffering from undetermined head injuries.

At Windsor, Marlboros went into an early but shortlived 1-0 lead when Jack McKenzie tallied unassisted. Glen Skov rapped in the equalizer and three minutes later Lloyd Hinchberger shot Spitfires into the lead.

Earl Rebel, Jack Bailey and Erwin Grosse smacked in three tallies in the middle frame without a Marlie reply. Came the final frame and Bailie tallied his second before Marlies came back via Armstrong.

Thriller of Evening

The contest at Barrie was the thriller of the evening. Both teams collected markers in the opening period. Bill Altoft and Obie O'Brien were the marksmen. Real Chevrelis and Jerry Toppazzini knotted it for Barrie. O'Brien and Real Chevrelis, with his second, traded markers early in the third. Bob Knowles and Obie O'Brien then punched in two more for Teepees. O'Brien's was his third of the game.

St. Catharines seemed to have the game tucked away when Bill Altoft counted his second goal and Teepee's sixth 29 seconds after the opening of the final frame. Jerry Toppazzini then proceeded to score two goals, one of the unassisted variety, and Stan Long notched another tally to dispel any Teepee notions of easy victory. The teams battled through a scoreless evertime period for the split in points.

At Maple Leaf Gardens the Senior Marlboros demonstrated their superiority in their loop.

It was a tie game going into the final frame. Marlboros burst out with a four-goal splurge and held the Dutchmen scoreless to claim the 6-2 verdict. Howie Lee was the first scorer in the game, putting Marlies one up midway through the opening session. Kitchener took the lead in the second on counters by Mike Dzuira and Don Bauer.

Ties It Up

Old reliable, Scottie Mair, tied it up for the Dukes and it was all Marlboros in the closing stanza. Johnny McLellan, Johnny McCormack, Bob Hassard and Ald Childs, who was injured later, all counted with nary a Dutchman reply.

The OHA is idle tonight but six games are carded for Friday night. In the junior series, Marlboros play at Barrie, Oshawa travel to Stratford, Galt visits St. Catharines and Guelph plays host to Windsor.

Deny Knowledge Of Sport Films

TORONTO, Nov. 24—(CP) — Tom Brook, president of Calgary Stampeders, said Wednesday he had heard nothing of motion pictures allegedly taken by subterfuge during the first Ottawa-Montreal Big Four football playoff for use by his club.

"I certainly haven't seen any pictures of that game," said Brook.

Les Lear, coach of the Dominion champions who will meet Montreal Alouettes Saturday in the Grey Cup final, also denied knowledge of any films having been taken of the Eastern playoffs.

"I don't know anything about it," said Brook. "I learned about this report last night and denied it then.

"I have heard so many rumors about Calgary and Lear here, I'm getting a little tired of it."

Fire On Freighter

NEW YORK, Nov 24 (AP). — A fire that broke out aboard the Icelandic freighter Trollafoss shortly after midnight was brought under control within an hour by New York firemen and crew members. Firemen said the blaze started in baled alfalfa in the No. 2 hold while the ship was berthed at an East River pier.

Hockey Effect On Students Not Too Serious

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (CP) — survey by the Canadian Education Association shows hockey's effect on the education of high school students does not reach proportions of a national problem, although there are "grounds for some dissatisfaction" in parts of Ontario and Manitoba, it was disclosed Wednesday night.

The report on the survey recommended that it be referred to education departments of Manitoba and Ontario "for consultations with the appropriate athletic officials."

The survey was made by provincial departments of education in the principal cities across Canada. It was completed some time ago and a copy was sent to Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president.

The association undertook the survey at the request of a national sports conference in Ottawa last January. Following premature release of some of its early information, Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, last spring criticized hockey's effect on students.

Campbell said that Dr. Hall "has never supplied information to back up his charges."

Quotes Figures

Campbell quoted figures from the Ontario survey to show only one out of every 5,682 students quit studies for a hockey career. He said some 200 secondary schools involving 125,000 students were involved in the survey.

"Of that number only 82 were affected in any way by Junior A hockey, and of those who had transferred schools or changed residence to play hockey, all were continuing in school except 22."

He added:

"Experience last year and this fall indicated a notable improvement in the situation. Training camps were shorter, boys considered too young were not invited, others were sent home more promptly and there was better co-operation between team officials and school principals in each community, especially at Barrie and Guelph.

"Toronto Marlboros are paying for special or extra tuition for players who need it."

Since receiving a report on the survey, Campbell has held a meeting last week with Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of Ontario's Department of Education, Gordon Wright, director of physical health and education for Ontario, and George Dueley, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association secretary.

They discussed ways of minimizing any effect of hockey on school work.

Win 11 In Row Barons Zooming

By The Canadain Press

Cleveland Barons just keep rolling along in the Western Division of the American Hockey League.

The goal-hungry Clevelanders made it 11 in a row Wednesday night with a convincing 6-2 triumph over their nearest rivals, St. Louis Flyers.

Providence Reds tightened their grip on first place in the league's Eastern division by shellacking Indianapolis Capitals 6-3. Both the Buffalo Bisons and New Haven Ramblers were idle.

Pittsburgh Hornets out-scored Springfield Indians 5-3 in the only other game Wednesday night to move into third place in the Western division ahead of Indianapolis.

Ken Shultz led the Cleveland attack with a pair of markers while Roy Kelly, Pete Leswick, Tod Sloan and Hy Buller sniped singles.

Lloyd Doran and Paul Gladu scored for St. Louis.

The Reds were led to victory by Harvey Fraser who tallied once in each period. It was the second hat trick for the veteran centre in two games. He notched three goals against Hershey Bears last Sunday.

Ray Laplante, Carl Liscombe and Jack McGill were the other Providence marksmen.

Pat Lundy connected twice for the Caps while Freddy Glover fired a single.

Charges Dismissed On Obscene Book

BRANTFORD, Nov. 24 (CP) — Judge D. J. Cowan Wednesday night dismissed charges of exposing for sale an obscene book, "The Amboy Dukes," laid against John R. Goodman and the American News Company.

Judge Cowan said the book "is not the type I would have in my own library," but he found that the Crown had not proven that accused had knowingly exposed for sale obscene literature.

Judge Cowan said he did not consider that the book, picturing juvenile delinquency in a section of Brooklyn, would deprave or corrupt morals. "I think it could portray what goes on in part of a large city," he said.

Witnesses for the Crown during the two-day trial included W S. Turner, headmaster of Brantford Collegiate, who called the book "literary sewage." For the defence E. J. Lukas, director of the New York Society for Prevention of Crime, said he knew the section of Brooklyn portrayed in the book and called it "a true picture."

Place Fifth For Oats At Royal Winter Fair

MILLBROOK, Nov. 24—(ENS) —Arnold Brackenridge, of Millbrook, came fifth among junior farmers throughout the Dominion for his seed oats exhibited at the Royal Winter Fair. His exhibit was in the competition of the grain growing clubs of the Junior Farmers.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Frank (King) Clancy, one of hockey's all-time greats, retired as a player 13 years ago today. He turned professional with Ottawa Senators in 1922 at the age of 18 and went to Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1930-31 season. He became senior referee of the National Hockey League in 1937, a position he held for 11 years, and is at present coach of the Cincinnati Mohawks.

New Members Take Spotlight On Senate Floor

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP)—New members took the spotlight in the Senate Wednesday.

Senator Thomas Reid (L-British Columbia) launched a discussion on whether or not legislation should be studied more often by the committee of the whole house rather than in smaller committees.

Later, Senator J. J. H. Doone (L-New Brunswick) in his maiden speech, supported a motion by Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario) that a bill of rights be presented to the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial Conference on constitutional matters.

The Upper Chamber also passed a bill amending the Animal Contagious Diseases Act. This bill, providing higher payments to farmers whose livestock have been killed by the federal authorities because of contagious diseases, now awaits Royal assent.

Senator Reid said he felt some bills should come before the committee of the whole, since they received little discussion in the Senate. Senators who were not members of committee had little chance to study details of the bills.

Stand On Slavery

Senator Doone, supporting the Bill of Rights resolution, said that his native county of Charlotte had taken what he believed was the first stand against slavery.

He disagreed with previous speakers that the Bill of Rights offered by Senator Roebuck was either "too idealistic" or "premature."

Such things as the Senate prayers or the 10 Commandments, although not adhered to strictly by civilization, were never criticized as "too idealistic." Moreover, idealism and the principals of justice "are never premature."

A Slight Error

TORONTO, Nov 24 — (CP).— A power shovel operator on the downtown Yonge Street subway construction project Wednesday dumped his shovel on top of a 6-inch water main, sending a torrent of water through an adjoining basement dining room. While other workers constructed a trench to carry the torrent into the main sewer water washed 10 inches deep through the dining-room and kitchen of the adjacent restaurant. An elderly matron, disregarding draggled skirts, told a waitress, "I will not go until I have drunk my beer."

No Caucus Fireworks

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Liberal members of Parliament met for 90 minutes Wednesday night in a caucus reported to have been "quiet and not out of the ordinary." Party members said "no fireworks" developed despite earlier reports that some backbenchers were planning to criticize Cabinet handling of controversial matters It is understood a number of matters now before the House were discussed at the caucus unheatedly.

Suspend 10,000 Fine

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP) —Amtorg, the Russian trading agency, Wednesday was fined $10,000 for failing to register as a foreign agent, but the fine was suspended. The government dropped indictments against six top officials of the agency, also charged with failure to register. Amtorg and its officers had ignored a series of notices from the government that the law required registration with the Justice Department as representatives of a foreign principal.

Supply Own Oil Needs By 1960 Canada Told

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—(CP).—Canada should be producing enough oil within the next 10 years to supply all her needs and have a little left over for export, M. L. Haider of Toronto, said here Wednesday in an interview.

Mr. Haider, production chief for Imperial Oil Company Ltd., added: "Although it's chystal-gazing somewhat, on the basis of a 5,000,000,000 barrel oil reserve at a 6 per cent annual production increase, I would say we will be self-sufficient by 1960.

"Canadians should get over the idea, however, that Alberta is another Texas. The prairies have an oil reserve of only 10,000,000,000 barrels."

Say Oil Program Held Up By Law

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24—(CP)—British Columbia's "restrictive" oil and gas laws are holding up expansion and exploratory programs, two senior officials of Imperial Oil Co. Ltd., said Wednesday in an interview.

"The whole philosophy of government regulations is not conducive to any moves at the present time," said G. I. Stewart of Toronto, president of Imperial, Canada's largest oil company.

He said the company has led in the fight against price-fixing of gasoline, and has attacked laws that govern oil exploration in British Columbia.

"In British Columbia, the crown can withdraw any lands at any time as crown reserves," said M. L. Haider, director of the company. "It means that a company can't afford to spend millions to find one oil field and no more."

Imperial is not doing any exploring for oil in B.C. now, but in past years examined Vancouver Island and eastern sections of the province.

Seek Lower Costs Higher Standards

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 24—(CP)—"If we can achieve lower costs and higher standards, no depression will ever hit the farmers of Ontario," Agriculture Minister Kennedy said here Wednesday in an address to the 300 delegates attending the 20th annual convention of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association.

He advocated greater consumption of milk by adults and children across the province.

Paul G. Kemp advocated the use of plastic milk tokens of various shapes and sizes for the dairy products, as an economy measure. He said the tokens can be produced in Canada as a cost below their selling price in the United States. They will last for several years.

Canadians Won't Make Up Minds Wait For Snow, Seek Bookings

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—Icy gales whipped through Toronto Wednesday and set the telephones ringing in the travel agencies. But the would-be tourists were too late.

"Canadians are too slow, they won't make up their minds," stormed 65-year-old A. F. Webster, head of the oldest operating steamship agency on this continent.

"They wait till winter actually starts and then want to take a West Indian cruise. Well, they're too late. The Furness Line to Bermuda is booked out. The Canadian National to the Windward and Leeward Islands is booked out. And the CN ships to Nassau and Jamaica are almost full," he said.

Mr. Webster said Canadians could no longer go to the West Indies by the United Fruit Co. ships or the CPR, because they could not get U.S. dollars to go cruising with the UF Co., and the CPR lost its cruise ships during the war.

Must Book Early

"We've been trying to get it thumped through people's heads for years that they must book early," he said, "but they won't learn.'"

The only other routes to the Sunny South are by air. Trans-Canada Airlines reports bookings already made for February.

"You're right about the last minute bookings," laughed Frank Plum, TCA travel agent. "We've been getting calls at midnight—people finishing up a bridge party—and they want a booking for Bermuda or Kingston in three days' time."

"The thing that surprises me," he added, "is that they actually use them. I thought at first it was just a gag, but I checked up, and each time the people went."

Mr. Plum said the favorite holiday spots this year are Kingston, Jamaica, and Port of Spain, Trinidad.

"Bermuda and Nassau have raised their prices so much that it offsets the effects of devaluation," he said said, "but Jamaica and Trinidad will cost much less this year than they did last."

Cunard Steamships and Canadian Pacific are offering lower winter rates for trans-Atlantic passengers now, but their summer booking to England are already over the top.

E. F. Thompson, general passenger agent for Canadian Pacific Steamships, said: "We will have another ship on the run next year, the Empress of Scotland, but we already have applications for more people than we can carry. I'm afraid a lot of people are going to be disappointed."

Born In Taxicab

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 24 (AP)—The stork won another race with a taxicab here Wednesday night.

Driver A. E. Vangorden, the father of four, glanced back on the way to the hospital at his new seven-pound, eight-ounce fare. His authoritative instructions to the new father—Raymond R. Eddy:

"Clean out its mouth and spank it, buddy."

Mother and daughter were doing fine today.

Churchill Suffers From Severe Cold

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Winston Churchill, who is suffering from a severe cold, sent out this word to the press today:

"I am going on all right."

Lord Moran, the Conservative party leader's doctor, has advised him to stay indoors until his condition improves.

Churchill was forced to cancel his attendance Wednesday night at the annual dinner of the Inner Temple, a law society, of which the King is treasurer.

Railway Pays Guelph

GUELPH, Nov. 24—(CP)—Revenue of the city-owned Guelph Junction Railway, which operates between the city and the main line of the C.P.R. at Guelph Junction, was a record $14,620 during the last three months, it was announced today. The railway was built in 1868 at an original outlay of $200,000. Since that time, Guelph has received dividends of more than $2,000,000 from the CPR.

Ease Controls Over Austria

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—The New York Times says today that Russia and the western Big Three allies have agreed to let Austria stockpile steel, chemicals and certain other strategic materials.

This "major concession" by the Russians, the Times says, brings the drafting of an independence treaty for Austria close to the final stage of negotiations. The negotiations are being carried on here by the Big Four Deputy Foreign Ministers.

The Times says that Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia personally informed representatives of Britain, the United States and France that the Kremlin would abandon its earlier insistence on strict controls for Austrian supplies of materials potentially useful in war.

The western powers have argued that such basic raw materials were essential to Austrian recovery and that such Austrian stockpiles would not be a threat to peace.

The Times adds that the western powers hoped to have an approved treaty draft by next March at the latest.

Brooklyn Druggist Is Freed Of Murder Charge After Being Sentenced Twice To The Electric Chair

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP) — A long, death house ordeal was over today for a tense little Brooklyn druggist, finally freed from a murder charge of which he had been twice convicted.

An all male jury Wednesday found 41-year-old Benjamin Feldman innocent of the strychnine poisoning of his young wife.

Two times before Feldman had been convicted and sentenced to the electric chair, only to be saved by reversals in the State Court of Appeals.

The jury at the third trial deliberated nearly 20 hours before reaching a verdict.

The small, chubby defendant, pale from two years in Sing Sing prison's death house, rushed into the corridor outside the courtroom with tears in his eyes.

"I never lost faith," he said, hugging relatives and friends.

Then he dropped to his knees, kissing the shoes of his defense counsel, Hyman Barshay.

The embarrassed lawyer helped Feldman to his feet, whereupon the druggist kissed Barshay on the cheek.

Mother-in-law Dies

Feldman married his wife, Harriet, in 1940, after a marriage broker arranged their meeting. A year later, the bride's mother died in agony, screaming, "Don't touch my feet."

Feldman's wife got half of the $50,000 insurance left by her mother.

Two years later, Feldman's 23-year-old wife, then pregnant, was overcome with convulsions, and was taken to a hospital. Like her mother, she died screaming of pain in her feet.

Her aunt, Mrs. Beatrice Hoffberg, became suspicious. She learned that foot pains are a symptom of strychnine poisoning.

She persuaded authorities to investigate. The bodies of the two women eventually were exhumed and their organs were found to contain strychnine.

The State charged that druggist Feldman murdered his wife to obtain possession of her share of her mother's insurance.

In none of his three trials, the first of which was held in 1946, did Feldman take the witness stand.

New Union Anxious To Rush Worker Voting; UE Urges Delay

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 — The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, expelled from the Congress of Industrial Organizations on charges of Communist domination, expressed willingness this week to match its popularity with its new CIO rival in National Labor Relations Board elections next March 5.

The new union promptly replied that it did not want to wait until March but would press for immediate votes among 200,000 employees of General Electric and Westinghouse, the two biggest companies in the electrical industry.

The demand for immediate elections was made by James B. Carey, national CIO secertary - treasurer and temporary chairman of the administrative committee for the CIO's International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

The UE announced that the suggestion for putting off the votes until March had been put forward by representatives of General Electric and Westinghouse locals to avoid interference with existing contracts, which did not expire until April 1.

President Gives U. E.'s View

Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the UE, asserted that the agreements were legal and binding and that negotiations were now being conducted by UE for increases in wages, pensions and other benefits.

"The procedure we suggest would prevent reckless flouting of established collective bargaining procedures," Mr. Fitzgerald declared. "Any action on the part of the Taft-Hartley board to break existing contracts would lead to chaos in collective bargaining not only in our industry but throughout the nation."

Mr. Carey replied that the best way to protect the interests of the General Electric and Westinghouse workers would be to free them from "Communist representation" at the earliest possible time. Noting that his union had already filed petitions with the NLRB, the CIO leader said that the CIO would expect the board to move without delay to test the collective bargaining desires of the electrical workers.

"We do not want to protect them retroactively," Mr. Carey said. "We want the elections as soon as we can get them. Tomorrow is none too soon."

New Union Set to Organize

The new union is scheduled to hold its organizing convention in Philadelphia next week and it is expected that the drive for quick elections will go into high gear at that time.

However, NLRB officials expressed belief that litigation over the board's right to conduct elections during the life of present contracts might make it impossible to hold election before March, no matter how the courts might eventually rule.

Wheat Barter Deal

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24 (CP)— The Vancouver News-Herald today says it has learned details of a $2,000,000 wheat barter deal between Japan and the Bunge Corporation of New York. The story quotes the corporation's Vancouver representative Fred L. A. Ottinger, as confirming the purchase of about 600,000 bushels of wheat from the Canadian Wheat Board at $2.35 a bushel. Mr. Ottinger has declined to say what Japan will barter for the grain. The deal would be the first such in Canadian history.

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA EXECUTIVES ADDRESS 75th. ANNUAL MEETING

Problems Of International Trade Must Be Solved

Toronto, November 23:—The 75th. Annual Meeting of Imperial Bank of Canada was held today at the Head Office in Toronto. The Chairman of the Board, Mr. R. S. Waldie, commented on the fact that the Bank has grown steadily over its 75 years without the aid of mergers or amalgamations, although the assets of a small Western institution serving a limited territory in Saskatchewan were purchased in 1931.

It has built up a reputation, second to none, and has won its own place in public confidence for security and service. Mr. Waldie stated that the Bank has over 390,000 savings depositors and more than 60,000 current account depositors while shareholders number 3,073. The Bank has paid dividends annually to its shareholders since its inception.

Mr. Waldie continued in part:—

Canadian Banks have always been in the forefront in opening up new territory and providing banking facilities, often actually in advance of the needs of the community, and none more so than the Imperial Bank of Canada. In addition to catering to the needs of industry in the larger centres, the Bank has always been ready to foster industry in the smaller places and to assist the small farmer, trader, industrialist or business man, who in the long run form the backbone of the nation.

In addition to its branches in the larger places the Bank has throughout the various provinces 55 branches in communities with a population of 1,000 or less and 34 branches in communities with between 1,000 and 5,000 population. In 72 of these smaller communities the Bank owns its own premises and is a substantial taxpayer. In all these places the branch managers and their staffs are active members of the local communities.

BUSINESS IN 1949

On the whole, the year since our last Annual Meeting has been one of surprising stability. The very large investment in factories, machines, houses and services, which has been so great a factor in creating active business conditions since the war, has been fully maintained and even extended. In comparison with the previous year, there has been less investment in manufacturing plants and more in public utilities and housing. Our exports, which were expected to be under some pressure, have in total held up well. There has been some decline in particular products but, as regards markets, only that of Continental Europe has as yet shown a pronounced drop. Wages have risen but less than in previous years. While there has been some slight fall in prices, they have, on the whole, been remarkably steady. Unemployment has been somewhat higher but it has been chiefly seasonal unemployment and its relative size has been small.

As in our own Bank, banking business in Canada has shown a marked steadiness and growth. Total bank assets are somewhat higher than a year ago and the increase is fairly evenly distributed among loans, securities and cash reserves.

Notwithstanding the tax reductions of the last Budget, the revenues of the National Government have continued buoyant, and despite some increase in expenditures, a sizeable budgetary surplus is being built up.

The year behind us has been one of steady achievement and prosperity, better on the whole than had been forecast.

THE PROSPECTS AHEAD

One of the most helpful developments in the past year and equally promising for the future has been the extension of oil discoveries in Alberta and other western provinces and their rapid and efficient expansion. The area which can presently be served by the thousand producing wells has been turned from an area importing oil from the United States to one which is self-supporting. When the new pipeline and other facilities for efficient transportation become available, Western Canada will be able to supply much of the oil requirements of the East or, alternatively, if suitable trade arrangements can be made, can export large quantities to the United States, and so offset the eastern imports from the United States and Central and South America.

The great flow of capital to this area has been very important in maintaining business activity throughout the year. The rapid development of such resources presents, however, many difficult problems, problems in the fair and efficient use of natural resources and in the provision for a rapid influx in population. I should like to pay a tribute to the Premier of Alberta, Mr. Manning, and his Cabinet, for their wisdom and foresight in the provisions they have made for allotting oil-bearing and prospective oil-bearing properties, and for the care which they have exercised in protecting the public interest. In fact, I do not recall any better example in our history of the prudent and systematic management of public resources.

Other domestic factors, influencing the level of business, also promise well for the future. Despite drought, the farming communities generally have had a good year. Notwithstanding variations among particular groups, there is in total ample income in the hands of consumers to maintain a high level of purchasing.

We may expect, particularly in the larger urban communities, continued large expenditures to provide services to larger and more actively engaged populations. Transportation and public utilities, water and sewage installations, schools, hospital and other health services still represent a considerable backlog of expenditure whether it is the spending of governments, or supported by government grants, or the investment of private capital.

In the field of housing, about 100,000 units will have been completed by the end of the year. For the first time since the war more units have been built than there were new families to occupy them and we had reduced somewhat the backlog. We may expect house construction to be active in the coming year but the problem of costs is a serious one. Houses produced by the speculative builder are not selling as rapidly as before. Many people are paying rents or debt charges which are too high for their incomes. While a housing slump is not immediately in prospect, demand will soon be choked off unless substantial reductions in construction costs can be achieved.

If we look at our internal situation only, we must conclude that the outlook for business activity is favourable. We can never forget, however, the degree to which our economic well-being is dependent on our external trade. Almost the whole of our primary industry is very heavily dependent on outside markets and a smaller but significant part of our secondary industry requires foreign markets in addition to home demand. When we look abroad, we can see serious difficulties which may beset our path in the future.

Prosperity of United Kingdom and Europe Bound Up With America

In speaking of this summer's crisis, we should not overlook the very substantial and real recovery which has taken place in the United Kingdom and in Europe. The production in western Europe with the exception of western Germany is well above the pre-war level. The United Kingdom has succeeded in raising its exports on a volume basis about 50 per cent above the pre-war level. While the crisis which occurred was particularly a sterling crisis, the United Kingdom in fact had done very much more towards increasing its exports and balancing its accounts than any European country.

It is true that Europe and the United Kingdom have been enormously weakened by two world wars, but the real roots of the crisis go deeper even than that. For four centuries, Europe was the expanding and dynamic centre of the economic world. For the past sixty years or more, her position has been declining. There has been a slackening of new investment and of industrial modernization and a loss of competitive strength in external markets. The real situation has been concealed by the using up of capital, both internal and external, and by the low level of business activity in the inter-war years.

The immediate crisis has subsided. The fundamental question still remains. There must be, over the next few years, a great readjustment in world trade. If Europe is to earn her living she must sell much more to North America. But, is North America willing to accept the increase in imports which will be necessary if the United Kingdom and Europe are to succeed in balancing their accounts? Is North America willing continuously to invest abroad such export surpluses as may result from her trading? Is the United States willing to see her export surplus disappear or be converted into an import surplus? It is only by so doing that the United States will assume the full responsibilities which attach to her position as the greatest creditor nation. This is the transformation which must come about if the western trading world is to be re-created and a solid sub-structure is to be placed under The Atlantic Pact. These are the final questions of which the devaluation crisis was merely the advance notice.

There is a danger of thinking in out-of-date terms. In the thirties we thought of imports as unwanted goods and threats to jobs. Now there are many goods which we want. Moreover, high wages on this Continent have made goods with high labour contents almost too expensive to buy. It is precisely these goods which Europe can produce cheaply, for her greatest assets are the number and skill of her workers.

There is a second and for Canada a more serious consideration. The United Kingdom and Europe are naturally deficient in food and some raw materials. There is no other alternative market for a substantial part of our cereals and some other foods, our lumber and to some degree our metals. Unless their capacity to pay is increased by the growing proceeds of their exports, Europe and the United Kingdom will be forced to seek a position nearer to self-sufficiency. If they do so, their standard of living will be sharply reduced and so also will ours.

It is the United States which must accept the larger challenge. Canada's export surplus is small and we have been great importers as well as great exporters. But in smaller measure, there is also a challenge to this country. We too must be prepared to take more imports from the United Kingdom and Europe.

The great question of our economic future is, can Europe and North America achieve a new and mutually beneficial relationship, one which will improve standards of living on both Continents and place a solid foundation under The Atlantic Pact? This is not merely a challenge to governments, it is a challenge to free enterprise on this Continent whose boast it is that it has the flexibility, initiative and resourcefulness to cope successfully with new situations.

Business Maintained at High Level

Long Term Prosperity Assured Says Bank General Manager

Toronto, November 23:—Mr. I. K. Johnston, General Manager, Imperial Bank of Canada, speaking to the 75th. Annual Meeting of Shareholders held in Toronto today, stressed the fact that the prosperity of the country at this point was undoubted and general business of all kinds was maintained at a very high level in 1949.

Mr. Johnston, commenting, on general business conditions said in part: Our crops in the year were not up to those of 1948 owing to lack of subsoil moisture in the West and a prolonged drought in the East but in spite of these hindrances were substantial. General business of all kinds was maintained at a very high level and our prosperity at this point is undoubted. This is evidenced by our Statement, just read to you, as our branches cover the country and since we opened in Halifax I can say properly—from Halifax to Victoria and from the southern border to Yellowknife in the North West Territories.

Last year I mentioned the oil developments in Alberta and the iron ore in Quebec and Labrador. Undoubtedly these two developments are most outstanding and we may look to them for years as great supports to our economy.

In the oil situation we now see much that was potential become actual and with millions of acres well located but not yet explored the potential is so great that it is difficult for any of us to grasp fully the possibilities. Many millions of dollars were spent before great results were obtained, an example of what can be done when hope and optimism are joined in vigorous action. The Government of the Province of Alberta have handled this great resource in a most efficient manner for the good of the people of the Province and of all Canada. I am happy in the knowledge that our 25 branches in the fine Province of Alberta are strategically placed to serve the provincial population and to obtain advantage from this great development. It is interesting to recall that we were the first Bank to open in the capital city, Edmonton, September 1891 and we have now five branches in that city. The iron ore development is of necessity slower, but the possibilities are of world significance.

Our non-ferrous mining industry is prospering and during the year we saw the great Quemont mine brought into production as scheduled—a fine engineering feat under present conditions.

In connection with our gold mining industry I hope that ways and means will be found to accelerate exploration and keep it at a high level. It is of great advantage for us to know what we have, even if under present-day conditions it is not profitable to fully develop it.

It seems to me that considering the geographical situation of Canada, increased population would be a great strength to us. From an internal standpoint it would lessen our dependence on exports by increasing the domestic markets and support and spread our tax burden. Our population of 13 and one half millions, is approximately that of the United States 115 years ago. We have much to offer and since our increased housing is only keeping pace with our increased yearly requirements, apart from our backlog of demand, it would be helpful if we could attract to this country skilled workers in the trades allied to the building industry.

Our attention in the Bank at this time is turned to the past as this is our Seventy-Fifth Anniversary, and if I may make a personal reference I will tell you that I have known all of the six previous General Managers, Mr. Wilkie having been General Manager when I entered in 1904. In 1875 when the Bank opened his title was "Cashier". The capital of the Bank was $500,000; we had one branch and a staff of eight. Mr. Wilkie died in 1914, then being President and General Manager, and your Bank had been built into a sound and flourishing institution of which he was very proud. We owe him much for the good foundation and the tradition of sound banking which he left. In my time in Toronto I have had the privilege of working under Mr. Phipps and Mr. Jaffray, as well as Mr. More, all different personalities but having one thought in common, the welfare of this Bank. I know that you are sorry, as I am, not to have our President with us today and I feel you join with me in the hope for his recovery.

In this new and challenging age it is yearly more difficult to predict very far in advance. We have scars to show of our troubles in the past and I believe we have a better understanding of many things as a result. The immediate present is bright but there are some matters of which a full appraisal is not yet possible, such as the devaluation of Sterling and our own exchange. Notwithstanding these and other uncertainties I feel there is an urge behind business as a whole which will make the coming year an equally good one, but business generally will be wise to continue to operate with care in the matter of strict attention to developments and maintenance of sound and balanced positions.

In closing I would like to pay a tribute to the assistance and kindly guidance I have had from our Chairman of the Board Mr. Waldie, our President Mr. More, our Vice-President Mr. Hobbs, and our Board of Directors, all of whom take a lively interest in the affairs of your Bank. In addition I have appreciated the support of the Assistant General Managers, Mr. Mackersy and Mr. Proctor.

Double Liability For Bank Shareholders To End Jan. 1st

Toronto, November 23:—An historical note of interest to Bank Shareholders was mentioned today by Mr. I. K. Johnston, General Manager of Imperial Bank of Canada, in his address to shareholders at the 75th. Annual Meeting. It concerned the notes of Imperial Bank still in circulation, and he announced that this was the last time that this item would appear in the Bank's Financial Statement. It had appeared in the Statements ever since 1876 but within thirty days after the 1st of January, 1950 all Chartered Banks are required to pay to the Bank of Canada the face value of all their notes then outstanding. Thereafter the Bank of Canada will become responsible for the redemption of all bank notes, and the last vestige of what was known as the double liability of Bank shareholders will no longer exist.

Devaluation Affects Many Countries

Toronto, November 23:—Commenting on the effects of devaluation Mr. R. S. Waldie, Chairman of the Board, Imperial Bank of Canada said in part: One of the external situations which profoundly affects the future of this country is that which recently gave rise to the drastic devaluation of sterling and many other currencies. In its immediate causes, it was related to the business recession in the United States. Purchases of raw materials by the United States from the sterling area, particularly rubber and tin, declined sharply, and sales of the United Kingdom manufactures in the United States also fell off. The sterling area was simply one of the victims of the general slow-up in purchasing occasioned by the desire to reduce inventories. When it appeared that the pound was in danger, there occurred, of course, a secondary postponement of purchasing which made devaluation inevitable.

Behind these immediate circumstances, lay the fact that sterling prices were out of line with North American prices. In part, insufficient progress had been made in improving the efficiency of production, but in part also prices and costs were set by the great demands of the home market and the sterling area for goods.

The potential benefit to be derived by the United Kingdom from devaluation is that, if the dollar prices of sterling exports are maintained, it will be more profitable to sell them in the dollar areas, while profit margins on sales to the sterling area will be unchanged. In respect to those articles on which dollar prices are cut, there will be an improvement in the competitive position of British goods in the dollar markets. One need not, of course, be blind to the possibility that the advantages of devaluation may be quickly absorbed by rising costs in the United Kingdom, if inflation, whether it comes from government or private expenditures, is not dampened down.

Canada's devaluation is an incident in this larger background. Opinions concerning it may differ. We should, however, note that while in 1946 United States prices were much higher than Canada, the indexes now show them to be lower. The sterling devaluation, if untempered by our own, would have greatly increased the cost of imports from Canada in all parts of the sterling area. The change in the exchange rate gives an incentive to increase our exports to the United States and diminish our imports from that country which should be helpful to our balance of payments.

Assets and Deposits At All Time High

Toronto, November 23:—Speaking to shareholders at the Annual Meeting today the General Manager said in part:—"The seventy-fifth Annual Statement now before you shows total assets of $519,040,569, the highest figure yet attained". The increase for the year was $47,197,000.

PROFITS

The Profits before depreciation and taxes were $2,110,075, an increase of $273,497. Dominion and Provincial taxes amounted to $679,000. Dividends of $1.20 per share amounted to $840,000.

DEPOSITS

Deposits of $476,270,031, are also an all time high and show an increase for the year of $46,169,000. "We are happy to say we do not see any inflationary signs in these increases."

INVESTMENTS AND LOANS

Our investments not exceeding market value total $228,012,231, an increase of $26,769,000, short term Dominion securities being less by $5,826,000 due to the redemption by the Government of their Deposit Certificates; and longer term Dominions higher by $33,227,000—an ample portfolio of readily marketable securities.

Loans total $193,157,645, an increase of $9,877,000 of which $6,459,000 is in current loans and $3,825,000 is in loans to cities, towns and municipalities. These loans are widely diversified and carefully supervised and we are doing our full part in meeting the needs of our customers, both large and small. The great number of small customers makes their business important and very welcome.

BANK PREMISES AND BRANCHES

Bank Premises account, including furniture, fixtures and equipment, stands at $6,372,376, an increase of $233,000.

Our increasing business has made it necessary to renovate and enlarge many of our branches, and in the last few years the mechanizing of branches has been greatly increased. This machine equipment has been the means of improving working conditions considerably. We are keeping our offices as up-to-date and attractive as possible.

During the year the following branches were opened—Forest Hill Village, Cornwall, Guelph, Rocky Island—sub to Thessalon, in the Province of Ontario; Halifax, Nova Scotia; East Kildonan, Manitoba; Loon Lake, Saskatchewan; Mayerthorpe, Alberta; Broadway and Cambie Streets, Vancouver, British Columbia. Our new branch at Halifax, N.S., is our first in the Maritimes, and our staff who opened this branch were received with true Maritime hospitality. Including the above, we now have 208 branches, located as follows—Nova Scotia—1, Quebec—6, Ontario—126, Manitoba—8, Saskatchewan—24, Alberta—25, British Columbia—17, Northwest Territories—1.

Staff a Most Important Asset

Mr. Johnston continued:—

"During the year our staff increased 162 now numbering 2,563 of which 1,157 are young ladies. Expanding business and the opening of new branches have provided many opportunities for promotion and goes to show the progressive future which awaits young men of energy and talent who wish to take up a career with the Bank.

Our Staff is regarded as one of the most important assets the Bank has, although of course it cannot be taken into the Balance Sheet. The steady increase in business which your Bank enjoys is due to the watchfulness and enterprise of our Managers and the efficiency, courtesy, and helpfulness of their Staffs, both men and young ladies. I am very proud of the conscientious, hard-working and efficient Staff of this Bank."

Higher Prices In Canada Reduce Trade With U.S.

Toronto, November 23:—Mr. R. S. Waldie, Chairman of the Board, Imperial Bank of Canada, commenting on conditions in the United States, stated the recession in the United States, which was so frequently predicted over so long a period finally took shape during the past year. Business has been so active in Canada that perhaps insufficient attention has been given to conditions about which so much has been said in advance. The United States index of industrial production which stood at 191 in August, 1948, had fallen twelve months later to 170. Wholesale prices, which stood at a peak of almost 170 in August, 1948, declined in the next twelve months to 153, a decline of around 1% a month. There were 1,900,000 unemployed in August 1948, and this year the figure was 3,700,000.

These changes do not in themselves represent a serious recession, certainly not if we have already seen the full extent of it. But, they have not been without their effects on this country. Two years ago United States' wholesale prices, in comparison with pre-war levels were 18% higher than Canadian prices. Now United States prices are slightly lower than ours. This reversal has occasioned some difficulty in maintaining our exports to the United States. It has meant also that there has been some increase in imports which have been priced more attractively than our own production. The most notable increase in imports has been in steel where supply rather than price has been the decisive influence. There is no doubt that without the prohibitions and quotas which still apply under the Exchange Conservation Act, the increase of our imports from the United States would have been much greater. Whether the recession in the United States has run its course, it is difficult to say. There has been some revival in the late summer and fall but there are also some signs that the revival is losing strength.

Whatever the future course may be and despite the temporary advantage given by the devaluation of our dollar, it will be well for all Canadian businesses to watch carefully their position in relation to competition from the United States.

Raps Russia For Failure To Pay Share

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—(CP).—A Government spokesman cracked out at Russia Wednesday for boasting of her progress and at the same time failing to pay a fair share of the budget of the United Nations.

A. D. P. Heeney, undersecretary of state for external affairs, told a Commons committee Russia pays 6.34 per cent. of the budget as compared to 3.20 paid by Canada, 39.79 by the United States and 11.37 by the United Kingdom. He said the Government "is convinced we are paying more than our reasonable and equitable share."

He gave the statement in answer to Gordon Graydon (PC Peel) who promptly commented that "a reasonably high percentage of the assessment should be charged to Russia to put the onus on her to prove it too high. . . . She can't blow hot and cold on this business."

Mr. Heeney said absence of statistical information on Eastern Europe generally makes it difficult to change the existing situation and security considerations made it doubtful that the situation will change. Certain Latin-American countries were under-assessed, too.

Canada Penalized

Canada, in effect, was penalized because she had an abundance of statistics available from which assessments could be made by a 14-man UN committee.

Contributions were primarily based on national income, but there were qualifying factors such as per capita income, war dislocation and ability to obtain foreign currency. The "serious handicap" of lack of information about certain countries meant that there had been no marked change from the original assessments, although yearly reviews were promised.

Mr. Graydon interjected that "it would seem to be an unreal setup when one considers their own (Russia's) estimation of their own importance."

Mr. Heeney said one measure taken to safeguard Canada was to support proposals that the U.S. contribution of 39.79 be considered a ceiling. But he wished to express regret that certain Eastern European countries don't make adequate information available.

Senator Plain Farmer Not An Agriculturist

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—(CP). — Senator R. B. Horner (PC, Saskatchewan) said Wednesday in the Senate that he wants to make it plain that he is a farmer, not an "agriculturist."

Senator Horner objected to a statement by Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader. During a debate on daylight time Senator Haig had said Senator Horner was an "agriculturist, who makes his money in the city and spends it on the farm."

The towering Saskatchewan senator said he had "never made a five-cent piece" in the city.

"If it were an earlier day," said the 65-year-old senator, "I would challenge him to a duel."

"Daylight saving time?" queried Senator S. S. McKeen (L, British Columbia).

Senator Horner said he still is a practicing farmer and strangers seeing him in his own riding wouldn't believe he was a senator. There was "no color of truth" in Senator Haig's description.

Brief Urges Television Excluded From Commercial Interests

MONTREAL, Nov. 24 (CP) — The Canadian Group of Painters recommended today to the Royal Commission of Arts, Letters and Sciences that control of television in Canada be excluded from private or commercial interests.

The submission of the artists' organization, a society of 50 painters which grew out of Canada's famed "Group of Seven" was presented by Arthur Lismer on the second day of the Commission's four-day Montreal hearing.

With respect to the CBC and the National Film Board, the group's brief said it is in agreement with the present policies and proposals for the expansion of these two bodies. It recommended "no interference with their present policy but rather greater encouragement and assistance to both."

It also recommended that "television in Canada be placed under control of the CBC with advice, where necessary, from the National Gallery of Canada, and the NFB, and that any control of television be excluded from private or commercial nterests."

Want Gallery

The artists recommended an immediate start on the long-proposed national gallery building and establishment of a national arts board under the Secretary of State.

Duties of the arts board should be "to publicize and encourage the artistic achievements of Canada by placing of representative works of art in Canadian Embassies abroad and in public buildings in Canada so that it may be known that Canada produces more than agriculture, minerals, wheat and pulp and paper."

The board should make available fellowships and scholarships for practising artists and students and "should generally oversee and foster and encourage all other cultural activities in Canada."

Help With Tourists

A group of Montreal painters headed by Alfred Pellan, professor of painting at the school of fine arts in Montreal, suggested that artists be used in Canada's tourist publicity.

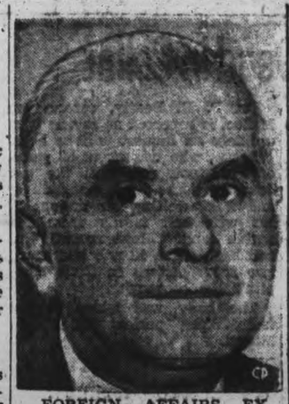
Too often, the French-Canadian group said, tourist publicity is confined to "so-called commercial artists."

It found a need for a Canadian "cultural centre," where all the living arts could be bought together, and for well-organized galleries in the large cities.

A suggestion that Canada establish an organization similar to a permanent body in Britain which subsidizes concert tours, dramatic presentations, books and masterpieces-of-art exhibitions came in a brief from La Society et de Conferences (Lecture and Study Society)."

La Societe, a women's cultural group with 1,400 members in Ontario and Quebec, found that Canadian radio stations did not contribute as much as they might to the progress of individual and national culture, and it wondered why more N.F.B. films were not seen in theatres.

"Under the impetus of important and well-organized groups, the objectives of which are more political and civic than cultural, the broadcasting stations carry out post-graduate teaching courses on citizenship, appeals to democratic virtues, and in so doing they are right," the brief said.



FOREIGN AFFAIRS EXPERT—Gordon Graydon, a lawyer from a small Ontario town, is foreign affairs expert of the Progressive Conservative party. A resident of Brampton, Ont., Mr. Graydon has represented Peel in the Commons since 1935. From 1943 to 1945, he was House leader of his party and leader of the Opposition. He is a former national president of the Progressive Conservative party. A member of the Canadian delegation to the San Francisco Conference in 1945 which drew up the United Nations Charter, he has frequently been vice-chairman of the Commons external affairs committee. Mr. Graydon was born Dec. 7, 1896, at Snelgrove, Ont.

Found Hanging Dead In Cellar

MARMORA, Nov. 24—(ENS)—Pete Fecko, native of Czechoslovakia and employee of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company for the past eight years, Tuesday was found hanging by a piece of sash cord in the cellar of the old boarding house at Deloro.

The discovery was made by William Cross about 7.30 p.m. Dr. W. J. Donevan was summoned and Provincial Constable Hector Gould, of Madoc, was notified.

Dr. P. R. Beatty, coroner of Madoc, is reported as saying it is unlikely an inquest will be held.

Fecko, who was about 53 years of age, took rooms at the old boarding house a few months ago, and was awaiting the arrival of his wife and family from his native land. More recently he had been taken ill and had spent two short periods in Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of F. N. Marett.

Have Reporter In Dominion

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP)—The one Russian reporter in Canada is not on the accredited list of Russian diplomats but he does represent and "organ" of the Soviet government, a Commons committee was told Wednesday.

The question of the status of Simeon Shcherbatykh, Ottawa correspondent of Tass, the Soviet news agency, was raised in the External Affairs Committee by Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel).

A. D. P. Heeney, under-secretary of state for external affairs, said Mr. Shcherbatykh is the only Russian correspondent in Canada and represents "a (Soviet) government organ" in the parliamentary press gallery in Ottawa.

R. Graydon asked if Mr. Shcherbatykh has any special diplomatic immunity.

Mr. Heeney said he understood he hasn't but "that's a legal question."

Refers To Decision

He referred to a British court decision which ruled that Tass because it was a government organ and exempt from jurisdiction of British courts, could not be sued for libel. He said he had no official confirmation of press dispatches which reported Viscount Jowitt, British Lord Chancellor, said the law might have to be changed as a result of the decision.

Mr. Heeney told Mr. Graydon "quite extensive" facilities are open to Russian correspondents who come to Canada while any Canadian reporters who go to Russia are "very restricted."

Meanwhile, informed sources said the Soviet embassy apparently doesn't expect Mr. Shcherbatykh to be given the same privileges as diplomats.

He is listed as an employee, rather than as a diplomat, on the diplomatic list which all foreign embassies file with the External Affairs Department. Mr. Shcherbatykh is scheduled to return to Moscow shortly.

Hold Cornwall Man On Robbery Charges

DELHI, Ont., Nov. 24—(CP)—Percy Walker of Cornwall, was charged with robbery with violence Wednesday following investigation of a complaint by Joseph Hrubes, 65, periodic district resident but with no fixed address, who calls himself "King of the Highways."

Walker was arrested Friday night in company with a 16-year-old Indian girl. She was turned over to the Children's Aid Society and later sent home to Cornwall.

Hrubes said that he was camped along Big Creek on the west side of Delhi when he was attacked by a man and a "small boy". He said he lost a pocket watch, wrist watch, cigaret lighter, pocket knife, a small amount of money and a bank book.

Later, police picked up Walker and the Indian girl and booked them on vagrancy charges, pending investigation.

Steps On Neck

ABERDEEN, Wash., Nov. 24—(AP). — A baby-sitter who told police he stepped accidentally on the neck of his 18-months-old charge, was held for investigation today after the infant died. Alfred Leohner, 29-year-old laborer, told officers the baby fell from his arms as he was preparing him for bed. As he stepped forward to pick the infant from the floor, he accidentally stepped on his neck.

Average Toronto Family Expenses Exceed Income

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP) — There were 477,000 "economic families" in Toronto and they had an average income of $3,314.01 in the year ending Aug. 31, 1948, and average expenses of $3,405 65, the Bureau of Statistics reported on Wednesday.

The figures applied to single persons or groups of persons who pooled their incomes.

The average family was left with an apparent deficit of $91.-64. But that did not necessarily mean an actual cash deficit the bureau said.

To simplify calculations, goods purchased on instalment plans were listed as expenditures although all the money might not have been spent during the survey year. The figures did not include savings or purchases of things like houses, securities or insurance.

Food Highest

As in Halifax and Montreal, the two other cities surveyed, food eaten at home was the biggest item of expense.

It accounted for 21.2 per cent—$720.76—of the average expenditure. Food eaten in restaurants, snacks and liquor took another $176.02, 5.2 per cent.

Nearly 52 per cent of the families lived in rented accommodation and paid an average rental of $363.58. Homeowners reported costs at $291.93. But when averaged over all families, housing costs were $188.57 for rent, $143 for expenses of an owned home and $36.84 for other lodgings, a total of 10.8 per cent.

Fourteen per cent of the expenditures — $447.57 — went for personal insurance premiums, taxes, charities and pensions. Clothing costs were 11 per cent or $310.23.

The average income comprised $2,822.69 in wages and salaries, $461.26 in rents, dividends, family allowances and pensions, and $30.06 in windfalls such as gifts, tax refunds or inheritances.

Other items of expenditures, with the percentage of total expenditures in brackets, were: Fuel, water, electricity and ice, $228.24 (6.7); furnishings and household equipment, $208.72 (6.1); transportation, including the net price of cars, $310.23 (9.1); medical and dental care, $111.44 (3.3); personal care, $49.44 (1.5); recreation, reading, education and gifts, $225.87 (6.6); soap, cleaning supplies, and tobacco, $113.72 (3.3); other expenses, $40.71 (1.2).

Negro Stowaways British Problem

LONDON—(CP) — Britain is negotiating with colonial countries on ways of dealing with West Indians and West Africans who stow away on ships bound for Britain, Colonial Secretary Creech Jones told the House of Commons.

The announcement followed reports from Liverpool that hundreds of Negroes are living there on national assistance. Almost all of them reached Britain as stowaways.

One 26-year-old man from West Africa was said to have lived in Britain nearly two years, and to have worked only three weeks.

Evidence about the number of stowaways was given during the man's trial on charges of wounding another Negro with a knife. He was sentenced to one year in jail.

A police inspector told the court that a single man can get 26s ($3.90) a week in national assistance, plus an extra lodging allowance of 9s.

The inspector said stowaways cannot be sent back where they came "because they are British citizens."

"I am very concerned about this situation," commented Mr. Justice R. Sellers. "It is little enough for a man to live on, but when they stow away to this country we have to keep them."

Fifty Carloads Swordfish Go South Yearly

LOUISBURG, N.S., Nov. 24—(CP). — There never has been any trouble finding a market for Nova Scotia's swordfish. The United States has taken every fish that has been landed as far back as old-timers can recall.

The reason is not hard to find. The sharp-nosed broadbills are as tasty a delicacy on the United States market as frog legs.

It all adds up to a flourishing but short-term business for Nova Scotian fishermen.

The annual mass migration of swordfish northward along the east coast of North America reaches its destination — the waters off Cape Breton Island—in early July, and the fish stay at this rendezvous until mid-September.

It is while they come in close to shore to fatten on the schools of herring that the swordfishermen ply their trade.

Glace Bay, Ingonish, and this Cape Breton port are the centres of the province's fleet, usually ranging from 200 to 400 craft. Another 600 small boats including sports craft, usually join the hunt from the United States and Newfoundland ports.

50 Carloads Last Year

Last year some 50 carloads were shipped to American buyers. A carload averages about 40,000 pounds. The fish thmselves average about 250 pounds but range up to 600 pounds. The fishermen get about 25 cents a pound for their catch.

The fleet consists of small motor boats and auxiliary schooners outfitted especially for the job.

These craft carry a "pulpit" or stand, on the bowsprit for the harpooners and often have a steering wheel rigged in the cross-tree of the mast so the lookout can actually guide the boat when the fish are sighted.

When one is located, the boat is wheeled close and the harpooner makes his shot. If the harpoon strikes, the fisherman lets the fish run away, trailing the harpoon line with him.

A keg attached to the other end of the line is tossed overboard when the fish begins to run and the fighting broadbill is left to wear out his strength in towing the relentless keg. It may be 10 minutes or an hour before the doryman can get alongside to gaff the heavy fish.

Even then the fisherman has to work with care. Although winded the fish has been known to drive the sharp sword—three to four feet in length—through a two-inch plank.

But, although swordfishing is big business in Nova Scotia, one big mystery remains. No one has been able to find out where the broadbills come from or where they go after leaving Cape Breton waters.

Launch Hydro Scheme To Include 14 Major Dams

By ANTHONY WHITLOCK

ADAMINABY, Australia, —(CP) — One of the world's largest engineer schemes was launched recently at this little town in New South Wales, about 60 miles south of Canberra, Australia's capital.

When finished in 25 years, the scheme will be as big as the Tennessee Valley Authority.

It is the Snowy Mountains Hydro-Electric Authority. Work on the first of its 14 major dams was officially opened in mid-October by Governor-General William J. McKell.

Here are some of its deails. It will cost, at present estimates, nearly £200,000,000 ($492,800,000). It will generate 1.720,000 kilowatts of electric power, as much as can be produced from 4,000,000 tons of coal a year. It will irrigate 3,500,000 acres of farm land.

Experts believe the scheme will provide: five per cent more food production, jobs and land for 100,000 farming folk, badly-needed power for industry, and a chance for Australia to increase her population to "20,000,000 in our time." as Immgiration Minister Calwell claims she can.

Town To Disappear

Vast areas will disappear under the rising waters of the new dams, including the town of Adaminaby—about the only town "down under" where it ever snows on Christmas Day.

Its people are doubtful about the big dam whose high water mark will reach to the settlement's centre.

The Snowy Mountains lie in New South Wales and Victoria, in the southeastern corner of Australia. They're not very high by world standards, Kosciusko, the highest peak is only 7,328 feet. But from their snowfields runs a large part of Australia's total river flow.

The Snowy River itself carries 1/20th of Australia's total river flow without providing water for either irrigation or power. Two other great rivers, the Murray and Murrumbidgee both rise in the Snowy Mountains. Into these rivers the dams and tunnels will divert the waters of the Snowy and its tributaries.

Too Dry To Farm

Australia, far from being a second North America, is the driest of all continents. Experts say that successful farming needs at least 20 inches of rain a year. Australia averages only 17 inches and only a third of the country has more than 20 inches a year.

But despite this shortage and ever-recurring droughts, nobody has done anything, until now, but talk about the wasted waters of the Snowy River. If New South Wales suggested diverting them to its Murrumbidgee River, Victoria argued they should be diverted to her Murray River.

So the argument went on for 70 years until the federal government took a firm hand. Claiming that the hydro-electric power of the Snowy Mountains was essential for defence. It persuaded New South Wales and Victoria to agree to a joint state-federal scheme. It will work out well for the states since the federal scheme gives each of them far more than they could have achieved separately.

Calls By-Election

FREDERICTON, Nov. 24 (CP) —A provincial by-election in Charlote County January 9 has been called by the Governor-in-Council, it was learned early on Wednesday. Experts Debate Reaching Mars Via Mental Telepathy Medium

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, —(CP)—Communication with Mars by mental telepathy is envisaged by some members of the British Interplanetary Society.

Ridiculous? A few members say 'Yes' though they believe rocket travel to Mars will one day be an accomplished fact. Some, like radio engineer James Fairley, declare "the wireless of the mind" is no more incredible than radio was 50 years ago.

Thoughts Exchanged

When interplanetary telepathy was discussed at a recent meeting of the society, mention was made of experiments conducted by Dr. J. B. Rhone of Duke University, North Carolina. These experiments proved that thoughts could be exchanged between people in separate, sealed rooms —and even in separate towns.

To the discussion members contributed examples of how messages sometimes flash from brain to brain and of how people with perhaps half the world separating them "can become animated at the same instant by a similar though."

"Many people have telepathic power without knowing it," one member said. "That is their brains act as transmitting stations and unknown to them their thoughts are picked up by others —usually people in mental harmony with themselves.

Short Distances First

Another member then suggested that one day people on earth might be able to communicate with intelligent beings on such a planet as Mars by telepathy.

A tussle of arguments for and against followed. Those in favor of interplanetary telepathy numbered eight or nine. The general view, however, was that telepathic communication over much shorter distances had yet to be established on a firm basis.

The real business of the society, whose members include playwright Bernard Shaw and aviator Jim Mollison, is to promote the possibility of travel through space—possibly by rocket ship.

On his return from Canada last February, Mollison said he would be willing to volunteer for an "experimental flight to the moon."

Two society members—engineers H. E. Worth and R. A. Smith —have designed a spaceship on paper and now are discussing the building of it with fellow members engaged in scientific research.

Economy Parley Postponed Till December

By SYDNEY GRUSON

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Nov. 24—At the request of the Netherlands Goverment, the Paris conference of French, Italian, Belgian, Luxembourg and Netherland experts to consider proposals for part integration of the five countries' economy has been postponed until early December. The conference originally was scheduled to open Friday

The Hague sought delay to give more time to study the invitation extended by the French Finance Minister, Maurice Petsche, to hold prior consultations with Belgian and Luxembourg officials in an effort to take an agreed-upon Benelux position into the Paris talks.

The Netherlands have welcomed the French initiative, but they are eyeing the talks more cautiously than some other, perhaps, of the five countries concerned. they are most closely linked with British sterling. They believe that haste should be made slowly, that no improbable goal should be set simply to win United States approval for ideas that cannot be translated into swift action.

Propoganda Horse

There is some feeling here that the original idea of a five-nation economic pact was whipped up as a "propaganda horse," and there is satisfaction that the proposals out-lined in M. Petsche's invitation are considerably short of an economic union of the five countries.

These proposals are reported to envisage the achievement of convertibility by fixing a single dollar parity for all the five countries as a bloc, while allowing their rates of exchange with one and another to vary as a means of establishing an equilibrium of payments among themselves. It is believed that this would necessitate the creation of a stabilization fund or bank on the pattern of the United States Federal Reserve System to cushion the first shock of convertibility.

The Netherlanders are eager to hear exactly how M. Petsche will spell out the details of his proposals. His invitation was extended to ministers, and the finance ministers of the five countries are expected to carry on from the preparatory work of the experts in one continuing conference.

Takes Man 3 Years To Learn How To Spot Tax Evasion

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 24 —(CP)—It takes a man three years to learn how to spot an income-tax evasion when he sees one.

That's how complicated British taxation has become.

Glenvil Hall, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, confessed he doesn't understand it himself. The other day he had paid £50 ($155) too much on his own tax.

Hall gave the House of commons forlorn account of how difficult it is to catch those who cheat on their returns.

"The real reason for evasion is shortage of inspectors," he said "Before the war there were 1,700 inspectors. Now, with more work, there are only 1,430.

3 Year's Training

"Each inspector requires at least three years' basic training"

Hall was replying to Douglas Houghton, Labor member of Sowerby and former radio adviser on taxation. Houghton said a lot of people are getting away with evasions.

"There are those who slip through by making incorrect returns," he said. "They include one-man and family businesses, shopkeepers, ice-cream vendors, fish-and-chips shops, garage proprietors, boarding house, chimney sweeps and window cleaners."

Britain was the most heavily-taxed country in the world, with taxation at 9s. ($1.40) in the pound, but the amount going to the treasury wasn't much more than it used to be, Houghton said

There were reports that evasion involved about £100,000,000 a year.

Hall said taxation officials aren't sure how much cheating is going on. But he said the experts are convinced the amount lost isn't anything like £100,000,000

Candidates' Hats In The Ring For Civic Race

Mayor M. J. Swanston returned to the city hall this morning after an absence of more than a week with a hunting party in the north country.

To the question whether Ald. Hugh Waddell was likely to be a candidate for re-election, Mayor Swanston said: "I understand that he has been in Toronto the last few days and will not be home until Friday morning. I cannot say what are the definite intentions of Ald. Waddell, but when I was last speaking to him he said he was seriously considering the matter. There is no doubt that he will be nominated Friday night, but decision rests with himself. Ald. Waddell has been a great help in the council, and I would like to see him re-elected, whether or not I am Mayor next year."

No Mayoral Contest?

Mayor Swanston said he had not heard of any opposition to himself for a second year term.

"All I know is what I picked up this morning. Aldermen Doug Miller and Pat Anglesey are definitely in the field. Fred Tuggey has announced that he will be a candidate, and I also hear that Harry Yudin and Ernie Braund may accept nominations. I understand that Mr. Yudin has definitely decided to stand, but I have not had a chance to verify the report about Mr. Braund."

Nominations Friday

Nominations at the city hall Friday from 7.30 to 8.30 p.m. will be received for the following offices: Mayor; five two-year terms in the council; five two-year terms on the Board of Education; and one three-year term on the Utilities Commission.

Separate School Board nominations take place at the same time in the board room at St. Mary's School.

"THAT'S WHAT FIRE CAN DO," Fire Chief George Smith is saying as he and Firemen William Bloom survey the charred living room walls at the residence of John Condon, Howden Ave. Overheated stove pipes, placed too close to an unprotected wooden wall, caused the blaze. Fire gutted the interior of the house and damage is estimated at $1,000. Both stove and wall are shown in the photo, and large hole is where the pipes passed through the wall into the adjoining bed-room.

Stove Sets Fire To Wall, Damage $1,000

Fire, believed to have started from overheated stove pipes, early Wednesday night gutted most of the interior of the five-room, one storey house at 15 Howden Ave, owned by John Condon. Damage is assessed at $1,000.

Because of the destruction the three residents are homeless and are being accommodated by friends and neighbors. Ousted from their dwelling are Mr. Condon and two elderly widowed women, his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Condon, and his aunt, Mrs. Mary Ann Barry.

Pipes from the living room stove run close to the thin wooden wall between the living room and one bedroom. And the wall caught fire from the overheated pipes in the opinion of Fire Chief George Smith.

Mrs. Condon was alone in the house with a friend, Margaret O'Grady of Patterson St., when the fire broke out. Miss O'Grady had come over to keep her company as her sister, Mrs. Barry, had gone to Toronto.

The pair were sitting in the kitchen and heard a peculiar sound from the living room. At first Mrs. Condon thought rats had invaded her home and when she investigated she found the noise was the crackling of flames which were mounting the wall behind the stove.

Sought To Put Out Flames

She dashed to the slow-working pump to get a pan of water and repeated this operation several times before realizing the fire was gaining on her. Her weak eyes and the excitement of the moment combined to prevent her from getting the proper telephone number and she then went to a neighbour, Mrs. Clara McNott, for aid.

Eventually a fire alarm box was broken to notify the Fire Department of the outbreak. When the firemen arrived flames were shooting out the front door of the house and the interior was burning fiercely.

The flames are believed to have gone up the wall and spread through the attic. Two of the three bedrooms and the living room were completely gutted along with their contents but one bedroom was not badly damaged and the kitchen was untouched.

Big Repair Job

Before the house can be lived in again there must be a new floor put in, the inside partitions and joists replaced, and a complete redecorating job.

Damage due to the combined effects of fire, water and smoke will reach anywhere from $800 to $1,000, Chief Smith estimated.

Mr. Condon hopes to start repairs almost immediately. In the meanwhile he will live with the next-door neighbor and Mrs. Condon has been offered the hospitality of Mrs. George Callen, 595 Park St. Mrs. Barry is still in Toronto.

Harry Yudin Enters Race For 1950 Aldermanic Seat

HARRY YUDIN

Harry Yudin, manager of Centre Theatre will be a candidate for alderman.

Although he was not elected after accepting nomination for the first time last year, he received a lot of votes and showed considerable strength as a new entry in the municipal list.

Mr. Yudin's attitude is simply that if the ratepayers want him to help in the city's administration he is willing to accept and do the best he can. It is a business job, and Mr. Yudin believes he has qualifications in both experience and time to turn to the city's account.

"We all know it is an honor to be elected by the people, and the work must be interesting because the men who have been in it say so," Mr. Yudin remarked today.

Peterborough has grown a great deal in the last few years, Mr. Yudin said. Its affairs had become big business requiring capable men to handle it well.

"I don't want people to think I regard myself as some municipal expert. My feeling is that I am willing to try if the people want me. That is the way our system works, and it is really surprising that so many citizens keep dodging this responsibility. And I think our citizens appreciate it, too, when their affairs are attended to and the job is done right."

Grade IX Boy Bags 4 Deer In Haliburton

LINDSAY, Nov. 24 (CP)—John McCulloch, a grade nine Collegiate student, was top man in the deer hunting party on his first hunting trip in Haliburton

Using borrowed firearms from other members in the group, young John bagged four deer — two bucks and two does—while the other 12 persons in the party divided six deer between them.

"I didn't miss any, I got all I saw," he said. "I guess I was lucky being in the spot where they came by."

Son of H. L. (Doc) McCulloch, John has had previous experience with guns. He has shot partridge with his father in the Haliburton district.

Good Hunting; Wardens Record 1 In 3 Get Deer

Weather, as a topic of conversation, is running neck and neck with stories of the deer hunt, who shot what, and where. Citizens on the street ask friends each day, "Did you get your deer?" The real information, in the form of cold statistics, comes from Game Wardens who are conducting road checks at the Burleigh Falls junction, at Buckhorn and roving checks on the entire northern end of Highway 28. Wardens Stan Windsor, J. T. Deyell and R. C. McCulloch man the barricades while Robert Trotter and Ray Simpson check as they drive.

Last weekend's two-day figures show that 1,018 hunters came south from other camps bringing a total of 351 deer and five bears; this means that a deer was bagged by every third hunter, an excellent average, according to experts, who calculated last year that the average was one deer to four.

Regardless of the infractions in the Sudbury district where hunters checked at road barricades were found to have too many does in ratio to bucks, Peterborough district hunters held to a nice balance. Of the 351 deer taken out, 160 animals were bucks, 127 does and 64 fawns. Seventy-five per cent of these came from the north end of the county and the balance from Haliburton and North Hastings.

Party Check-Over

From the many hundreds of hunters of the city and county, we pick some of the party names and their count. It is not complete, nor are they chosen for any special reason of their prowess.

Up in Silent Lake, Haliburton, at Six-Point Lodge the Outboard Mariners did exceptionally well; during six days 16 of one of their parties bagged 13 animals with one whopping buck to the gun of C. B. Neal that dressed 227 pounds. Others in his crowd were L. L. Tremblay, E. Estlick, Hugh Campbell, Sid Black, Hugh Carnahan, Jack Frost, Jeff Sayers, Sam Whitehouse, to name a few.

Another Outboard Company group at Mississauga Lake, totalling seven hunters, shot one deer each; they were Bill Milliken, Bill Swiss, Hy Wood, Johnny Boyle, Jack Ferren, Pete Harris and Bruce Payne. Two more shopmen who joined 12 others from Peterborough and Madoc around Coe Hill, got 14 animals. And yet another group of eight hunters who went in north of Jack's Lake brought out four deer; in this group were Al Metcalfe, Ivan Whitmore, Bill and Bun Thompson, Bert McLellan, Arnold Campbell, Mac Whitmore and Bert Howden.

Although the count is not complete for the party at Trout Lake Hunt Club, which included Mayor Max Swanston, three deer were shot on opening day, two of them by Alex Elliott. There will be more to tally after all have returned to their homes. Other hunters with the above mentioned were Dr. Ralph Honey, Dr. William Gordon, Dr. H. J. Long, Vernon Ferguson, Roy Brown, Wallace Shearer, J. A. Dewart and Stan Payne.

Lakefield hunters did fairly well, especially the crowd around Lake Catchacoma. Earl Edwards, Stan Bergerm, George Stenner, Joe Robinson and five others shot nine deer. At Beaver Lake, Norm Graham, Gerald Northey, Walter Wright, Reg Doubt and J. Nicholson bagged two deer, one of them a 12-pointer.

Two more deer were shot by another Lakefield party around Long Lake: Arnold Graham, Cameron Payne, Keith Brown, Percy Calberry and Ken Jakins were in this group.

Bill and Edward Jessop shot one near the Nepheline Mines in the Blue Mountain sector.

Haultain-Stony Lake

One of the numerous Peterborough parties around Haultain came back with two deer, shot by Dick Jones and Dit Clapper and some of the balance of their party who had no luck were Bob McClellan, Dave Wilson, Meyer Cherney and Harry Schreiber.

Up Stony Lake way the "Little Gang," as they call themselves, hunted in both Paudash and Stony Lakes areas. Eight hunters got eight deer in one week of shooting. The party was made up of Ralph, Walter and Howard Hamilton, Art Little, Reg Williams, Jim Dockerill, Everett Carveth and Bob Peel.

OUST FOUR ALC DELEGATES

Peterborough's Allied Labor Council has received a communication from Local 524 UE announcing that four right-wing delegates to the Council are no longer authorized. Ousted are John G. Morton Dick Walsh, George Niles and William Whibbs. The letter, signed by Florence Farrance, recording secretary of the UE, names T. P. Davies and Jack R. Chamberlain as the two authorized delegates.

M.P. Filibuster Nearly One Month Old

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Parliament's pint-sized filibuster on pipe-line legislation will be one month old in a few days, but there's no sign of it petering out.

In fact, with the present session due to finish in a couple of weeks, the possibility remains that the opposition will succeed in preventing passage this year of two controversial bills, both introduced by private members.

The filibuster started Oct. 28 when a bill was introduced asking incorporation of a company known as Prairie Transmission Lines.

A few days later a similar bill, this one to incorporate the Alberta Natural Gas Company, was placed before the Commons.

Both companies want incorporation so they can build pipe lines to carry natural gas from Alberta.

Fear Canadians Lose

The reason for the filibuster is that some opposition members are afraid the two companies will build lines which will transport the natural gas into the United States without first filling Canadian needs.

They appear determined to talk the bills to death unless the proposed routes of the line are written into them. The members believed that would give parliament control over export of the natural gas from Canada.

Normally, filibustering on private bills such as these is not difficult. Only two hours a week are devoted to private members legislation.

Statements Admitted As Trial Evidence

TORONTO, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Statements given police by Virgil Barkman when he surrendered to police three days after a fatal traffic accident were admitted as evidence Wednesday at Barkman's trial on a charge of manslaughter.

William Miller, 21, was killed and his fiancee, Helen Billson, suffered leg injuries when struck by a car on the city's outskirts last Jan. 30.

One of the statements said: "I'm the man you are looking for about that accident two nights ago on the Kingston Road."

In another written statement, Barkman admitted he had changed the right-hand door handle of his car, explaining he had done so to facilitate the opening of the door."

The trial is continuing.

'Ghost Writing' Condemned In Washington

By LEWIS WOOD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — Sharp criticism of the widespread use of "ghost-writers" for speeches by public men featured a ruling today, in which the Supreme Court supported 6 to 2, the United States Patent Office in prohibiting Vernon M. Dorsey of Washington, and 80-year-old lawyer, from practising before it.

However, Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson, backed by Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter, held that Mr. Dorsey had been treated unfairly and lashed out at the "ghost-writing" practice.

The Patent Office accused Mr. Dorsey of misconduct is submitting in 1926 a trade journal article as part of the file of a patent application used in glass-making. The agency said that Mr. Dorsey falsely represented the article as having been written for the Hartford-Empire Company by William P. Clarke, president of a glass workers' union.

The Patent Office's exclusion of the lawyer was approved by the Federal District Court, but the Federal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia reversed this ruling. Calling Mr. Dorsey a victim of "bureaucratic lynch law," the appellate court said:

"The Patent Office in a desperate effort to alibi its confessed failure to perform its duty, waited more than eighteen years until the evidence had largely disappeared to bring stale charges against Dorsey, and then proceeded to try and convict him before a 'kangaroo court.' "

Charges Unsupported

Nevertheless, the Supreme Court majority said today that charges of unfairness in hearings against Mr. Dorsey were, "we think, wholly without support."

Moreover, the majority held that the Commissioner of Patents was, under Congressional authorization, "primarily responsible for protecting the public from the evil consequences that might result if practitioners should betray their high trust."

In his dissent, Mr. Jackson said that "I should not like to be second to any one on this court in condemning the custom of putting up decoy authors to impress the guileless, a custom which as the court below cruelly pointed out, flourishes even in official circles in Washington."

"Ghost-writing has debased the intellectual currency in circulation here and is a type of counterfeiting which invites no defense," he added. "Perhaps this court renders a public service in treating phantom authors and ghost-writers as legal frauds and disguised authorship as a deception.

'But has any man before Dorsey ever been disciplined or reprimanded for it? And will any be hereafter?"

Loose Rules of Practice Seen

Mr. Jackson said that the worst that could be held against Mr. Dorsey was that he took advantage of loose rules of practice in the Patent Office by submitting the ghost-written article. The Justice said that Hartford-Empire "conceived and executed" a scheme to "prepare and publish over the signature of an apparently disinterested labor leader," an article to be used supporting the company's pending patent application.

He also accused Hartford-Empire of taking steps to "suppress evidence of the real authorship of the Clarke essay." Ultimately, he added, the Supreme Court held that the sum total of acts attributable to Hartford-Empire "constituted a fraud" on the Patent Office and the Federal courts.

"It is clear," Mr. Jackson said, "that Hartford-Empire's later corruption in trying to suppress evidence was the decisive factor in finding Dorsey guilty, though he admittedly had no part in it.

"While society may expect that his judges will show him no favor because he has lived respectably for eighty years and devoted fifty-nine of them to practise of his profession without blemish, an accused lawyer may expect that he will not be condemned out of a capricious self-righteousness, or denied the essential of a fair hearing."

Justice William O. Douglas did not participate in the case.

British M.P.'s Indignant At Salary Cut Suggestion

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 24—(CP)—You could almost hear £1,000 ($3,100) a year drop when Sir Stanley Holmes got up in the House of Commons, looked around at his colleagues on their red-leather benches, and let fall the startling word: "Would it not have been a very fine gesture if members and ministers in this Parliament had said that, in view of the present position in which this country stands, they were all prepared to accept a cut in their salaries?"

Sir Stanley, 71, is National Liberal member of Harwich, Essex. He tossed his modest proposal into a debate on Britain's economic crisis. Sums like £50,000,000 had been mentioned without an eyebrow being lifted, but Sir Stanley's figures brought an indignant response.

No Sacrifice

Frank McLeavy, who sits as Labor member for Bradford East, Yorkshire, pointed an accusing finger at his colleague.

"Sir Stanley is the last M.P who should pose as a man anxious to make a public-spirited sacrifice," said McLeavy.

"He would be making no substantial sacrifice at all. He has something like three residences and directorships running to about 32."

Sir Stanley: "Have you finished with me now?"

McLeavy: "If your electors have got any democratic spirit they will have finished with you too."

£1,000 Crust

At least one commentator wasn't finished" with Sir Stanley. A columnist, writing in the pro-government Daily Mirror under the pseudonym Cassandra, said the legislator wasn't the "stern ascetic" he appeared to be.

"He roughs it either at 15 Grosvenor Square (that dingy working-class quarter) or in any one of six clubs, or from his country residence," Cassandra wrote.

"For his daily crust he relies on the £1,000 a year he gets as an M. P. and on a few ravenous mouthfuls that he gulps as chairman and managing director of a large trust.

"Last year he managed to scrape up something in the neighborhood of £7,250 from this lean source which, as Sir Stanley piteously explained, involved directors' fees paid in over 100 companies throughout the world."

Heavy Overhead

Members of Parliament receive £1,000 a year. Out of this they must pay all expenses ususally including a secretary There are frequent complaints that the salary isn't enough to get along without outside sources of income.

Maurice Webb, member for Bradford Central and chairman of the Parliamentary Labor Party, said in a letter to the Times his net weekly income was only £3 15s.

"That is all I have left from my expenses on which to run my home and keep my family," he wrote. Webb is married and has a son.

It Shouldn't Happen To A Dog, But It Did Spaniel Survives 28 Days Locked In Closet

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 24—(AP)—It shouldn't happen to a dog, but it did.

Punch, a 2-year-old black Cocker Spaniel owned by Miss Sybil Burton, disappeared Oct. 17.

Miss Burton advertised in the newspaper and telephoned friends.

On Nov. 14, Mrs. Burton Dodd, sister of Punch s mistress, went to the third floor of the 20-room Burton mansion in search of her overshoes. She opened a clothes closet.

There lay Punch. After 28 days without food or water, he had lost 12 pounds and was pretty weak, but he was alive.

A veterinarian fed him sparingly. Punch rallied. Two days later he developed pneumonia. But he recovered, and today was returning to normal.

Miss Burton speculated that the dog became locked in the closet when she was showing friends through the house Oct. 17. The veterinarian said Punch came through the ordeal alive probably because he had been well fed previously.

Newfoundland's Currency To Be Made All-Canadian

By RUPERT JACKSON

ST. JOHN'S, Fld., Nov. 24 (CP)—Newfoundland's finance is one thing undergoing change since confederation last March. It hasn't happened yet, but eventually all currency in circulation here will be Canadian.

No longer will there be an international flavor to the cash registers in the stores and to the average man's pocket. At one time a person could put his hand in his jeans and pull out an American dime, an English penny, a Canadian half-dollar and a Newfoundland 20-cent piece.

The beauty of it was that one could go into a store and the shopkeeper would gladly accept all the pieces.

Another reason why Newfoundlanders are sorry to see the currency change is that they will no longer be able to travel to mainland Canada and make a nickel on every 20-cent piece they spend.

The Newfoundland 20-cent coin is the same size as the Canadian quarter, and many's the maritime merchant, who has passed out something costing 25 cents to a Newfoundlander, has been paid 20 cents and not known the difference until too late.

Fortunate Aspect

But there is one fortunate aspect to the thing. Newfoundland's ultra-small nickel will disappear in favor of the larger Canadian five-cent piece. No longer will Newfoundlanders have to root around in the corners of pockets and purses for an elusive nickel decide it isn't there, then hours later discover that it was there after all.

Ever since Newfoundland got away from sterling when she ceased to be a crown colony in 1832, her currency has been slightly off the beam.

Most of Newfoundland's own currency is made up of silver and copper coins, folding money being money being Canadian and American bank notes. The American bills came into circulation from the American service bases here.

It's a good thing these Canadian and American bills have been available for some time. If the island had stuck strictly to Newfoundland money in the past Newfoundlanders wouldn't have been able to buy much. Silver coin is legal tender only to the amount of $10 and copper coin to 25 cents.

Satisfied With Talks

LONDON, Nov. 24 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Attlee told the House of Commons Wednesday that he is satisfied with the progress made in the first stage of the Anglo-American exploratory talks on atomic energy. The talks began in Washington Sept. 20 and the first stage ended Sept 30. They are to be resumed in Washington Nov. 28.

Business Statesmen Held Greatest Need Of Europe

By MICHAEL L. HOFFMAN

GENEVA, Nov. 24—Next to some large, easily mined gold deposits in the British Isles the thing United States leaders in Europe would like most to uncover at this stage of the Marshall Plan is some real business statesmen in European industry.

In the key countries of Britain Western Germany, France and Italy, representatives of the United States Economic Cooperation Administration long have been preaching that business leadership would be essential to carry Europe forward from recovery to economic progress. It always has been recognized that in a period of wide-spread governmental controls over raw materials, processes, products and prices, the scope of business leadership has been necessarily restricted. In all these countries except Britain and even in wide sectors of the British economy virtually all really restrictive controls are gone. But business leadership has not come forward to the extent needed to provide the dynamic force essential to make a liberalized economy function.

Troubles at The Top

There is sad irony in the fact that men like Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, W. Averell Harriman, roving Ambassador for the Marshall Plan and heads of ECA missions throughout Europe meet and deal with almost every type, Communists apart, except the kind they themselves represent — businessmen with the vision and the conviction that the free enterprise system can work if its rules are observed.

There is plenty of enterprise and inventiveness in European professional and enterpreneurial classes. What is lacking is willingness at the top to abandon the closed-shop philosophy of business that prevents this enterprise from breaking through.

American business men customarily fail to realize that when European business men talk about getting rid of controls they mean only getting rid of government controls. Even United States officials long familiar with Europe have been shocked at the extent to which private groups have stepped in to regiment European business during the past year as public controls have been lifted or have withered away.

A Defensive Psychology

The psychology of the European business man, a high United States official said to this correspondent recently, is essentially defensive or protective. He is so busy protecting his business against trade unions and against competition from another country that he has lost all faith in his ability to face the problems of a fluid, adjustable enterprise system, this official explained.

There are many European business men who are intellectually convinced that Europe cannot survive by simply protecting what it has, whether this relates to jobs, products, markets or any other component of economy. But very few have the willingness to lead a movement within business circles to restore competition as a principle of economic policy. And without the stimulus and the regulatory effect of competition there is no sign at all that European industry can produce the kind of results the people of Europe hope for and eventually will demand. The main thing the United States business statesmen are trying to get across to European business circles now is that if they do not produce leadership soon and demonstrate that they know how and are willing to operate on enterprise system they probably will never have another chance.

Film Board Brief Not Intended As Federal Government Policy

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Reconstruction Minister Winters said Wednesday night that a brief submitted to the Royal Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences recently by the National Film Board was 'never meant nor received as a statement of government policy."

He was commenting on a newspage story in the Montreal Gazette that 21 film companies are seeking to prevent the NFB from creating a monopoly in the film industry.

The newspaper story said "a battle royal is looming across Canada" as a result of the NFB brief asking the board "be made a government-directed corporation like the CBC."

Mr. Winters, chairman of the NFB, said the reported action of the private producers and still photographers apparently was based on the "premise that the NFB report to the royal commission was a statement of government policy.

"The fact is that the brief was never meant by those submitting it, not received by those receiving it, as a statement of government policy."

"The fact is that the brief was never meant by those submitting it, not received by those receiving it, as a statement of government policy."

Mr. Winters said that "I have never had one complaint" from theatre operators that NFB material is often heavily slanted. The Montreal story said theatre operators had complained on this score.

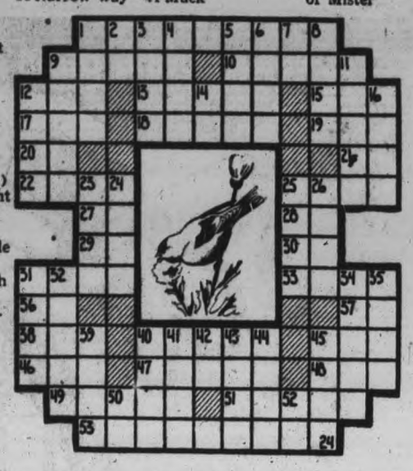
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Claim Potatoes Originated In Andes Mts.

The familiar potato wandered to Europe with the Spanish conquistadores from a home in the high valleys of the Andes Mountains in South America, relates Nova Scotia Farm News. Today, there are few parts of the world where it is not grown and it now ranks as one of the world's most valued food plants.

While potato culture spread over the globe, three flavorsome tuber crops, prized by the Incas, remained behind in the Andean homeland.

These tubers, known as the Oca, the Mallooa and the Anu, do not merit comparison with our highly bred "spud" of today but who can tell where these plants might now be in the world's esteem if they had received the selective breeding of the potato.

A few days ago, F. W. Walsh, deputy minister, was discussing the change in the methods of potato culture, the change in varieties, the increase in yields, etc., and remarked that today's average yields are so far above those of a few years back, that anyone rash enough to suggest that yields per acre would exceed 500 bushels would have been regarded as one who should have his head examined.

Common Today

However, today, 500-bushels-per-acre yields are regarded as quite ordinary on many farms where nothing but certified seed is planted, where good fertilizer applications are generous, and where disease and insect pests are kept under control through the use of modern fungicides and insecticides.

These, points out Mr. Walsh, are some of the factors responsible for the fact that the average yield per acre in Canada has jumped from 124.8 bushels in the period from 1935-39 to 168.7 in 1948. In the United States, the increase during the same period has been even more marked—from 117.2 to 198.4.

European Yields

Yields per acre in Europe are shown in the potato year book as being considerably higher than those on this continent. For instance, Belgium is shown as having an average yield per acre of 325.3 bushels: Denmark 257.1; Eire 308.7; Germany 276.7; Netherlands 330.4; Norway 275; Switzerland 275.5, and the United Kingdom 265.3.

Another interesting comparison is that of acreage in the several countries. While Canada has 500,000 acres in potatoes, the United Kingdom has over 1,500,000 in this crop, the United States over 2,000,000; France almost 3,000,000; Germany over 5,000,000 and Poland approximately 6,000,000 acres.

MORE THAN 1,000

Alberta's conservation board reported that by November, 1949, more than 1,000 producing oil wells had been drilled in the province.

SCHIAPARELLI shows restraint in designing ready-to-wear fashions. Back interest suit (above) is a feather-weight tweed with a slashed-back cape, a slim wrap-around skirt.

PEPLUM PLEATS gives back interest (left) to a suit with waistline cinched by leather belt. Another (above) of wool rep has a jacket with uneven hemline, and fly-away collar. Skirt is slender.

Suits for 1950 Spring Wear Chic, Crisp and Practical

By EPSIE KINARD

NEW YORK—(NEA)—World-famed for the wit and audacity of her Paris fashions, Schiaparelli withholds this fun from her first American ready-to-wear collection.

Suits and coats designed by the "daring Schiap" for wear this spring are crisp, chic and practical. They reflect little if any of their designer's flair or brilliance; none of her tongue-in-cheek fun with fashions.

Schiaparelli is the third member of the French haute couture to "commute" between New York and Paris; Christian Dior and Jacques Fath were Nos. 1 and 2. Surprisingly, however, Schiaparelli shows more designing restraint than her two colleagues whose American-made collections bespeak their Parisian origin with a strong French accent.

The gayest note struck by Schiaparelli is color.

A mauve-pink color. A pastel shade goes into a featherweight tweed to make a suit with back-interest which lies in the jacket's slashed cape back. There is apt to be more "interest," however, in the suit's tight, wraparound skirt when the wearer makes a dash for a bus.

Another "back-interest" suit of gold-color serge named to plug another perfume has a jacket with an envelope fold above a leather belt, a series of unpressed pleats below it.

The jacket with an uneven hemline is a style that Schiaparelli poses above slimmer, shorter skirts. The rippling jacket of a suit of red wool, for example, offers a fresh style note in the deep cut neckline, flyaway collar and front closing. The jacket closes with a trick double-breasted row of buttons spaced by a set-in panel.

MUNICIPAL CHAPTER

The meeting of Municipal Chapter, IODE, was held Wednesday evening at the YWCA, Vice-Regent Mrs. George Barns in the chair.

Miss Mary Medd gave an interesting account of her trip to the British Isles and Holland during the past summer.

In absence of Mrs. G. Groo\ bridge, Mrs. Barns reported 27 food boxes and a large shipment of clothing and knitted articles went forward to Britain during this month.

Miss June Fraser, film convener, advised that films of the Royal Tour of South Africa and the Royal Wedding will be at the film library until December 15

It was suggested that a special service be held to commemorate the 50th anniversary of IODE in February of 1950. A letter from the National Regent in regard to this occasion was read.

No Substitute For Wood Canadian Bank Believes

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

While there are substitutes for almost everything else, wood seems in no danger of being superseded as a basic material, says the current monthly letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

"It has, however, provided satisfactory substitutes for many other materials, which have often proved superior to the articles they replaced."

Reviewing world supply of forest products, the letter comments:

"North America produced over 40,000,000 board feet in 1948, and Europe, outside of Russia, nearly 24,000,000. European production still is below normal, however.

"Any attempt at a conclusive assay of European supply and demand is handicapped by a shortage of information regarding supplies at present, or likely to be, available from eastern Europe, including Russia.

"The gap between effective demand and supply is, however, expected to grow and while, for the reason stated, its size is difficult to define ,the executive secretary of the economic commission for Europe is quoted as saying:

Greater Expenditure

"I would not be surprised if by 1951, or shortly afterward, the difference between European's production and effecive timber demands might run anywhere between 300,000 standards and 1,000,000 standards a year, and thus call for an additional expenditure of from $50,000,000 to $150,000,000, if all this difference had to be met from North America.'

"The dollar shortage precludes any possibility of the whole difference being thus met, and a drive is being made to get softwoods from non-dollar areas in the tropics and to cut down waste by the proper utilization of existing supplies."

Of expanding uses for wood products, the letter states:

"New or improved uses for paper products are coming on the market almost daily. The ingenuity of the packaging trade in this respects has been outstanding.

"Wooden crates have to a considerable extent been supplanted by light but strongly made and durable cardboard boxes which simplify handling and shipping. Small paper containers and cellophane wrappings, attractively designed to meet the requirements of individual commodities, are in growing favor with the retail trade, where there is a marked tendency toward package rather than bulk sales.

"Building trades use paper-based products for roofing and insulating. Farmers growing certain crops are having excellent results from the use of a mulch paper which discourages the growth of weeds and retains soil moisture. . ."

AN ORIENTAL ART

The belief that ju-jitsu was founded by a Japanese physician who learned it in China is not correct, for the art was known and practised as early as the seventh century B.C.

Mary Moore's Fruit Cake of the Year

By MARY MOORE.

The racket that my own family runs I am accustomed to—but when my friends join the hungry throng I reserve the right to complain.

I stay up late at night to concoct the best Christmas cakes yet. Because I am so interested in them I wake up and get up (by mistake) at 6 o'clock instead of my habitual 7, to do the final blending of flour mixture with fruits and the creamed portion—and to bake them.

By 10.30 a.m. they are out of the oven. By 11 a.m. neighbours are knocking at my door to taste them.

How can I win? If I manage to get by without making another batch this month I'll be lucky.

However by now they have been sprinkled with a little of what Pete calls 'steeping juice" and wrapped and stored in our old bread box (which luckily I did not throw out when we bought a new one. It makes a splendid Christmas cake storage bin.

Here is the much-mulled-over much sampled, much-admired fruit cake for this year.

Emem's New Rich Fruit Cake (Medium Dark)

One pound mixed citron, lemon and orange peel, 1 lb. chopped dates 2½ pounds light seedless raisins, ¾ lb. washed and dried currants, ½ lb. glace cherriesi red and green, 1 lb. blanched almonds, 1 20-oz. tin crushed pineapple, 1-2 lb. butter or margarine, 1 cup (tightly packed) brown sugar, 3 cups white sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 10 eggs, 4 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon; nutmeg; soda; almond flavoring. (For those who prefer it ¼ cup brandy may be added to the fruit.) Prepare all of the fruits and pour the can of pineapple over it being sure the pieces of dates do not stick together. Cream the butter very well and then cream the sugars into it until they are light and fluffy. Add the eggs, and beat well between each addition. Sift together the flour; salt; spices and soda; and shift half of this into the butter-sugar-egg mix and mix very well. Add the fruit and sift the remaining flour mixture over it then using the hand begin mixing the whole mass being sure that you break all of the fruit pieces apart Add the nuts and almond flavoring and stir or mix well.

Prepare pans. Since this makes more than 12 lbs. cake be sure you prepare enough pans. I used 4 loaf pans of medium size. Butter pans, line with parchment paper doubled or three thicknesses heavy brown paper. Butter these. Press batter into pans. Bake at 275 deg. F. for 3¼ hours, with pan of water in bottom of oven. Cool thoroughly before storing.

Some of our "light housekeeping" readers have asked me for a cake that is "not too expensive." I think Dundee cake will suit their purposes.

Dundee Cake (An easy fruit cake)

One-half pound butter, one-half pound sugar, 6 eggs, one-half pound flour, one-quarter pound each raisins, sultanas, mixed candied peel, washed and dried currants, blanched almonds, ¾ to ¾ teaspoons each cinnamon, mace, nutmeg, cloves, allspice, 1 teaspoon each saltu and baking powder. The spices may vary—a genuine Dundee cake uses the ¾ teaspoon each but this is too strong with spice for my taste and I reduce it to ¼ teaspoon each.

Cream the butter very well in electric beater if possible, and beat in the sugar and then beat in the egs. Sift together the flour (which is a scant 2 cups unsifted), the spices, salt and baking powder, and mix half of them into the fruits and nuts to separate the pieces. Sift the remaining flour mixture over the butter and sugar, and stir it in. Stir in the fruits and if you think it is necessary 1 tablespoon milk may be added to make batter less stiff. Flatten into lined and greased loaf pan and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 1½ to 1¾ hours. This cake cake keeps well—if hidden.

WA Re-elects 1949 Officers

MILLBROOK, Nov. 24 (ENS)—St. Thomas Anglican Church Women's Association re-elected the past year's slate of officers at its meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. Westmacott.

Mrs. Reg. Fallis, who was chairman, conducted the devotional period.

Mrs. C. M. MacLean announced that a thank offering would be received by the Association at a special communion service to be held at 9 a.m., St. Andrew's Day.

In the absence of Mrs. Hilton, the Dorcas secretary, the list of clothing needed for the Indian boy at school in the west, whom the society is supporting, was read by the president.

Mrs. MacLean reported that six juniors had learned the member's prayer and fulfilled their other obligations in order to earn their first stripes. Twenty pairs of mittens had been donated and sent to the Dorcas department in Toronto.

The juniors were also packing a parcel of books and clothes to be sent to Miss Whelpey, Sunday School by post secretary, in Prince Albert, Sask.

Mrs. Massey-Cooke reported that 46 membership cards had been given out to Little Helpers, seven years of age and younger, and that 28 families were represented in this group.

Mrs. MacLean told a chapter of the Study Book.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. MacLean and Miss Kent. Mrs. Reg. Fallis, the president, passed pieces of her wedding cake.

Next meeting will be held Dec. 12.

The only offices which were not filled by re-election of officers were juniors' secretary and treasurer, left vacant by the removal at the end of the year of Mrs. MacLean, wife of the rector, to a parish in Niagara Falls.

Officers re-elected are; president, Mrs. Reg. Fallis; vice-president, Mrs. W. E. Massey Cooke; secretary, Miss McNamara; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. J. W. Hilton; Little Helpers, Mrs. Massey-Cooke; Living Message secretary, Mrs. Theobald.

Successful Event Staged By Mark St WA Group

Group One of Mark St. WA staged a tea and bazaar Wednesday afternoon with most satisfactory results despite snowflurries that continued throughout the tea hours. The event was held in the Sunday School room where Mrs. J. Finnie and her assistants presented an attractive array of well-laden tables on which everyone could find something to please.

The home cooking table in charge of Mrs. M. Pringle and Mrs. R. Pammett was the most favored spot and quickly sold out. Mrs. H. Hunter and Mrs. W. Thompson were kept busy at the fancy work and novelty section. The articles, too numerous and varied to mention, drew a big share of attention from eager shoppers who had Christmas in mind. Aprons taking top place were in charge of Mrs. W. Pomeroy and Mrs. S. Mesley. On display and for sale was a quilt which had been made by the group.

Mrs. L. Welsh and Mrs. C. Anderson had charge of the candy counter and found little trouble in disposing of the abundant supply. Another feature was the white elephant table where nicely wrapped surprise parcels were sold by Mrs. K. Beavis and Mrs. W. Weatherstone.

The "country store" was a new venture for this group of women, but a lively business was carried on under the capable managership of Mrs. G. Eason assisted by Mrs. W. Ferguson.

The tea table was laid with a beautiful lace cloth and a silver centrepiece filled with white chrysanthemums, flanked by matching candlebra with red candles. The same festive scheme of decoration was used throughout the room.

Mrs. M. Morwood and Mrs. M. Hepburn poured the tea. Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Pepper were in charge of the small tables and the hostesses were Mrs. C. E. VanAllen, Mrs. A. Anderson, and Mrs. W. Lockie. Plates were replenished by Miss L. Agnew, Mrs. J. Hunter and Mrs. C. E. Logan.

Receiving at the door with Mrs. J. Finnie, president of the group, was Mrs. B. F. McNeely, vice president.

Trinity Parsonage Is Setting For WA Tea

The parsonage of Trinity United Church at 371 Park St. N. was setting for a lovely tea on Wednesday afternoon. The arrangements were carried out by ladies from each of the five groups in the Women's Association.

Mrs. N. D. Seaton, who is president of the WA, received with the hostess, Mrs. D. B. Gordon. Charm of tthe spacious living room was enhanced with a huge bouquet of shaggy yellow and mauve 'mums. Assisting to extend gracious hospitality to the guests were Mrs. S. L. Smoke, Mrs. Robert Allen, Mrs. J. L. Thompson ad Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholme.

Mrs. Hubert Chown was ushering to the dining room where the lace-covered tea table displayed taste in arrangements of yellow and bronze 'mums, highlighted with blue tapers. Pouring the tea were Mrs. F. O. Neal, Mrs. Thos. Barrie, Mrs. F. Leslie and Mrs. Chas. Cummer.

Members of Group A and Group E were serving the refreshments and Mrs. D. J. Hall was supervising the replenishing of plates and tea pots. Mrs. H. Martin and Mrs. J. W. Pierce, representing Groups C and D, arranged the tea room.

A table of home cooking in the hall was operated by members of Group B with Mrs. Burrell Moore in charge.

Miss E. Morrow and Mrs. G. E. Porter attended the treasurer's table.

Home and School Association News

ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL

The meeting of St. John's Home and School Association took place in a classroom Tuesday evening with Mrs. William Pushie, president, in the chair.

The meeting was addressed by Mrs. Henderson, librarian, of Southend Branch Library, whose subject was "The Library in the Community." She explained the various facilities through which the library can help organizations as well as individuals.

Mrs. A. H. Nelson, president of Home and School Council, also addressed the gathering. She traced the origin, development and objectives of Home and School and gave much helpful advice and assistance to the members.

Vote of thanks were tendered Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Nelson by Mrs. E. Curtin and Mr. Fergus O'Connor.

Presentations were made to Mrs. B. Holland, past president and to Miss B. Greenan, a former teacher.

It was announced that graduation ceremonies will take place in the school auditorium Thursday, December 8.

Room mothers were appointed as follows for grade I, Mrs. Adamson; grade II, Mrs. Lamore; grades III and IV, Mrs. Reil, grade V and VI, Mrs. Fenton; grade VII, Mrs. Gross, and grade VIII Mrs. Philcox.

At conclusion of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Shaughnessy and her committee.

Wreaths, Candles Decorate For Guild Tea

It seemed as though Christmas was just around the corner Wednesday afternoon at St. Alban's Anglican Church. The Afternoon Guild was serving tea at small quartet tables and each was decorated with a green wreath and pine cones and centred with a lighted red candle in a silver holder. Each guest received a helping of jellied chicken with cranberry sauce and a piece of Christmas cake on her plate.

Looking in on this pretty scene, the weatherman decided to help and in a very short time he had covered the ground with snow and whipped up a real storm for guests on their way home.

Two persons benefitted largely from the event. Miss Anne Roy, Rubidge St., who won the dressed doll when Mr. Don Bellway, student in charge, chose "Biddy" as its name, and Mr. Campion of R.R. 3, Keene, who is winner of the hostess cake.

The home baking table was operated very successfully by Mrs. E. Simmons and Mrs. E. Adams Mrs. Jack Piercy convened the candy table which was operated by the Brownies. The bazaar table with a host of gift suggestions was in charge of Mrs. A. Maskell and Mrs. H. Lake.

Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. G. Sibley, Mrs. D. V Kitchen, Mrs. J, Jardine, Mrs. J. Young, Mrs. W. Hawkins, Mrs E. Miller and Miss Ivy Scotcher.

Mrs. Walter Wood had charge of tickets on the doll and Mrs. G. B. Moore looked after the cake raffle.

Mrs. Cyril Barnes, Guild president, received at the door, assisted by Mrs. E. C. Moore.

DOROTHY DIX

Man With Mother Fixation Is Poor Matrimonial Risk

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: What can you do with a mamma's boy who is still tied to mamma's apron strings, regardless of being 27 years old and engaged to marry me? He is a dear and I love him and he loves me, yet mother has to be asked about everything before he can take a step. We can't even go to a show without him saying: "I'll have to call up mother first and find out if we can go." And when we are with mother it's "Sonny dear" and "Honey boy" until it turns my stomach. I begged him to tell her that he is not a child any more, but a man, and to stop babying him, but he will never do it. As I said, I love this man, but I am afraid of our marriage. Will it be always mother first? I am not jealous, but I want to marry a man, not a toddling infant whose mother has to do all of his thinking for him. What to do?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Well, I should say that unless you want to run a poor second to mother you had better give him up and marry some chap who hasn't such a bad case of mother fixation. Because it is incurable. As long as mother lives he will always be her little boy and she will always decide every question for him, and he will always run to her when he gets his nose bumped and wants to be comforted and petted.

No Love Left For Wife

There is an old saying that a good son makes a good husband, but this is not true if the son is too good. No other man in the world makes a worse husband than the overly devoted son who is so much in love with his mother that he really hasnt much affection to give to any other woman.

Many men who have a mother complex never marry. Mother won't cut the apron string that binds them to her and they haven't the nerve to do it, so they dangle around her, fetching and carrying for her and dragging her around to places of amusement until they are sissified old bachelors.

No woman can do her son a worse injury than to bring him up with a mother fixation. She not only wrecks his love life but she handicaps his whole life by teaching him to be dependent upon her. The very birds have more sense about rearing their children than many women have. For they push their young out of the nest and make them use their own wings.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: You often advise wives to stay with husbands who are not faithful and not divorce them. Listen to my story: I am now a widow, having a husband who strayed from me and two small children. After ruining the life of a good woman, whose only fault was loving him too well, he confessed to me that this woman had borne him a son and he wanted me to divorce him so that he could marry her and legitimize the child. I refused, but I have bitterly regretted it, for since my own children are grown they reproach me for trying to hold a man who no longer loved me and refusing to give the child a name. Now I would give my life to undo the wrong I did an innocent child by holding on to my husband.

A HEARTBROKEN WOMAN

ANSWER: You mistake my position on the divorce subject. I only advise wives to refuse to divorce their husbands when the man is of the philanderer type, one of the men who has no deep affection for any woman and who is lured away by every pretty face that crosses his path.

Also, I think a woman is wise not to rush off to the divorce court when she has a middle-aged husband who thinks he has fallen in love with some flapper young enough to be his daughter. But when a man tells his wife he has ceased to love her and that he is in love with some other woman and that his whole happiness is bound up in this other woman, then I think the wife is wise to let him go in peace.

But I think you and your children's attitude toward your husband's mistress and her child is the very acme of modern gallantry. It takes a fine spirit for a woman to see that the woman who has ousted her in her husband's affections can be a good woman who is the helpless victim of love and circumstances.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a young man who says that although he loves me he has no intention of ever marrying me. He says he does not like the thought of being married. Shall I give him up or not? Do you suppose he will change after he gets older?

ALICE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your best play is to gently but firmly waft him into the outer air and tell him that you have no time to waste on him further, and for him not to come around again unless he brings a wedding ring in his pocket. If he really cares for you that will bring him to the proposing point.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTEETH an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

"What's Right?"

A neighbor is gracious about lending you a piece of yard equipment.

WRONG WAY: Figure that is one thing you don't have to buy, since you can always count on borrowing your neighbor's.

RIGHT WAY: Borrow only in emergencies, rather than depending on borrowing to get you by.

Principal Offers To Teach Fathers

HASTINGS, Nov. 24—(ENS)—Male members of the Home and School Association were told Monday that more men are required to operate the film projector and the school principal offered to hold a class of instruction.

It was decided to leave the school crest with Mr. Thurston for sale to the pupils.

Mr. Thurston read a letter he had received about name pennants which it was decided to sell to pupils at 15 cents each, to raise funds towards a radio for the school.

Mrs. Thompson explained the function of a swap shop for the exchange of skates.

Members agreed to hold the December meeting the first and second Monday so as not to conflict with the Christmas concerts being presented at the churches.

Mrs. J. G. Thompson and Mrs. C. M. Baker presented papers on the regional conference held in Havelock in October.

The principal explained the new educational system.

It was moved by Mrs. Alton Thompson and Mrs. L. W. Humphries that $2 rent for the storage of the projector for last year and this be paid to the school board.

Roll call for parents' attendance showed grade four in the lead.

A white elephant auction was conducted, with F. S. Crate as auctioneer and C. M. Baker as clerk. A vote of thanks to Mr. Crate for being auctioneer was moved by Cavan Spencer and L. W. Humphries.

Questions from the question box were answered. The social committee served lunch.

Snow On Border Cities

WINDSOR, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Snow fell heavily over the twin cities of Windsor and Detroit during the night and blanketed both communities this morning. It was reported the heaviest snowfall of the year. Weather officials reported they expect it to reach one inch during today.

Spain Unpopular Refused Entry To F.A.O.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (CP) —Spain's unpopularity with the United Nations was demonstrated again Wednesday night by a vote of 25 to 19 rejecting her bid for membership in the U.N.'s food and agriculture organization.

Indonesia was elected to membership by a vote of 49 to 0; Israel 40 to 7 and Korea 42 to 5. A scattering of countries abstained from voting on these three; 14 abstained on the Spain vote.

James Dillon, Republic of Ireland delegate, argued for Spain's admission. He said the U.N. has no right to pass on the quality of any government, that a number of them were open to question.

The Arab states opposed Israel's admission, contending the new country disobeyed U.N. orders in the last Middle Eastern conflict.

During the conference session Canada and the United States joined in telling the FAO that the time has come to return to "sound" agricultural practices in the use of North America's fertile farmlands.

The spokesman for the two countries were Agriculture Minister Gardiner of Canada and Stanley Andrews, ranking United States agriculture department official.

Want Sound Agriculture

They noted that both Canada and the United States, striving to feed a hungry world during the war and in the post-war period, made "marked" departures from their normal agricultural practices in boosting foor production.

Now, agricultural authorities in both countries seem to feel that there is a need for a return to sound agriculture.

As far as Canada is concerned, Gardiner said he does not think the conference should urge increased production on the North American continent. Canada already is finding it difficult to market some of her farm products and this situation could become worse.

Scotsman Purchases Island, Now What To Do With It?

SARK, Channel Islands, Nov. 24 (AP)—A Scotsman has bought an island and doesn't know what to do with it.

He is John Thompson Donaldson of Alloa, Clackmannanshire, managing director of a textile factory. He told a reporter last night he had bought the 160-acre Isle of Brechou, a quarter mile west of Sark, from the widow of Capt. T. A. Clarke, an Irishman who lived there before the war.

"But, laddie," he said, "I have absolutely no idea what to do with it."

He said he'd seen the island twice, but buying it was "just one of those mad notions." The asking price had been given earlier as £20,000.

By the feudal law that still governs such a transfer, one-thirteenth of the price goes to the household of the Seigneur of Sark, Robert Hathaway.

Hathaway, an American formerly of New York, is husband of the Dame of Sark, feudal ruler of this island in her own right.

For his money, Donaldson gets some 70 acres of farmland, a 15-year-old stone house with five bathrooms, one other house, two cottages and a small hostel.

He also gets automatically a seat in the Sark parliament, the court of chief pleas.

Canada Must Prevent Dividing Trade Areas

LONDON, Nov. 24 — (CP) — Canada must remain closely linked economically with both the sterling and dollar areas, L. Dana Wilgress, Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom, said today.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the British branch of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Wilgress said it would not be possible for Canada to isolate herself successfully from either of the areas. Such a move would throw Canada's economy "off balance."

Thus it is in Canada's interest "to do everything possible to prevent these two great trading areas from being divided into two separate or divergent groups."

This was the significant of Canada's participation in the three-power financial talks in Washington last September, Wilgress said.

Driving south on the Chemong Rd., James F. Lynn, Toronto, ran into the rear of a car driven by Gustav Siegel, Spenceley's Lane. Siegel was reported to have stopped at the intersection.

The right front fender and grill of the Lynn car and the tail light of the Siegel car were damaged.

Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Several Given Heave-Ho Out Of Social Register

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—Theirs is not to reason why, but some are out of and some are in the 1950 Social Register.

The book came out Wednesday, with its usual number of deletions from, and additions to, the roster of socially-prominent people.

Why the changes? The Social Register Association, which publishes the annual volume, never tells.

But the New York Society columnists like to guess—and they usually blame the upsets on marital events.

Notable among those who got the heave-ho from the new roster is pretty Mary Ellin Berlin, daughter of composer Irving Berlin.

She was divorced during the last year from Dennis Sheedy Burden, whose name remains on the choosy pages.

The irony is that Mary's mother, the former Ellin MacKay, was banished from the book a long time ago when she married the famous composer.

Edward N. Townsend, Jr., is off the elite rolls, after marrying a pretty but non-social English girl, Gwendoline Radcliffe.

Still listed is representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., despite his divorce from Ethel Du Pont, who also stays on.

There were numerous other revisions, all big news among the carriage trade, even if nobody else cares.

Holiday Travel Lighter For U.S. Holiday

By The Canadian Press

Snow fell in many parts of the midwest today as the United States observed is Thanksgiving Day.

The falls ranged from two to six inches in parts of the eastern Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Western Michigan, Northern Iowa and Northern Illinois.

The weather was clear and temperatures normal in southern states while in New England temperatures moderated after Wednesday's cold snap.

Holiday travel was lighter than last year as most Americans stayed at home for the traditional turkey-and-fixin's dinner.

Violent accidents claimed the lives of at least 17 persons during the first hours of the holiday. Fifteen of the deaths were the result of traffic accidents.

The National Safety Council did not estimate the probable number of deaths for the period from Wednesday night until midnight tonight. Over the same period last Thanksgiving 114 persons died in accidental deaths, including 86 in traffic mishaps. The toll in 1947 was 128 and 83 in 1946.

President and Mrs. Truman arranged a quiet observance of the holiday with members of their families in Washington.

See House Burn 3 Years To Build

HAMILTON, Nov. 24—(CP)—A two-storey frame house on Hamilton Mountain representing three year's work by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lovejoy, was burned to the ground today while Mrs. Lovejoy stood helplessly by without a drop of water to douse the flames. Her husband was at work.

The Lovejoys' two children, Kenneth, 5, and Rhonda, 3, were playing with matches in the kitchen of the basement apartment where the family was living pending completion of the upper two floors, when a small blaze broke out on the floor, Mrs. Lovejoy told firemen.

After she had phoned the fire department, the young mother took little Kenneth, still in his pajamas, outside, but couldn't get back into the house to find Rhonda, she said.

Bell Telephone worker Eli Beriault boosted passerby Frank Jones in a first-storey window, and with flames and smoke filling the unfinished house, he found the frightetned little girl and carried her to safety.

Insurance will cover some of the $6,000 loss.

Boy 11 Finds $398 Real Reward Promised

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (CP) — Eleven-year-old James McPherson was promised a "real reward" by the owner of the $398 he found and returned to her.

James found the money stuffed in a bank book lying on the street while he was walking home from school yesterday. He turned it over to a street crossing guide who gave it to the owner, Mrs. Ernest McCaffery. She said she lost the money while returning from a bank.

Coldwell Blasts Immunity Of Flour Mills

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, told the Commons today he can't accept the government statement that flour-millers were granted wartime immunity from Canada's anti price fixing laws.

Resuming debate on clause by clause discussion of a bill to plug loopholes in the Combines Investigation Act, Mr. Coldwell said there has been no documentary evidence to support the contention that the companies were granted this immunity.

Justice Minister Garson and Trade Minister Howe have said the flour-millers were told they wouldn't be prosecuted under the Combines Act for any wartime actions.

Sums Up Arguments

Mr. Coldwell summed up his arguments today when he said:

1. He is satisfied that the government was wrong in withholding publication of the report.

2. There has been price-fixing before, during and after the war in the flour-milling industry and Mr. McGregor's report was warranted.

3. Mr. McGregor's contention that the flour-millers should be prosecuted for their actions was valid.

4. No suggestion of wartime immunity for the flour-millers was ever brought to Mr. McGregor's attention.

5. This was odd because as an enforcement officer of the Prices Board and during investigations, this immunity, if it existed, would certainly have been brought to his attention.

6. If the immunity order had been brought to his attention he would not have continued with the report.

Mr. Coldwell said the CCF is in favor of any amendments, such as the proposed bill, to tighten the laws against price-fixing. He thought, however, there should be some legislation to deal with monopolies.

Waterloo Farmers Rap Sunday Sports

KITCHENER Nov. 24 (CP) — Organized Sunday sport and "disorganized" daylight saving were criticized by the Waterloo County Federation of Agriculture at its annual meeting here on Wednesday.

The Federation also advocated a floor on surplus commodities as a preventive measure against any impending agricultural crisis.

Canadian farmers should now be reimbursed for the amount lost through price fixing during and after the war the meeting decided.

It also asked a three per cent depreciation rate on assessed value of land, an income tax reduction for loss through soil depletion and the cost of conservation.

British Scholarships Find Little Response

LONDON, Nov. 24 (CP)—Britain's ministry of education is offering 920 scholarships to some of the country's best private boarding schools. They're available to students who could never hope to enter the schools otherwise.

But the response has been lukewarm. At mid-year there were only 181 applicants.

The participating schools include Eton, Winchester and Marlborough.

Educationists attribute lack of enthusiasm to the fact parents are unconvinced that these schools offer any special advantages in present-day Britain.

In addition, many of the scholarships require parents to make a contribution to the fees. Even where fees are free, there are many other expenses to be met at a private school.

Woman 81 Jailed

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(AP)—The court found Miss Louise Schmidt, 81, guilty of begging and sentenced her to 15 days in jail. Policewomen testified Wednesday they found $2,133 sewn in her underclothing. She claimed she inherited the money from a brother a year ago.

Government To Lend 10 Million To Coal Men

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 —(CP)— Trade Minister Howe gave notice to the Commons today that the government is prepared to lend up to a total of $10,000,000 to Maritime provinces coal producers to assist production.

He placed on the order paper a notice that he is ready to bring in legislation which would help modernize production methods. The maximum amount that could be loaned to any one producer would be $7,500,000.

The legislation would provide for the conditions of the loans and the terms of repayment.

A LIFETIME OF SEEING The Baby's Eyes

Heredity determines to a large extent the kind of eyes that a child will possess in starting its life. Strong eyes, like other physical characteristics, run in families. Study of the hereditary background of a child's eyes is of value to parents in helping shape a program that will conserve and protect the child's vision—its most precious possession.

Although the human eye at birth is large compared with the size of the body, it increases during life only three and one-half times in size, as compared with an increase of about 21 times for the entire body. During the first month of its life, an infant does not have very good vision, for the optic nerve is still developing during that period; and it is two months before the baby has learned how to control his eye muscles to see large objects. Children normally are born far-sighted, and even at four months they are so far-sighted that they will not notice objects about an inch in size placed before them.

Eyes of children do not become spherical until the age of six or seven years. By watching over and guarding the eyesight of their children, parents can aid in enriching immensely the lives of their offspring.

Higher Taxes Blamed On Education Costs

"Increased taxation due to higher cost of education is a live topic wherever farmers congregate."

That quotation from the weekly review of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is typically seasonal. It reflects the passing of the harvest time and the coming of winter as a period for stock-taking and generally surveying the state of affairs.

Dufferin County reports potato growers getting 90 cents and Middlesex mentions one dollar a bag. Top yield in the Middlesex potato club was 797 bushels an acre. Fourteen growers took off more than 500 bushels to the acre. The same county reports many car loads of feeding cattle arriving from the west.

Most of the counties report that cattle have been removed from the ranches into winter housing. Plowing and harvesting are wrapped up for this year. Barn threshing of beans is under way in Huron. November is closing on a fall wheat crop generally described as "the best we have ever seen."

Lambton says: "Every old apple tree in neglected orchards that have not been sprayed or pruned in years, produced a a bumper crop this season. There is no market for those supplies."

The Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association is completing a 67 foot barn, providing total accommodation, old and new, for 24 bulls.

Prescott-Russell mentions the open fall, with little snow and not much rain. "Wells and springs are drying up and unless we have wet weather pretty soon, many farmers will have to haul water for their livestock."

Muskoka reports lumber camps paying $35 a ton forbaled hay. Potato growers sold most of their foundation "A" Chipoawa seed at $2.25 a bag this fall.

Gambling Queen Finds Work Tame Occupation

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24 (AP)—To former school teacher Elaine Townsend, running a gambling salon is just like the grocery business.

"The only difference is that you deal in cheques instead of soap flakes," she explained.

Miss Townsend is a thirtyish, handsome blonde who heads some gaming operations in Havana, Cuba. Although she fails to see the glamor of her occupation, Hollywood feels otherwise. She will soon be the subject of "The Elaine Townsend Story."

Here to oversee the writing of the script, the gambling queen explained how she happened to choose her work.

"Have you ever lived where temperatures were 40 below zero?" She asked. I replied I had not.

To Warm Climes

"Well, I did," she continued. "I was born in the little town of Powell, Wyoming. I went to the University of Denver and I taught at a commercial school in Denver. Finally, I got so cold I took a trip to Honolulu.

"When I went back home, I was colder than ever. So I took another trip—this time to Havana. I stayed at the Nacional Hotel and out by the pool I would hear all the big-money talk. I happened to hear that the Chemin de Fer and crap concession at the hotel was open, so I snapped it up.

"Later I became associated with the race track and I now operate all the gambling at the Montmarte."

Doesn't she find it at all exciting?

"Oh, yes," she admitted. "It's fun to be close to the games—and gambling is a business where you have to stay close to your money And there's a thrill in not knowing at nine whether you will be rich or broke at three in the morning."

But as far as stick-ups or other excitement, such are lacking. "We are too well protected for anyone to try anything," she said. "Besides, gambling being legal in Cuba, there is little dirty work."

Where then, will come the drama for the picture? "Oh, it's a comedy," she explained. She said Ann Sheridan would be her preference for the role of Elaine Townsend.

PATIENTS AT THE Hospital for Sick Children are given few idle moments in which to be lonely and homesick. An important part of all treatment is recreational activity. Here, a nurse reads a popular bedtime story to an interested listener and her doll.

THE NEW HOSPITAL for Sick Children, nearing completion on University Ave., south of College St., in Toronto, will be one of the most modern on the continent when it opens its doors next July.

THESE "UP" PATIENTS at dinner are among the children who can be accommodated in the present Hospital for Sick Children. The new building will be large enough for 632 beds compared to 320 beds in the present building.

U.S. Air Force Thanks Canadian Navy

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (CP)—The United States Air Force has officially thanked the Canadian Navy for helping to rescue 18 survivors of a U.S. B-29 bomber which crashed in the Atlantic off Bermuda last week.

The men were picked up by the Canadian destroyer Haida after a U.S. bomber led the Haida to where the 18 survivors huddled in a canvas lifeboat. The aircraft carrier Magnificent and frigate Swansea also participated in the search.

A message from Gen. Hoyt S. Vanderberg, Chief of Staff of the U.S. Air Force, to Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant, Chief of Naval Staff, said:

"We are especially grateful for the work of the men of the Haida and Magnificent who accomplished the rescue work despite heavy seas and consequent difficult conditions. This immediate and unselfish action is typical of the friendly co-operation which characterizes the relationships between the people of Canada and the United States."

Fear Firebug Loose On Indian Reservation

BRANTFORD, Nov. 24 (CP)—Police are investigating the possibility that four fires on the nearby Six Nations Indian reservation during the last four months were set by firebugs. The fires have resulted in one death and heavy loss in farm property.

Cpl. A. H. Langelle, in charge of the RCMP detachment at Ohsweken, said today that the investigation was started following a fire Tuesday night which destroyed a large barn and 30 tons of hay on the farm of Grant General, two miles southwest of Ohsweken.

In Critical Condition

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (CP) — Found on a lumber pile with a bullet wound in the chest, William Sagemiuk, 38, Wednesday night was taken to hospital in critical condition. Police quoted Sagemiuk as having told them he shot himself in his room because of family troubles and the loss of his job. They said the man collapsed in the lumber yard of a nearby plant.

Land Seizures Investigated; Peasants Astir

By ARNALDO CORTESI

ROME, Nov. 24 — Premier Alcide de Gasperi returned to Rome this week after acquainting himself during the course of a one-day inspection tour of Calabria with what can be done to help the landless peasants of that region. His return coincided with the receipt of news that land seizures continued in Sicily and had spread also to other regions, notably to Apulia. Episodes of violence also were reported from some rural areas in northern Italy, particularly near Parma and Modena.

What Signor de Gasperi has seen in Calabria, and evidence that the landless peasants are growing extremely impatient apparently have convinced him that agrarian reform designed to make land available to agricultural workers who have none must be pushed through Parliament with all possible speed. He regards this not only as a much needed social reform but also as a political problem of such urgency that it does not permit further delay.

One of the reasons for Signor de Gasperi's visit to Calabria was, in fact, the necessity of counteracting Communist propaganda that had made much headway among the southern rural population by claiming that whatever had been done or would be done for the peasants was the result exclusively of the Communist party's sponsorship of their cause.

Warns Landlords

One sentence of the speech that Signor de Gasperi delivered in Cosenza yesterday particularly was noted in Rome. He said:

"Woe unto landowners if they do not understand that the moment has come for them to subordinate their interests to the social function of property."

This was interpreted to mean that the Government was preparing to move against large landlords, and especially against absentee landlords, in no uncertain fashion.

With characteristic caution, however, the Premier warned the peasants that agrarian reform could not be implemented immediately but had been taken They are: first, local agreements for immediate concession of untilled lands to the peasants and second, the work of land reclamation and improvement to make vast tracts of more or less deserted land suitable for division into small holdings and for settlements by large number of peasant families.

The continued land seizures in Sicily and elsewhere are regarded in Rome as a clear violation of the promise made last Wednesday to Interior Minister Mario Scelba by Giuseppe di Vittorio, Communist secretary general of the Italian Labor Confederation, to call off further seizures pending outcome of the Government's efforts to solve the problem of the landless peasants as a whole.

The minister, on his side, under-took to leave the peasants in possession of the land they had seized while peasants and owners decided by direct negotiation under government auspices what steps should be taken to relieve the situation of the landless peasants in each locality where seizures had occurred.

With seizures continuing, Signor Scelba instructed the police to evict peasants from the most recently occupied lands.

Landlady Fined $10 For Raising Rent

Found guilty of charging a rent that was higher than fair and just, Mrs. Agnes Armstrong, 483 Donegal St., was fined $10 and $8 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp KC in police court Wednesday.

Evidence showed Mrs. Armstrong charged Mrs. Carry Dummitt, $8 a week for two rooms rented to her. Mrs. Dummitt was supplied with electricity and hot and cold water, but supplied her own heat.

Mrs. Anderson said she thought there was no need to make an application for an increase in the rent from $6.50 to $8 in the spring because Mrs. Dummitt had sublet her apartment to another woman.

Delivery Reduction

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 24 (CP)—Reduction in the frequency of milk deliveries in Ontario was advocated by J. H. Dauphin, president of the National Dairy Council, here Wednesday. Addressing the 20th annual convention of the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association he said that the need for early action on the question has "now become imperative if we are to avoid the necessity of further price increases in order to remain in business."

Czechs Confiscate U.S. Embassay Paper

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 24 (UP)—The Post Office informed the United States Embassy Wednesday that it had confiscated a recent edition of the Embassy's information bulletin because it carried "an alarmist report menacing the security of state and public order."

The offending item was a story on a joint British-United States resolution on the "essentials of plan" in the United Nations General Assembly's Political Committee that urged respect for the dignity of man, freedom of religion and "full freedom for the peaceful expression of political opposition."

The Prague district Criminal Court, sitting as a press court, held that reporting on the need for political freedom endangered the safety of the state, the Post Office said.

Five Fatalities Blamed On Bad Storm

12 Inches Of Snow In Some Areas; Armstrong 27 Below

TORONTO, Nov. 24. (CP) — Death of a snow-shoveller from a heart attack here today raised to five the total of fatalities blamed on a snow and sleet storm which swept through most of Ontario on Thursday night. Three persons died in traffic accidents and several others were injured. The fifth death was attributed to exhaustion.

The snowfall averaged 3 to 9 inches, with 12 inches reported in Wellington county's Arthur area. Toronto had more than 7 inches, heaviest November snowfall since 1874.

Northern Ontario escaped a heavy snowfall, but it was gripped in a cold snap, with temperatures of 27 below zero reported at Armstrong, near North Bay, and 10 below at Cochrane.

Beatrice Oskaboos, 16, of the Serpent River Indian Reserve, was taken to hospital at Blind River, 90 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie, her feet badly frozen after being lost two days and two nights in the bush. Hospital attendants said she may never walk again.

Ships Delayed

The blinding snowfall almost brought navigation on the St. Lawrence River at a standstill in the Brockville district. Great Lakes freighters dropped anchor in the night above and below Brockville but proceeded early today at reduced speed with visibility cut down to 100 feet.

Ottawa's mechanized snow-removal force manned by 175 workers was out early today removing an overnight snowfall of five inches. The city's buses and street cars operated normally.

In Toronto, death of Richard Kelly, 70, was attributed to a heart attack brought on by snow-warning from Coroner Dr. F. W. Tickett to men past 50 to leave snow-shovelling alone.

French Strike Called Fiasco

PARIS, Nov. 25 (AP)—France's two biggest labor unions called a 24-hour general strike today but the demonstration for higher wages failed to shut down French economic life.

Transportation was disrupted. Mines and most big industries were closed.

But reports from throughout the country showed that large groups of workers insisted on staying on the job.

Socialist cabinet minister Eugene Thomas, who heads the post office called the strike a "fiasco."

The Communist - dominated Confederation General du Travail and the anti-Communist Force Ouvrier got together to call the one-day demonstration. They want to pressure the government to give pay bonuses and end wage freezes.

U.S.-Canadian Air And Ground Forces Join In Yukon-Alaska Training Exercise

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 —(CP)— Air and ground forces from Canada and the United States will take part in a joint winter training exercise in the Yukon and Alaska next January and February, defence headquarters announced today.

In over-all command of the exercise will be Lt.-Gen. Stephen J. Chamberlain, commanding general of the United States Fifth Army. Working closely with Gen. Chamberlain will be Maj.-Gen. M. H. S. Penhale, general officer commanding the Canadian Army's Western Command, and Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Dunlop, air officer commanding the RCAF's North West Air Command, both with headquarters at Edmonton.

Defence headquarters also said that the RCAF will supply the over-all air force commander, while a U.S. army officer will fill a similar army position. Both commanders will be named at a later date.

Major Canadian ground troops participating in the exercise will be the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry of Calgary, Canada's first airborne battalion, and "B" battery of the 1st Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, of Shilo, Man., now completing airborne training.

Offer To Train Soldiers On Canadian Soil Would Be Welcome—Slim

OTTAWA, Nov. 25—(CP)—Britain's army chief said today any Canadian offer to train British and Western European troops in Canada would be received "very gratefully" in the countries involved. Field Marshal Sir William Slim was told at a press conference that such a role was among those reported under consideration by the government as part of Canada's participation in the Atlantic pact. The chief of the Imperial General Staff said any such offer "is entirely a matter for Canada to decide." He had heard no suggestion of it in the United Kingdom.

But it was probable that not only the U.K. but the Western European countries would be "very grateful" if such an offer was put forward.

The U.K. already had "quite a number" of officers in Canada.

Sir William, in the midst of a day f conferences with government and military officials, also made these points:

The Germans still are the most dangerous and most valuable" people in Europe.

Western Union—the alliance of Britain, France and the Benelux countries—has made "immense progress."

The type of equipment used in training troops doesn't matter so much just so long as they are trained to accept discipline and meet certain basic requirements. They can learn the techniques of new equipment, such as tanks, quickly. He had even seen them do it in the middle of a battle.

Sir William conferred with Prime Minister St. Laurent, Defense Minister Claxton, and the chief of staff during the day. He leaves today for Kingston.

Reporters told him Field Marshal Earl Wavell said recently the Germans will eventually be a bigger menace than Russia. Sir William said "the Germans are both the most dangerous and the most valuable—to have on your side."

As for the possibilities of war, he was no prophet.

U.N. Political Group Rejects Peace Pact

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 25 —(CP)—The United Nations Political Committee today soundly rejected a Russian proposal for a peace pact among the Big Five-powers which at the same time called for condemnation of Britain and the United States as "preparers" of a new war.

Voting on the Soviet resolution sentence-by-sentence, the 59-member political committee opposed each by an overwhelming majority. No vote on the resolution as a whole was taken.

Police Upset Attempt To Free Killer

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP) — Police patrolled areas outside the Cook County jail today after thwarting an attempt by two young men to free James Morelli, the "mad dog" killer, who is scheduled to die in the electric chair early Saturday.

Police said the two men seized near the jail Thursday night admitted they had been trying since last Monday to aid the doomed Morelli in escaping from the jail.

Morelli already has been granted five stays since he first was sentenced to death last March 19. He was convicted of killing Emil Schmeichel Dec. 12, 1947, in a wild shooting spree in which two other men were killed and two wounded.

Police identified the two men seized Thursday night as Dominic J. Demaria, 20, and Erville Leroy Burdick, 22, and said they had been friends of Morelli for seven or eight years.

Had Saws, Gun

Police said a bag which Burdick was carrying when picked up by four detectives contained two 19 inch hacksaw blades, a .22 calibre revolver, and 50 feet of fishing line.

Burdick's statement said he and Demaria were to signal Morelli by a lighted match. If the signal was returned, also by a lighted match, they were to move to the side of the north wall and look for a thin cord weighted by a washer. They were to attach the end of a fishing line to the cord and a bag containing the saws and the pistol to the end of the fishing line.

Burdick said they flashed the signal and in turn received a return signal Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. But, he added, as they moved along the wall on each of the three nights, they could not find the cord.

Morelli, unknown to Burdick and Demaria, was moved from his cell-block to the death cell on Thursday afternoon.

Heiress Jilts Officer, Changes Mind, Grabs Him

ROXBURY, NY, Nov 25 (AP) —Heiress Sylvia Gould, who broke her engagement to Lt.-Cmdr. Ernst Hoefer, Jr, on the eve of their wedding scheduled for last September 24, was married to the handsome United States naval officer Thursday night.

The ceremony was arranged on short notice at the Seager, NY, home of the 31-year-old heiress to part of the fortune of her great-grandfather, financier Jay Gould.

The bride said last September 23 that she cancelled her engagement to the 29-year-old naval officer because he refused to sign away dower rights to her estate.

Newspapers had said the wedding was called off because of Hoefer's refusal to give up his navy career and become a business man in New York City

The reports were called "entirely erroneous" by the twice-married Mrs. Gould "I had every intention of living with him on any assignment he had," she said.

"He refused to sign a pre-nuptial dower rights agreement, relinquishing those rights in my estate," she said. "And my children must be protected."

The bride had used her maiden name of Gould since her divorce last April from Robert Parker, Jr She has a daughter Lucci, 2, by her marriage to Parker. She has two children, Charles, Jr., and Silvia Gould Thomson, by her first marriage to Charles Dabney Thomson.

Nationalize British Steel Plants

State Starts To Run Key Firms On January 1, 1951

LONDON, Nov. 25—(AP)—State ownership of Britain's huge steel and iron industry became law Thursday, but the Labor government will have to win the next general election to take over the key plants in the country's economic structure.

The House of Lords put its seal on the disputed bill and the King signed it a few minutes later.

Thus the government of Prime Minister Attlee fulfilled the last of the campaign promises it made in the 1945 elections. But through a compromise with the strongly-Conservative House of Lords the government cannot take over the industry until long after next year's general elections. The take-over date is Jan. 1, 1951, and the elections must come not later than next July.

Steel nationalization promises to be a major issue when the elections come at the end of the Labor's five-year term.

Winston Churchill, Conservative party leader, has declared that the elections, among other things, will be a virtual "referendum" on the steel nationalization issue.

Promises Repeal

Churchill has promised to repeal the bill if his Conservatives win.

The Lords have blocked passage of the bill until now, even though the predominantly-Labor House of Commons passed it. The Lords said it should be left open as an issue in the next election.

The Labor party compromised with the Lords, setting back the take-over date from May 1, 1950, which they had originally demanded in exchange for passage of the bill.

By recently cutting to one year the delaying powers of the Lords on Commons-approved legislation the Labor government could have overridden their objection to the State Ownership Bill. But the government maintained it would have been physically impossible to take over the industry technically by May 1, anyway, so it was willing to accept the delay and make the bill an election issue.

Germans Accept Allied Pact

BONN, Germany, Nov. 25 (AP) —West Germany's parliament today approved the new Allied-German agreement relaxing occupation controls.

But opposition during the tumultuous, all-night session was so bitter that Socialist leader Kurt Schumacher was barred from the Assembly's next 20 sessions for insulting Chancellor (Premier) Konrad Adenauer.

"Chancellor of the Allies" was the taunt hurled by Schumacher at Adenauer that brought the opposition leader's suspension. It came after the Socialist bitterly objected to West Germany's promise to participate in the International Control Authority for Germany's rich industrial Ruhr, which the Germans previously have boycotted.

In the agreement signed by Adenauer and the high commissioners of Britain, the United States and France, West Germany agreed also to maintain demilitarization, to continue to eradicate Nazism, and to support controls against German cartels and monopolies.

In return, the Allies ended dismantling in at least 18 German steel, rubber and chemical plants. They also agreed to German consular and commercial relations abroad, rebuilding of a limited German merchant marine for foreign trade and Allied sponsorship of German membership in international organizations.

Intensify Air Search

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25—(CP) —An air-sea search for a lone Japanese fisherman lost in rough Gulf of Georgia seas was intensified today. RCAF and chartered aircraft joined motor launches in their search for Frank Kawafoye, formerly of Lethbridge, Alta., missing since Monday.

THE AGES OF THESE THREE brothers of the reigning Swedish royal family total 270 years. Left to right are King Gustav, 91, Prince Oscar Bernadotte, 90, and Prince Carl Bernadotte, who plans to celebrate his 89th birthday next year. 50 People Watch As Three Children Drown

ASBESTOS, Que., Nov. 25 (CP) —While more than 50 persons helplessly looked on, three small children drowned in the icy waters of the Nicolet River at nearby Kingsey Falls village Thursday when thin ice they were playing on gave way.

The children were identified as Serge Morin, 4, Jean Guy Boisvert, 5, and Yvon Boisvert, 4. The latter two children were brothers.

Provincial Police, who investigated the tragedy, said the children were playing about 50 feet from shore when the ice suddenly gave way under them.

The cries of terror and for help attracted residents from the village, nine miles east of this eastern townships town. The river flows close by the village.

Rescue attempts were tried by the villagers but they were forced to turn back when thin ice buckled under their weight.

One group of rescuers manned a rowboat and almost succeeded in pulling one of the children to safety. The child was caught between two chunks of ice, but slipped from sight just as his rescuers were about to come within reach of him.

The bodies were recovered shortly after.

Alabama Tornadoes Snuff Out 15 Lives

ALEXANDER CITY, Ala., Nov. 25 (AP)—Tornadoes leap frogged across eastern Alabama Thursday, snuffing out 15 lives and leaving more than 25 injured.

Ralph Froshin, Red Cross chairman, said 11 Negroes died at Hackneyville, nine miles northeast of here.

The highway patrol said the big, out-of-season wind picked up a weatherbeaten, Grey home and hurled it to the ground across a road. This was the house in which the 11 died.

Four persons were reported dead and more than a score injured in Blount and Dekalb counties more than 100 miles to the north.

A small twister struck a few miles north of Oneonta about dusk, injuring more than a score. Most of the injured were at a tourist camp.

Man Shoots Wife Accidentally On Hunt

BLOUNSTOWN, Fla., Nov. 25 (AP)—Mrs. J. Rhoden Leath was accidentally shot to death near here Thursday by her husband while on a turkey hunt. Leath, an electrician, told police his shotgun became tangled in some vines and discharged when she was about 10 feet away.

Czechs Scour Countryside To Liquidate Big Farmers

PRAGUE, Nov. 25—(AP)—Communist-led search committees today spread out through the Czech countryside in an apparent drive to liquidate larger farmers. The committees, backed by self-styled "persuading groups," operated through a wide section of the country seeking out and rounding up "economic saboteurs," reports in the controlled press revealed.

Prison sentences, confiscations and stiff fines were being imposed by district national committees (local governing bodies) against the Kulaks (village rich) on charges of sabotaging the country's five-year plan.

The agrarian campaign appeared to be a counterpart of the wave of arrests last month in cities which rounded up thousands of independent business men and other middle-class elements.

Informed diplomatic quarters interpreted the new drive as part of the Communist class warfare plan and a prelude to collectivization of the land along the Soviet pattern.

In such a scheme "big" farmers (none of whom can own more than 124 acres of land under present laws) first would have to be liquidated.

Two months ago the government-controlled press proclaimed a bountiful harvest with the compulsory deliveries of crops to the state exceeding the target.

Now, however, it is charged that 'economic saboteurs' throughout the country failed to deliver their quotas. Some were also accused of refusing to seed arable land as directed by the government.

Have 3 Presidents

PANAMA, Panama, Nov. 25 (AP)—Arnulfo Arias, a fiery 49-year-old surgeon, early today became Panama's third president in six days by proclamation of congress.

The congressional approval apparently put the stamp of legality on the latest coup by Panama's president-making police chief, Col. Joe Remon.

Remon, who forced the ouster of President Daniel Chanis, Jr., Sunday, late Thursday night defied a ruling of the supreme court and announced that Arias was the new president. A few minutes before, the court had ruled Chanis was still the constitutional president of this Central American country.

Play Cup Game On Frozen Field

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP)—Tomorrow's East-West football game will probably be played on a frozen field in freezing temperatures.

That was the outlook today as the weatherman forecast a low of 15 degrees tonight and a high of 30 for Saturday around 2 p.m.—15 minutes after the kickoff in the game between Montreal Alouettes and Calgary Stampeders.

City of Toronto equipment moved into Varsity Stadium this morning to clear off the four to five inches left on the field by a snowfall Thursday afternoon and night. Stadium officials said the equipment cleared off most of the snow and they hoped that the sun would provide sufficient warmth to melt the rest. Light equipment was used to avoid damage to the turf.

The sun broke through the clouds this morning and the weather forecaster said it may shine quite a bit of the time tomorrow when variable cloudiness is the official forecast.

There is little likelihood of further snow before the 1:45 p.m. kickoff, the weatherman said.

Attlee Offers Higher Pay If Higher Output Made

LONDON, Nov .25 — (CP) — The Labor Government apparently has made up its mind that reward in industry should be related to output.

In other words, workers who can produce more will be entitled to draw more wages despite a virtual wages standstill adopted by the country's Trade Union leadership.

Prime Minister Attlee made this position clear on Thursday night

In a statement Attlee said the so-called wage freeze, self-imposed by the trade unions, is not intended to slam the door on the higher earnings by Britain's 8,000,000 organized workers.

"The decision," he said, "is to suspend any movement of wage rates unrelated to the level of output.

"But it leaves wide open the door to higher earnings through improved productio- and greater efficienc .

He reiterated that there is nothing in the decision announced Wednesday by the General Council of the British Trades Union Congress to "deprive workers of hope of improving their material situation."

The Prime Minister warmly endorsed incentive schemes "of all kinds." Until recently, the government has seemed lukewarm in its attitude toward incentives. One of the most frequent criticisms of Socialism is that its activities, including nationalization, tend to dry up the incentive of the worker.

Trade unionists may be puzzled by what appears to be a contradiction between Attlee's statement and one made public Thursday by a Treasury official.

The Treasury view was that "the economic situation demands that every member of the community should increase output without compensatory monetary returns."

Say Province Takes Over By Next April

Abbott Raps Charges Made By Duplessis, "Left To Provinces"

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott has agreed not to bring boosts in rental ceilings into operation in Saskatchewan.

This was shown in an exchange of correspondence between Mr. Abbott and the Premiers of Saskatchewan and Quebec, tabled today in the Commons. The Finance Minister agreed not to enforce Dec. 15 increases in Saskatchewan on the understanding that the province will take over rental controls next April.

In his exchange of letters with Premier Duplessis of Quebec, Mr. Abbott took issue with the charge that the Federal Government had never offered to hand over rental controls to the provinces. Mr. Abbott said he had made the offer last year and again this year.

The agreement with Saskatchewan will mean that the 20 and 25 per cent increases scheduled to go into effect next Dec. 15 will not apply to that province.

Intend To Act

Mr. Abbott's agreement, contained in a letter to Premier T. C. Douglas dated Nov. 23, is based on Saskatchewan's intention to take over the rentals field when the federal controls expire next March 31, 1950.

Mr. Abbott's action regarding Saskatchewan left the way open for any other province to assume control of rents and to make inoperative the recently announced rent boosts.

The position in Saskatchewan, continued Mr. Abbott, will be similar to what is would have been if the province had acted earlier to put rental regulations into effect now.

Mr. Duplessis had replied Nov. 16 that "Ottawa has never offered to restore us to the full exercise of the rights which it has assumed in this field. . ."

This was "difficult to understand" the Finance Minister replied. He wrote Mr. Duplessis again on Nov. 24, pointing out he had made the offer to vacate the field more than a year ago and again on Nov. 3.

"The Federal Government does not venture to suggest whether or not ony province should enter the field of rent control," Mr. Abbott wrote Mr. Duplessis.

English Wife Home To Die

HAMILTON, Nov. 25 (CP)—A war bride who has cancer is going back to her native England to await the death which surgeons say may come within three months. Donations in response to a radio appeal will pay the fare for the woman, Mrs. Jean Irving, 34.

With her will go her three small children. Their father, John Irving, a disabled war veteran, has given permission for the two boys and baby girl to be taken to England to be cared for by Mrs. Irvings mother and sisters.

Mrs. Irving expects to leave Hamilton within the next week or two. She and the children will be in England in time for Christmas.

Thanksgiving Toll 161 Said Highest In Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP)—The death toll in violent accidents during the Thanksgiving Day holiday in the United States was one of the highest in several years.

There were at least 161 violent deaths from 6 p.m. local time Wednesday to midnight Thursday. These included 103 traffic fatalities. Fifty-eight persons died in miscellaneous accidents, including fires, plane crashes, shootings, falls and hunting. Also included were 14 persons killed in Alabama tornadoes.

This year's Thanksgiving violent deaths compared to 114 during the same period last year; 128 in 1947 and 83 in 1946.

Highest Peace Defence Budget Given Approval

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—The Defence Department's 1949-50 account of more than $383,000,000 —highest peactime estimates in Canada's history—was approved by the Commons Thursday.

But in allowing the estimates to pass, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said he was not satisfied with the procedure followed in dealing with the estimates.

He gave notice that next year his party will insist on formation of a defence committee through which the Commons could get all necessary information on which to base an intelligent appraisal of the operations and expenditures of the department.

Debate on the estimates, previously before the Commons Nov. 11 and again Nov. 18, touched on a wide variety of topics ranging from the screening of employees in the National Film Board to proposed defence establishments in Newfoundland.

Ready To Sign Up

Defence Minister Claxton disclosed that more than two-thirds of the men who served in air crew of the RCAF during the last war have signified their intention of rejoining the armed forces should a state of emergency arise.

There are now about 60,000 men in civilian life who served with the RCAF in the last war. Approximately 47,000 had signified their intention of "joining the armed forces should a state of emergency arise."

On the defence estimates, Mr. Drew said the Commons had been given costs of various defence items, the strength of the three services and percentages of training. These were of little use unless members knew the equipment of the forces and their effectiveness.

Under the procedure followed in the Commons it would take possibly three months to get the information it should have.

During his request for details about the forces, some members interjected: "Russia."

Mr. Drew said he had heard a remark about Russia and he assumed it meant that Russia would like information about Canada's armed forces.

"I say the time has come to realize the only people we are fooling are the people of Canada unless we get details about our armed forces."

Chinese Reds Want West to Coax Them

OTTAWA, Nov. 25—(CP)—The Chinese Communists aren't showing any signs of courting the west to back up their requests for diplomatic recognition. On the contrary—"perhaps misguidedly"—they apparently expect the west to come to them.

The Commons committee on External Affairs was told that Thursday night by Arthur Menzies, head of the Far Eastern Division of the External Affairs Department.

He was called as a witness after the committee voted down a Progressive Conservative motion to call T. C. Davis, recalled Ambassador to China, to provide a "factual picture" of the Chinese situation. Only four Conservative members supported the motion by Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel).

Mr. Menzies was the final witness as the committee held two sessions in one day to wind up its study of departmental estimates.

Lists Factors

Mr. Menzies gave a number of factors which might indicate that some 200 Canadian missionaries in Red China may be allowed to carry on their work, but he said it is too early to tell yet.

One was that the missionaries have established "an enviable reputation" in local areas and such reputations count for a lot in China. Another is that only a small portion of the Reds actually are "dyed-in-the-wool Communists" and some of the others, educated by the missionaries or in the west, might feel like leaving foreigners alone.

Mr. Menzies told Mr. Graydon the Western China Union University, partially backed by the United Church of Canada, still is in the Nationalist area. He thought there was a fair chance its missionaries will get an opportunity to try to continue their work if the Reds take over that area.

L. T. Stick (L—Trinity-Conception) told the committee Newfoundlanders don't want any interference with U.S. military operations at three bases in the province. Relations were good with the troops and the bases meant "millions of dollars to us."

Plan To Form New Labor Group

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Anti-Communist labor leaders of 46,000,000 union workers in 45 countries meet here Monday to form a new world labor confederation.

They plan a new Communist-free labor international to unite all trade unions and international trade secretariats.

The British Trade Unions Congress, one of the prime movers of the new international union, announced early today the countries and labor organizations which will be represented at the 10-day sessions.

Australia and Brazil will not be represented. Russia and her satellite countries were not invited.

The American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the TUC expect the new confederation to supersede the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

In Collision

Arthur Ground, 82, of Detroit, died in Brantford Hospital from injuries received Thursday night when the car in which he was riding collided with a truck on the highway near Paris.

Other storm deaths included Esther Constantine, a 38-year-old woman weighing more than 300 pounds and known to transport drivers on the Queen Elizabeth highway for her habit of stepping in the road to obtain rides. Police said she was killed by a truck and Earl Shawana, of Meadowvale, succendered later.

The other storm death was that of O. R. Rowley, 82, Toronto, killed when the car in which he was riding skidded off the road and smashed into a tree near Oakville. Driver of the car, Mrs. Anne Stewart, his niece, was injured.

Among numerous other accidents a panel truck smashed into a Toronto streetcar with injuries to the truck driver, B. J. Halborsen. Three passengers on a Danforth Coach Company motorbus were injured when it skidded into collision with a streetcar in Toronto's east end.

All provincial highways are open, the Ontario Highways Department announced today. Plows worked throughout the night and then sanding and salting crews were sent out. Roads in most sections were described as having "close to normal winter driving conditions."

Turns To Ice

In the Kitchener area snow fell until late in the evening, later turning to ice on the roads, and similar conditions prevailed around Guelph, Goderich and Listowel. Windsor had its heaviest snowfall of the season, turning to rain and sleet. Members of the Elgin County Council meeting at St. Thomas were forced to remain in the city overnight due to highway conditions.

Four out of five long distance telephone lines between Sarnia and London were out of commission by heavy snow last night.

In Eastern Ontario, the Lindsay Peterborough district reported up to 7½ inches of snow and Brockville got it some time later. Highways there were fairly clear but icy in spots.

Quaker Oats Employees Awarded Safety Plaque

For their perfect record of 1,500,000 man-hours without a lost-time accident, Peterborough employees of Quaker Oats Company have been awarded the plaque of the National Safety Council, representing the highest place in competition with 21 other major milling concerns.

This was a planned effort by the Peterborough staff. It was not something that just happened.

The safety promoting group at the local mill entered this contest with hopes of making a good showing in the stated period of twelve months ending June 30, 1949.

L. H. Ingram, vice-president, told the Examiner it was a splendid record and achievement of the safety committee of the plant.

The signifiance and distinction of this honor was impressed upon the staff Wednesday in short conferences that continued through most of the day. Groups of the men and women met for half an hour at a time to see the beautiful plaque which they were instrumental in bringing to Peterborough, and briefly to recall, with high satisfaction, the way this record was compiled.

Actually, Quaker Oats mills won top honors in three divisions of the National Safety Congree, third place in another division, and three certificates in recognition of outstanding achievements in reducing frequency of disabling injuries.

"Peterborough mill won top honors in Group A, grain handling and processing division of the food section. There were 21 major companies competing in this group, with an average frequency rate of 10.08.

12-Month Period

The Peterborough mill was the only contestant to end the contest with a record of no lost-time accidents for the 12 months of the contest period. A trophy has been awarded the Peterborough mill in recognition of this achievement."

Mr. Ingram received a letter of congratulation from Ralph M. Hartmann of Quaker Company, Cedar Rapids, in part as follows:

"We are very proud of the recognition for good industrial safety practices which your mill has brought to the Quaker Oats Company.

A beautiful plaque has been awarded Peterborough mill by the National Safety Council for winning your section of the safety contest. It is being sent under separate cover. I wish it were possible for me to present the plaque personally to you and your employees. I hope you will in some appropriate manner be able to inform all your employees of the safety award they have won for the Peterborough mill, present them with the plaque they have earned, and assure them that the Quaker Oats Company appreciated the individual efforts of each employee in the promotion of good safety practices."

"This is a matter which must be decided by the Government and Legislature of each province in the light of local circumstances."

Mr. Duplessis' letter of Nov. 16 already made public, charged that the Federal Government had "bungled" the rental controls; had ignored the rights of the provinces, and that "much harm" had been done.

As to the new rental ceiling boosts to come into effect next Dec. 15, it seemed to him that the time was "ill chosen to impose additional charges and obligations on the people."

Prices Tend Lower In Dullest Trading

TORONTO, Nov. 25—(CP)—Prices tended lower in the dullest forenoon trading in some time on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Papers led a handful of industrial issues fractionally lower and base metals were in an almost completely one-way downward movement. Golds held steady at Thursday's declines.

In industrials, Consolidated Paper dipped sharply at the opening but recovered most of the loss. Massey-Harris dipped ⅜ at 15⅝. Montreal Locomotive continued a steady gainer, rising ¼ at 21½.

Labrador slipped from two days of advance in Base Metals, down 10 cents at $3.85. Golden Manitou went against the decline for an 11-cent gain at $2.01.

The gold board was practically at a standstill. A few junior producers recovered part of recent declines. Okalta dipped six cents at $1.86 in a very quiet western oil list.

Promise Reports On Combines Out In 15 Days

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—The combines storm broke over the Commons again today and the Cabinet sent counter-charges flaring back at an opposition which continued its running battle over the controversial report on the flour-milling industry.

Works Minister Fournier, skipper of the Liberal House forces, accused the CCF of seeking to prolong "a political game." Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) accused Trade Minister of "holding a gun" to the head of Justice Minister Garson over publication of the flour report.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) flung at Mr. Howe the charge that he has "an egocentric contempt for parliament."

The House, sitting in committee of the whole, was considering amendments to strengthen the combines law but the opposition kept bringing its discussion around to the report of resigning Combines Commissioner F. A. McGregor on the flour industry.

Mr. Fournier was up repeatedly insisting that the discussion be limited to the bill and the committee chairman repeatedly ordered that limitation.

Too Indulgent

At one point Mr. Howe arose to suggest to Mr. Garson that he was being "too indulgent" in answering Mr. Diefenbaker's questions about whether Mr. Howe had ever been present when the flour report was discussed between Mr. McGregor and other officials.

Mr. Garson said it was better to be indulgent under the circumstances. He said Mr. Howe was present at one meeting.

Mr. Garson, answering a series of questions by Mr. Diefenbaker, said any reports on price-fixing combines in Canada now in process of preparation by Mr. McGregor will be published within 15 days after they are received.

He gave that undertaking to John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) when members resumed debate on a bill aimed at plugging loopholes in Canada's anticombines legislation.

Mr. Garson declined to give the names of companies on which reports now are being prepared. He had been told by F. A. McGregor, chief combines investigator, that it was not the practice to give out information on investigations in progress or on reports in preparation.

Mr. Diefenbaker read a report from the Financial Post, Toronto weekly, which ed that reports on alleged combines in the rubber and flat glass industries are being prepared and will be submitted to the minister by the end of this year.

Biologist Says Trout Taking Terrible Beating

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25.—(ENS).—Two instructive addresses emphasizing the work of the fish hatcheries of Ontario, were heard by Campbellford and District Fish and Game Association at the annual meeting Thursday. Dr. W. J. K. Harkness, chief of the Division of Fish and Wild Life, and Charles Weir, Lindsay, biologist for the division, were guest speakers.

Dr. Harkness saaid the 29 Ontario fish hatcheres specialized in restocking the Great Lakes with commercial fish and the inland waters with game fish. He pointed out the importance of the commercial fish to the economic life of Ontario.

"Our speckled trout hatcheries," he said, "are highly developed with a series of ponds, hatching troughs and tanks. The young trout are fed throughout the summer and in the fall are distributed to rearing stations. The following summer, he stated, they are placed in larger rearing ponds and planted in the autumn when the temperature is right. We believe the older trout have a better chance to survive," he added.

"Maskinonge are spring spawners," he said. "They should be as large as possible before being released and the ponds should be fertilized before the fry are put in. If they were unable to secure enough food they would eat one another. When planting maskinonge there should be plenty of food available because food was vitally important to the success of their growth."

Bass Are Different

The hatching treatment of bass was different from other fish. The male and female had to be caught and placed in ponds where nests were made for them. The eggs could not be squeezed out of the female because they were held in sacs. The fry should be released when they were seven or eight inches long, he said.

Mr. Weir thought the pickerel season should open the same day. He said trout were taking a terrible beating and it was almost impossible to catch pickerel under present regulations. Some anglers were in favor of cutting off all fishing on the first day of October, while others advocated no fishing until July 1.

H. J. Taylor, treasurer, presented the following financial report for 1949: Cash at the beginning of the year, $826.17; receipts, $1,736.72; expenses, $1,526.74; cash on hand $1,036.15.

Scott, of Campbellford, received a fishing rod for catching a seven pound two ounce pike at Bradley Bay; Don Bennett, of Campbellford, a reel for landing a 29 pound muskie at Crowe Bay; Gordon Seymour, of Campbellford, a rod for hooking a three pound two ounce small mouth bass at Ranney Falls; William Hollings of Campbellford, a rod for catching a one pound eight ounce speckled trout in West Creek; Ernest Hubble of Cobourg, a rod for catching a three pound thirteen ounce large mouth bass at Allan's Mills; A. R. Wood, of Oshawa, a reel for hooking an eight pound three ounce pickerel at Bailey's resort, Percy Boom.

Harry Fisher To Contest Mayoralty Seat

COBOURG, Nov. 25 (ENS)—Cobourg electors will nominate their candidates today for the municipal elections and indications are that there will be considerable interest in the election slated for Dec. 12.

Harry Fisher, Cobourg businessman, is opposing Mayor Joe Smith. Reeve Roy Dodge seeks re-election and he may be opposed by William Cooper, councillor in the 1949 council. George Galbraith is going to run for re-election as deputy-reeve. Harvey Brent and Vic Climo, 1949 councillors are not running for next year's council but Charlie Johnstone and Jack Erskine, are in the field again.

Owing to ill health, Councillor Frank Lapp may not be a candidate but it is expected some veteran councilors may enter the election fray. Assessments and the cost of the sewage disposal plant are likely to be main election issues.

Mrs. C. Dodd invited the members to her home for the Christmas meeting. The hostess served refreshments.

KINGSTON, Nov. 25—(CP)—Premier Frost officially opened the four-storey extension to Gordon Hall chemistry building, Queen's University, Thursday. TAX COLLECTOR — Dr. James J. McCann, a Renfrew, Ont., physician, has the most unpopular job in Canada—collecting the nation's taxes. Minister of National Revenue since 1945, Dr. McCann's work entails the collection of income, corporation and inheritance taxes. In addition, he is the minister through which the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation reports to Parliament. Dr. McCann was first elected to the Commons in 1935 as member for Renfrew South and was Minister of National War Services for four months before taking over the revenue portfolio. He was born March 29, 1887, at Perth.

New Building Weathertight Before Snowfall

COBOURG, Nov. 25 (ENS)—Six inches of snow blanketed Cobourg and surrounding country Thursday night.

Wind whipped the snow into a small blizzard at times and made visibility very bad on the highways. No roads were blocked but traffic moved very carefully during the night.

Workmen on the roof of the new recreational centre Thursday tacked the last of the roofing shingles on just in time before the snow came. The last of the big ventilator stacks was also put into its place on top of the roof and everything was weather-tight for the opening of the Rotary Trade Fair scheduled for this evening.

As soon as the fair is over on Saturday night, booths will be cleared and the building made ready for the installation of the pipes for artificial ice.

Ballet Group Hit In Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—(CP).—The Canadian premiere of the famous Sadler's Wells Ballet from England was hailed today as confirming the group's reputation as the leading ballet organization in the world. Its leading ballerina, Margot Fonteyn, was described as amply demonstrating her claim to individual supremacy.

The Globe and Mail's theatre critic, Herbert Whittaker, noted today however that perhaps due to the company arriving in the midst of Toronto's first snowstorm of the year the company's performance of "Swan Lake" had a few hitches

The comparatively small stage at the Royal Alexandra stage appeared overcrowded in some parts of the big production, the first full-length ballet ever shown here. "But it was still apparent that here was a well-disciplined group of dancers performing with freedom and the ease of confidence." Whittaker commented.

The Press Awaits A Clarification

In its leading editorial yesterday the Toronto Globe and Mail joins Mr. J. M. Macdonnell in rebuking the press of Canada for its seeming indifference to the Government's action in failing to table the McGregor Report on an alleged combine in the flour-milling industry within the prescribed period of fifteen days. Mr. Macdonnell and the Toronto morning paper feel that the press has been very slack in its duty; every newspaper should have sought to rouse the country to a sense of the enormity of the Government's action. As The Examiner carried an editorial on November 10 in which we said that we thought the Government had taken too much upon itself in setting aside the law in its own favour, we feel that the wrath of Mr. Macdonnell and The Globe is not meant for us. But for our erring brethren of the press we feel that there is some excuse.

• • •

First, the big news was not the Government's high-handed action, but the supposed combine. It became clear at once that this was a matter of the utmost complication, for it began to look as though the combine on prices among the flour-millers had been created to oblige the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and perhaps at its insistence. The newspapers, before rushing into print with opinions and condemnations, decided to wait until more information was available.

• • •

Second, the Government's action, though illegal and high-handed, was illegal and high-handed in a somewhat obscure and technical way. It takes a political genius to make bricks out of such legalistic straw. Mr. King once made a great success by exposing the enormity of a constitutional wrongdoing; Mr. Drew has not, so far, attempted to follow in his footsteps. He may do so, and when he does we shall see whether he can make these dry bones live. But so far the Government's illegal action has little reality for the average Canadian, who makes a distinction between an obvious wrong done to somebody, and the evasion of a rule.

• • •

We do not pretend that the Government has behaved well. It is wrong for a Government to make laws, and then to break them for its own convenience. Our acquaintance with history, however, leads us to believe that the present Government of Canada is not the first government to do so, nor do we believe that it will be the last.

• • •

As for the responsibility of the press, we feel that the press's first responsibility is to record the news. So far there is not much news in the dispute in question, and what there is has been fully reported. It is now up to the Opposition to make any further news; if the Opposition can bring this rather technical dispute to life, we are sure that the newspapers, as well as the ever-vigilant Globe, will do their duty according to their lights. But first of all the main issue must be clarified. The Opposition is concentrating on the side-show.

Two Worthy Christmas Charities

At this time of year we are asked to recommend many charities and funds to the kindness of our readers. We have to refuse many such demands, or our editorial columns would become one long solicitation. However, there are two causes which we wish to draw to your attention at this time, because we think that they are of unusual merit. They are the Sick Children's Hospital, and the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association.

The Sick Children's Hospital is well known. It does an admirable work, and at present it is engaged in putting up a new building. Although it has a considerable sum for this purpose, we in Peterborough know that the building of a hospital is an extremely expensive business, and if the new building is to be suitable for the heavy demands that will be made upon it, public support will be needed. It is to this hospital that we all turn when illness of the most serious kind attacks our children; from it we expect the newest and best techniques of treatment, and the highest technical skill. It is our duty, therefore, to support the hospital generously, and particularly at this time, when the approach of Christmas should renew our tenderness and compassion toward children, ill or well.

The Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association has done fine work during the past year, some of which has been described in this paper. Tuberculosis is one of the great scourges of our time, but within the last fifty years we have learned to control it to a great degree by early diagnosis and early treatment. The disease takes a long time to arrest, and many people who are stricken by it are short of money. The preventive measures which the County Association makes possible are also expensive. Few of us are so poor that we cannot make some contribution to this fine humanitarian work.

Christmas is a feast of giving, marked as such by the gifts of the Magi and of the Shepherds to the infant Jesus. Let none of us fail to make the gifts which are part of our Christmas duty.

Germany Tends To Her Knitting

The conduct of Russia and the U.S.A. during the past three years has been rather like the two biggest boys in the schoolyard jockeying for the reputation of Schoolyard Bully. "I can knock your block off! I can lay you out cold"—thus the dispute on the high military level. "I can stand on one leg longer than you can! Aw, I can put my foot behind my ear!"—thus the argument on the artistic level. "I can spit farther than you can! Yah, I can whistle through my teeth!"—thus the rival claims for scientific supremacy. And so loud are the roars of the contestants that they have persuaded many nations that they must take sides, irrevocably, with one or the other.

Meanwhile Germany continues to recover from the war, which she lost, with remarkable promptitude, considerably aided by the U.S.A. Believing that Germany is the main source of anti-Russian strength in the West, the U.S.A. is giving Germany a comparatively easy time of it, and Germany, tending closely to her knitting, is better off, economically and politically, than she was after the First Great War.

Field Marshal Viscount Wavell said something the other day in Ottawa which we can all ponder upon with benefit. He said: "Of the two peoples, I think the Germans are more of a problem to the world than the Russians". He meant, no doubt, that the Russians have their hands full with the territories and the peoples they already have; Germany, on the contrary, has been convinced for half a century that she has not enough territory or enough influence. He meant, as well, that the Russians have a few hundred thousand extremely intelligent and able people and millions of others who are far below the level of the Western democracies; Germany, on the other hand, has a nation with a very high intellectual standard, which is what counts in modern warfare and statecraft. We would do well to keep an eye on Germany, and make quite sure that she does not, in a quiet way, end as winner of the schoolyard fight for supremacy.

What Should Be Done With Him?

Dale Alfred Childs, who is sixteen years old, has been found guilty of murder by a Napanee jury, and is to hang on February 10. The Toronto Star protests against the sentence, saying flatly "a boy of sixteen should not pay the death penalty".

What, then, is to be done with this boy? We are not pleased by the idea that a boy of sixteen will hang, but we should like to know what the Star proposes should be done with a boy who has committed a murder. Life imprisonment seems to us a very doubtful mercy; a probable 54 years in a penitentiary is a bleak prospect; is death so very much worse? And is there any special reason why Canada should maintain this young man for the whole of his life, if he is thought to be unfit to mix with other people on ordinary terms?

We presume that the Star thinks that Canada should not have the blood of a boy of sixteen on its collective conscience. Whenever a boy or a woman commits a murder a few newspapers carry on as if there were something unthinkable about hanging them; we do not share this sentimental objection to hanging murderers who do not happen to be adult males. If they are capable of murder, and if their juries see no reason to recommend them for mercy, we feel that they are equally capable of hanging. Furthermore, we think that hanging, though a savage punishment, is suitable for people who have done savage crimes. Certainly keeping a wretched boy in prison for the rest of his life seems a strange show of mercy on the part of his country.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

A TORONTO reader, noticing my question of two weeks ago about Adam Scott, first white resident of Peterborough, and Charles Fothergill, first industrialist and sponsor of Adam Scott's mill, has called attention to some articles written by E. S. Clarry in The Examiner of September 1945. Mr. Clarry has dug into archives at Ottawa and come up with quite a full account of Charles Fothergill.

Charles Fothergill was an Englishman of some means and initiative who came out to Canada about 1815, and made plans to colonize and develop the Peterborough-Port Hope area. Peterborough's first mill was built by millwright Adam Scott, but it was built because Charles Fothergill commissioned him to build it. It was originally, in a property sense, Fothergill's mill.

After opening up land and sponsoring the settlement of English friends south of Peterborough, Fothergill toured the Otonabee-Rice Lake area as early as 1817, looking for suitable sites to exploit.

In 1818 he petitioned the Lieutenant-Governor for a grant or lease of lots for a mill site and lots for friends who might settle there, along the Otonabee. This would have given him all the land from Park Hill Road to the bend in the river at the extreme south end, until lately known as Crawford's Grove. The land had already been surveyed by the Upper Canadian Government, and set aside as a "Town Plot, Glebe, and the usual appendages of a Town". Chas. Fothergill, Esq., probably knew a good thing when he saw it, but he did not catch the Surveyor-General and Government napping. His application was refused.

He reduced the acreage in a petition of 1819, and in February of that year, his application was approved for "a mill seat and ten acres of land" in lots 13 and 14 of the 13th Concession of Monaghan. This lease was to run for 99 years. This would have given him the most valuable land in what is now Peterborough.

Three months later (April) Fothergill became alarmed at well-founded rumours that his approved lease would not be honoured. He wrote to the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Peregrine Maitland about it, promising that the mill would be speedily erected, if the Government did not change its mind about the lease. (He must have belonged to the wrong political party, or had not then lived in the country long enough to qualify for membership in the Family Compact.)

In his letter of May 7, 1819, he said: "The millwright, with whom I have contracted, accompanies me for the third time to the spot to make his final arrangements on Monday next and everything excepting the report of the surveyor only from the above-mentioned cause will be in readiness for an early completion of the projected work".

The "millwright" was Adam Scott. The "spot" was the Jackson Park creek outlet to Little Lake, plus ten acres around it. This account has become rather long. I find the story interesting, and if my readers do not, I suggest that they should! Charles Fothergill was at this time living at Smith's Creek, now Port Hope.

NO definite date has been established when this Scott-Fothergill saw and grist mill was built and when it first began to operate. I suspect from reading letters in Mr. Clarry's Examiner account that it was in 1817 or 1818, for a letter of May 27th to the Lieutenant-Governor contains this reference: "It is my intention to lay a statement of progress in the mill work before the next meeting of the Land Council". The mill was certainly in operation in 1821, and was the first industrial enterprise in this district.

Although full credit for the mill must not be given Fothergill—for Adam Scott built it, operated it, and helped out financially when Fothergill's resources grew thin—yet Charles Fothergill conceived it, dickered with the Government, and secured the land lease, paying by February, 1823, £1, 12s, 6d for it (if I read the record aright). Yet this founder of Peterborough's first industry, in a city which is now primarily industrial, is not remembered in park, school, or street name—which Mr. E. S. Clarry laments in his article.

Adam Scott and Charles Fothergill had a falling-out in the early '20's. The story is too long and complicated to relate here, and too full of gaps. It seems that the actual title to the land did not come through; in May 1823 Adam Scott petitioned the Lieutenant-Governor and threatened that he would take Fothergill to court, for "damages" of £500. It is likely that Fothergill had what is now called "overextended" his business enterprises. He was probably more of a hatcher of large schemes than a practical businessman.

SIR: Which is the earlier religion, Christianity or Mohammedanism?

ANSWER: Christianity. Dating the two religions from the time of their ascribed founders, Christianity is 602 years older. Jesus, the Jew of Nazareth, was born in the year 4 B.C. and died at the age of 34, after a judicial trial sentencing him to death as a criminal, in 30 A.D. Muhammad, Mahomet, or whatever way you wish to spell the word, "the Prophet of God", was born in Mecca A.D. 570, and died in the year 632. Buddah (Siddhattha Gautama) was born between 600 and 500 B.C. and died some years later, it is supposed in the same century. Therefore Buddhism is older than either Christianity or Mohammedanism.

DEAR ALPHA: In what book of the Bible is the scripture which is always read on November 11th; the one beginning "Let us now praise famous men"?

ANSWER: It is not in the Bible. It comes from Ecclesiasticus, not Ecclesiastes, and is in the Aprocrapha. It is one of the sacred writings included in the Septuagint and Vulgate versions of the Old Testament but excluded from the sacred canon by the Protestant party at the time of the Reformation. It is therefore not in the King James (1611) translation of the Bible.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: Last Saturday the Examiner carried a picture of Murray Street Baptist Church. Is that the original church. Is it the oldest?

ANSWER: The first Baptist church in Peterborough was built on Aylmer Street in 1854, at a cost of $1,400. A schism in the early congregation led to the formation of another one, but unity was restored after a while, and all the congregation came back to the Aylmer Street building. This is now the Gillespie Garage on Aylmer Street, between Simcoe and Hunter, though of course a new brick front has been put on. The second building is now, with alterations, the Legion Hall. It was put up in 1884.

The present edifice was erected in 1911-12 at a cost of $61,000. It would probably take some $300,000 to build it today. One reason for the relatively low original cost was that some of the work was done by church people.

FOR THE RECORD: First appearance of wintry weather, slippery streets and counteracting sanders in mid-week. Christmas is exactly one month away. There is hope that the Hydro will ease its lighting restrictions so that we may have bright streets and outdoor tree-lighting for the season.

HO! FOR THE OPEN ROAD

Letter To The Editor

INTERNATIONAL CRISIS IN LABOUR

Sir: I am employed in the C.G.E. in the Induction Motor Winding. For a long time now we have been in a state of confusion as to where we are going in our Union. We receive leaflets at the plant gate every day. This only adds to our confusion. We also receive the UE News. Is this paper for the good of the union as a whole or is it the instrument which is being used to confuse our membership further?

The only way that I can see for us to find out the facts is to read our newspapers and magazines and listen to our radio, not only to our local news, but to news of the world situation regarding labour organizations.

This fight, as I see it, is not a feud between two men, but an international crisis in the over-all labour situation.

In the issue of Life Magazine last week Nov. 14, 1949, on page 39, I found a picture of James B. Carey, holding in his hand a certificate of affiliation of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers to the C.I.O. This union is duly chartered and has a constitution. Why does C. S. Jackson repeatedly deny this?

On page 38 of this same magazine, you will also find pictures of both left and right-wing sides of the argument.

Phil. Murray, president of the C.I.O., says that the left-wingers are chattels of Sovietism, they are agents of Moscow.

Joe Curran speaks about their filthy slandering policies. Of this they are masters.

Ben Gold, president of Fur and Leather Workers Union, a faithful follower of the left-wing policies, says, quote, I was not hiding that I was a member of the Communist party, when I came into the union.

You will say, but these men are in the United States. However, George Harris, secretary-treasurer of the UE in Canada, is another follower of the party. C. S. Jackson may have denied that he is a Communist. He may have taken an oath to that effect. The Communist party policy is that the end justifies the means, so an oath would not mean much in this particular case.

At the Canadian Congress of Labour convention this year, one of the charges that were made against Jackson and his associates, was that they were guilty of wilful and calculated slander against the Ontario Federation of Labour. This is what they did in the C.C.L., and it is what they are trying to do in Local 524. Mr. Jackson's boast at the convention, of having perjured himself every time he tendered an apology for previous offences, must surely show you that he would not hesitate to perjure himself to keep control of this local.

In July the executive council of the C.C.L. announced the suspension of five officers of UE. They were not expelled without a trial. They had their chance to speak for themselves before they were expelled. In the case of Local 524 officers, Jackson expelled them without even a chance to speak. He prevented them from speaking at the meeting, and when they were to go on the radio, he stopped them. Could it be that he was afraid to have the membership hear the other side of the story at that time or did he want to get his Communist propaganda working first.

This is about the only local in the UE that has money in the treasury at the present time, yet he had the nerve to put out a leaflet insinuating that our money had been misused. He broadcast the amount of money spent by four of the officers, but he did not mention certain other officers who happen to be on his side of the fence at the present time. This is just another instance of Communist party policies.

The fact is this, that the District officers of the old UE are either Communist party members or followers of the Communist party policies and we want no part of them.

It is particularly important for this purpose of winning over the majority of the working people, to capture the trade unions which are genuine mass-working-class organizations, closely bound up with the everyday struggles of the working class. To work in trade unions and skilfully to capture them, to win the confidence of the broad masses of the industrially organized workers and to remove from their posts and replace the reformist leaders, are important tasks in the preparatory period... It is necessary to agree to any and every sacrifice, and even—if need be to resort to all sorts of illegal methods, to evasion and subterfuge, in order to penetrate into trade unions, to remain in them and to carry on Communist work in them at all costs.

All you need to do, is go through a handbook of Marxist tactics and compare them with the tactics which have been used by the District officers and their followers and you have your answer as to whether they are Communist party followers or not.

When you have done this you will see that the only course open to members of Local 524 is to join with International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO.

LOIS HART,
Induction Motors Winding.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death....

For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit....

But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his....

Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. (Rom. 8: 1, 2, 5, 9, 12-14.)

Traffic Halted After Accident In Snow Storm

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25. — (ENS).—Icy streets were the cause of four automobile accidents on Thursday.

Traffic was brought to a halt on the bridge for almost an hour when Charles Palliser swerved into the front end of a car operated by James MacGill, Foxborough. Both cars were badly damaged.

MacGill's vehicle had the left front fender, bumper, grill and radiator smashed. The frame was also bent and a cash register in the car damaged. Considerable damage was done to the headlights, bumper and radiator of Palliser's car.

MacGill was treated by Dr. W. W. Baker for head and leg bruises and cracked ribs. Two stitches were put in his left knee and he suffered from shock. Palliser escaped uninjured.

A car driven by Percy Rodgers, Warkworth, was slightly damaged when it left the highway at the corner of Pellissier and Sebastapol Sts.

Kenneth Cairns and Ralph Peever, Seymour, collided at the intersection of Front and Mill Sts., causing very little damage.

Chief Constable George H. Hardy investigated.

A thin layer of ice on the highway caused a minor accident on Thursday afternoon when a car driven by Bill McKelvie, Seymour West, and one operated by Edwin Mosthaf, Campbellford, bumped together on the Old Havelock Road, two miles north of here. Very little damage was done.

Provincial Constable Arthur Kellogg of Hastings investigated.

Ordered Pay $48 For Assaulting Mrs. Ethel White

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov 25. — (ENS).—Pleading guilty to a charge of assaulting Mrs. Ethel White, River Road, Sept. 10, Fred McArthur was fined $25, with $23 costs in police court Thursday by Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

Mrs. White testified she and her husband were returning home in their car from visiting friends on River Road, when they came upon the scene of an accident, in which a truck belonging to the accused had been involved.

She said they were stopped by a man, whom she identified later as Fred McArthur. He opened the right car door and used abusive language. He threatened to beat up her husband and kept twisting her arm when she was trying to close the door. Her husband, Ralph White, corroborated her statement.

McArthur denied that he had opened the door and twisted her arm. He said that he was "perfectly sober."

Blond Defeated By the Goon In Odd Fall of Main Tussle

Jim (Goon) Henry gained a decidedly unpopular deciding fall over Steve Stanlee in the main mat bout at the Brock Arena last night. Blond Steve, replacing Seelie Samara (who missed connections out of Buffalo) was outroughing the rough Goon in the third round and having all the better of it when he crowded Henry into a corner. He yanked him out and down with a reverse full nelson, both their shoulders hitting the mat. But Referee Bunny Dunlop saw only Steve's shoulders down and gave him a quick one-two-three count. The crowd was plenty peeved and Dunlop needed a police escort out, many fans hanging around minutes later and yelling for a return scrap.

Golden-haired Steve won the second round, too, with an airplane spin and slam, crossing Henry up by the ropes with an elbow smash to start his downfall. The colorful and well-built newcomer here—weighing 230 to the Goon's 270—waved happily to the cheering crowd after a tough session. Henry was stronger and rougher, but Steve had speed and could rough it when necessary, as well as flashing some fast holds. They used fists, as well, in a lively tussle and Steve showed conditioning by taking plenty without a grimace or action so common in the mat game. The chunky baby-face knew his onions in a ring. It went 12 minutes.

Henry Got It

Henry won the opening fall in 14 minutes when he threw Stanlee twice into the ropes and caught him illegally each time with his knee on the rebound to flatten the popular blond. The crowd was peeved at Goon and the referee, going all out for the "golden boy". The latter made it a good show throughout against his big and tough opponent. He surprised the fans when he appeared at the start—a fair-haired boy instead of black Seelie—and he nearly did a strip-tease at the beginning, getting down to his white shorts.

Pat Flanagan and Bill Stack went to a draw in 21 minutes of the semi-finals — these prelim grapplers taking the semi-final spot, on account of their late arrival, due to rough weather. Pat and Bill knocked each other out when their heads banged on a flying tackle by Pat, and both were counted out. They dished up a dandy clean duel, showing plenty of speedy mat work and both having a good-sized following in a crowd smaller than usual, because of the weather. They were in and out of holds and twice Referee Bun Dunlop, like the innocent bystander, was banged up before the well-matched pair of smoothies took the count together. The fans like the action.

A Good Bout

Wladek Kowalski took the first bout over Joe Christie in 24 minutes with a series of crotch holds and slams after some hard going. They opened fast and Christie soon began illegal stuff with tape on his wrist to rasp his opponent's eyes. Dunlop looked the tape over several times but did nothing. Kowalski, big, handsome and popular, displayed some smart gymnastics breaking grips and later used a back-breaker to good effect. Christie kept getting away with the tape business and Kowalski and Dunlop got tangled up, with Christie jumping in to paste Wladek. The latter then turned it on with knees, elbows and fists as the crowd roared, and Kowalski finally untaped Joe and pinned him to get a big hand.

Officials OF PMLA Hold Get-Together

A highly-successful season for the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association was concluded last evening at a dinner at Bill's Place for officers, coaches and managers, with a few guests. President Ken Kingston was in the chair, and he pointed out that more than 400 boys had played, that two teams reached Ontario semi-finals and another was in the finals, and that the association did not finish up in the red financially. He said a re-organization meeting will be held in January, and it was hoped that another full-time PMLA coach wiuld be here next summer.

Bob Peirson, immediate past president of the Senior A club, and Ald. Doug Miller—manager of the Petes— were among the speakers praising the work of the minor association. It was felt that the PMLO was doing a big job for the sport and for youth, and indications were that the senior club would lend it some financial assistance again next year. Two dozen attended the enjoyable gathering.

PCVS Lasses Win

NORWOOD, Nov. 25 (ENS)—On Wednesday afternoon, PCVS girls' basketball team defeated the local High School team in the Armouries by a score of 32-15. The Peterborough squad was a combination of the junior and senior COSSA teams of last year. Outstanding players were Mary Craw and Mary Braund for the visitors.

Lineups:

Peterborough—Betty Jaquith; Mary Craw, Lois Hutchinson; Carol Raper; Jane Tivy; Catherine Graham; Nancy Mason; Lois Paddock, Peggy Esilick; Mary Braund; Donna Howson.

Norwood—Madge Jones, Audrey O'Shea; Elsie Clements; Marilyn Radcliffe; Lois Stackhouse; Mary Lynch; Nola Nelson; Joan Walsh, Laura Horne; Elsie Brown; Luella Lee; Frances Hogg.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

The Petes-Legion senior "B" puck exhibition in the arena this eve at 8.30 ought to be a keen scrap. No love lost between the local squads and they'll both be battling hard for a win. Some of the Legions are former Petes, and a number of the Petes swapped Legion sweaters for the other livery—and these guys dearly love to beat their former buddies. Just to show 'em what a mistake they made in letting said puckists transfer. You might say there isn't much at stake in this tussle, but you'd be quite wrong—there's pride, and wasn't that the first sin of man? Yeah, we look for a rousing struggle every time these two Peterborough teams tee off in civil hockey warfare against each other.

* * * * * *

One thing we don't like about the OHA senior "B" schedule for Group 1—including Gananoque, Kingston, Belleville, Petes and Legion—is that too often both our clubs are playing on the same night. One team will be here and the other away, like next Monday when Gananoque plays Legion here as the Petes trek to Belleville. Hence, this scribe can't cover both teams. At least, we haven't found away so far to be in two places (spread apart considerably) at the same time. The local clubs have heavy mileage facing 'em this winter, from Markham on the west to Gananoque on the east. Plus trips to Stouffville, Belleville and Kingston. Only breaks are when the two home clubs tangle here or have the short hike to meet Meteors in Lindsay.

About Those Bruins

Apparently Boston Bruins plan to pull out of St. Kitts as a sponsoring club soon—leaving it to Toronto Leafs—and take over Waterloo through their farm team, Tulsa Oilers. Bruins have advanced money to aid minor hockey in Waterloo and will help the junior "B" team there. As an NHL club can sponsor only two junior "A" teams (and Bruins are interested also in Barrie), the pro clubs are now looking with interest at certain junior "B" setups in centres where there's artificial ice. Like Peterborough, where Dit Clapper, former Bruins' coach, resides. Some help in one form or another might be forthcoming yet for the Oddfellows from the Bruins, who recently took up Red Sullivan, a former IOOF-er.

Will Calgary Stampeders retain the Grey Cup for the west or will Montreal Alouettes bring it back to the east Saturday in the final at Toronto Varsity Stadium? If the old crystal ball would come through, a guy could make himself some money. Als are slight favorites in the betting, and we like their chances because of reserve strength. They also have a great field general and passer in Filchock, but the Stamps have one they claim just as good in Keith Spaith. Which should make it a smart game, perhaps shorn of the goats of other such grid classics. With no tickets for the game, we'll join the legion of radio listeners this Saturday aft.

It Comes Up A Blond

A snowstorm does odd things and, last eve at the Brock grapple fans were surprised at how pale black Seelie Samara had become all at once. Slated to appear in the main bout 'gainst Goon Henry, he was snowbound out of Buffalo. And who replaced him but blond Steve Stanlee, a stunningly-built golden boy. And a real scrapper, who would have beaten the huge Goon but for Referee Bunny Dunlop's astigmatism. An unpopular fall and Steve and many fans hung around some time wanting it resumed, but no dice. A fine fray, though, and Stanlee can come back anytime. The Goon? Better he should drop dead. Flanagan and Stack staged swell scrap, too, going to a draw, while Kowalski earned a popular win o'er Joe Christie.

Officers, managers and coaches—with a few guests—to the number of about two dozen sat down at the PMLA dinner at Bill's Place last eve and had an enjoyable get-together. Those hard-working chaps who have made minor lacrosse such an important organization in the city did it up brown. Prexy Ken Kingston did the honors with his right bower, Walt Murphy, helping with the "do" and most of the workers on hand. Among the guests were Ald. Doug Miller and Bob Peirson of the Petes' senior "A" executive. Plans for next year will be drawn up at a January meeting. The bunch last p.m. had a good time, and we'll deal further with it tomorrow.

Weatherman Not Playing Ball With Non-Mudder Stampeders

By JACK SULLIVAN

OAKVILLE Nov. 25, (CP) — The weatherman isn't playing ball with Calgary Stampeders, the hard-fighting Dominion football champions, in their Grey Cup appointment with Montreal Alauettes at Toronto Varsity Stadium Saturday. It looks like slippery going and the Stamps aren't mudders.

A sudden break in the weather from cold and clear—ideal for an aerial offence which is Calgary's specialty—to a heavy snowfall of three to five inches Thursday and early today, put a damper on the Stamps' supporters. The weather forecast is "scattered snowflurries" throughout today and it could possibly black out the much ballyhooed forward passing duel between Montreal's Frankie Filchock and Calgary's Keith Spaith, two imports.

The Calgary fans, looking at Toronto's snow-covered streets, recall the Western Canada Interprovincial Union League game this season when the Stampeders playing in a heavy snowfall, lost their first game in two seasons—a 9-6 setback by Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Other Memories

They also recall that, under similar conditions the season before at Regina, Stamps boomed from a first half 19-6 deficit with the Roughriders to a 22-19 triumph. They are hoping the third time, if snowy conditions prevail tomorrow afternoon, the foothills city club will come up with their second straight Grey Cup victory.

Until today, the 20,000-odd fans lucky enough to snare tickets for the Canadian sports spectacle of the year held high hopes they would witness a wide open aerial game between Filchock and Spaith. This was the game, football experts figured, that would

3,000 Rabid Fans From Montreal Set For Big Day

MONTREAL, Nov. 25—(CP)—A delegation of 3,000 rabid football fans prepared to evacuate this city today and head for Toronto to watch their Alouettes tackle Calgary Stampeders for the Grey Cup football championship.

When Montrealers awakened this morning a white blanket of two inches of fresh snow covered the ground and many, who had planned to travel by car, rushed off to add more confusion to the crowded railroad stations.

But nothing appeared to dampen the fervour of these Montreal fans. Some claimed they would hitch-hike despite the unfavorable weather.

One thing is sure and that is that every last one of the 3,000 seats alotted to the Montrealers will be occupied.

On the gridiron, Lew Hayman put his squad through their last drill before tomorrow's big game. There was no heavy work. The team dressed in light attire and sported brand new red toques."

"We'll wear 'em when we get to Toronto," said captain Frankie Filchock. "And we'll wear 'em to keep warm."

Fans Back 'Em Up

The team will not be alone in wearing the toques, hundreds of Montreal fans have purchased the bright tasselled woollen headgear and will match them against the best the west has to offer in a challenge against the cold—something to consider when you're watching a football game in November.

Alouettes also have four volunteer cheer leaders who will parade up and down the sidelines with their bleu-blanc-rouge toques.

The cheer leaders talked their way into the job. All students at Sir George Williams College they had their train fare and necessary expenses for the trip but no tickets for the game.

They marched boldly into the Alouette office and announced their readiness to supply their own special uniforms. The plan worked.

They'll be on the job, with assurance they will get into the game if the Alouette executive has to throw them bodily over the wall of Varsity Stadium.

If Cup Game Tied Will Play Overtime

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP)—In event of a tie in points after the regulation 60-minute Calgary-Montreal Grey Cup game here on Saturday, the teams will play two 10 minute overtime periods, Dr. W. A. Campbell, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, said Thursday.

In a telephone interview from his home at Kingston, Dr. Campbell said that in event of a tie after the two 10-minute periods, the clubs will continue "until darkness intervenes."

And if it is still tied? "I suppose the game will be replayed." he said.

THEY'RE NOT FOR SALE!—Who says tickets for the Grey Cup game between Calgary and Montreal are hard to get? Just cast your eyes on these 26 ducats held by attractive Mrs. Elsie Evans of Calgary. They are part of the western allotment brought east with them.

Williams Most Valuable Player

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox may have failed to win the American League pennant but they possess the circuit's most valuable player in Ted Williams.

The brilliant batting star, whose team lost the flag to New York Yankees on the final day of the season, gained some measure of revenue when he defeated the world champions' Phil Rizzuto and Joe Page for the coveted prize.

Williams' selection by a committee of 24 members of the Baseball Writers' Association, three from each city, was doubly significant since it marked the first time in six years that such an honor was bestowed upon a member of of a non-pennant winning club.

Detroit's Hal Newhouser, back in 1944, was the last player to accomplish it. Only two others, Charley Gehringer and Jimmy Foxx, achieved that feat since the Writers' took over the voting in 1931.

It was the second time that Williams has won. The tall, slender flychaser also won in 1946 and finished second in '42 and '47, losing by one vote to JoeDiMaggio in the latter year. Lou Boudreau, Cleveland's playing manager, won last year.

Williams, the 31-year-old native of San Diego, paced the league in home runs, runs batted in, runs scored, doubles and total bases but lost the unofficial batting title to Detroit's George Kell on the final day.

He received 272 points, 98 more than Rizzuto. The peerless relief pitcher got 164 points.

Canadiens Dump Leafs 5-3 As Hawks Tie Red Wings

By JIM BASTABLE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Detroit Red Wings were held to a 3-3 tie by Chicago Thursday night, but they're still sailing along far in front of the National Hockey League race.

The Red Wings maintained a nine-point margin although Montreal Canadiens skipped into second place with a 5-3 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. That victory by Canadiens spelled the fourth straight setback for the Leafs defending Stanley Cup champions.

Those powerful wings were well on their way to a ninth victory in 10 starts when the roof fell in on goaltender Harry Lumley. With less than three minutes left in the game, the Hawks blasted in three goals within three mnutes to gain the split decision.

The tie gave the Black Hawks sole possession of fourth place—three points behind the third place Leafs.

Fiery Ted Lindsay, the League's leading scorer, added two goals to his total Thursday night. They gave him a season's record of 11 plus 14 assists for 25 points. George Gee got the other Detroit goal. Gaye Stewart tallied for the Hawks. Metro Prystai got the other.

Come From Behind

In Montreal a record Forum crowd of 13,805 saw the Canadiens battle from behind a 3-1 count in the second period and then polish off the Leafs with two goals in the last session.

After their two goal splurge in the second period, the Leafs, just in from a long train ride from Boston and still smarting from a 3-1 defeat by the Bruins, faded badly.

Maurice Richard scored one goal and got two assists. Glen Harmon, the first defenceman to score for the Habitants this season, tallied one, as did Leo Gravelle, Billy Reay and Norm Dussault.

Howie Meeker, Sid Smith and Bill Juzda were the marksmen for the Leafs.

The record crowd outstripped a mark that stood for 19 years. That was in 1930 when 13,059 crammed into the Forum to see the Bruins tangle with the Canadiens.

Ramblers Edge Providence 5-2

By The Canadian Press.

It's still a four team race for top honors in the eastern division of the American Hockey League as only four points separate the clubs.

New Haven Ramblers snapped a second place deadlock with Buffalo Bisons and pulled to within a sngle point of the leading Providence Reds Thursday night when they defeated the Reds 5-2.

A 6-4 victory by Springfield Indians over Cincinnati Mohawks moved the tribe to within a point of the idle third place Bisons.

Hershey Bears appear to be out of the running momentarily as they trail Springfield by seven points. The Bears and Pittsburgh Hornets battled to a 2-2 draw in the only other league contest on Thursday night.

At New Haven, the Ramblers scored two first period goals and were never headed after that. Bill McDonagh and Fern Perreault were the marksmen.

Nick Mickoski scored another Rambler goal in the middle period while Chick Webster and Steve Hyrmnak tallied in the third frame. Providence goals were by Harvey Fraser and Eddie Kullman.

Wide-Open Split Develops On Commission

TORONTO, Nov. 25—(CP) — A wide-open split between the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the government-sponsored Ontario Athletic Commission was almost a certainty Thursday night. The rift, brought up at opening of the three-day AAU annual meeting, featured an otherwise tame session.

"There seems to be no desire on the part of the Ontario Athletic Commission to co-operate with the AAU of C in the interests of amateur sport" and "it would appear that this union must eventually refuse Ontario boxers admission to national championships," Prof. Nelson Hart, of London, Ont., said in his presidential address.

Prof. Hart said the OAC has taken a position in reference to boxing which cannot be accepted "by this union or approved by the International Boxing Federation." He added the definition of an amateur approved by the AAU of C in 1939 "still stands but is not being enforced by the Commission."

Accept No Pay

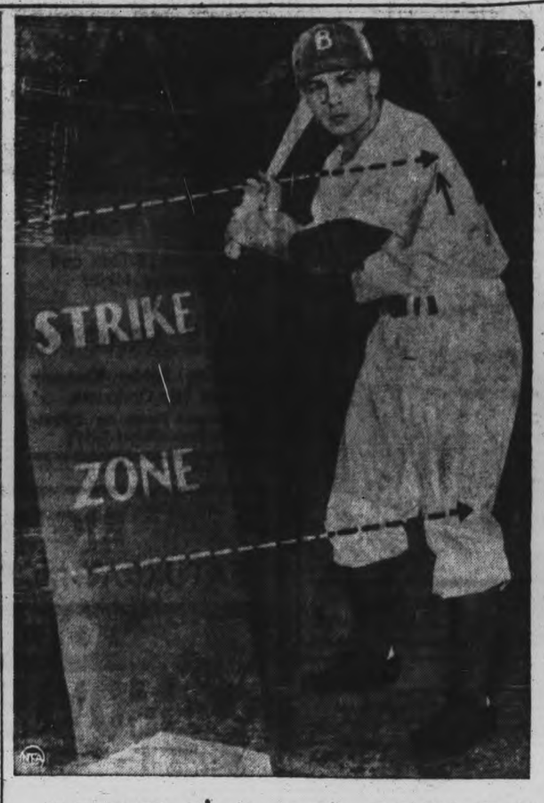
The AAU definition stipulates that amateurs must not accept financial remuneration for their athletic ability.

Prof. Hart outlined details of correspondence between the OAC and the AAU relating directly to the "control of, and regulations governing amateur boxing which have never been settled or even seriously considered in the interests of amateur sport."

He "reluctantly suggested" to the meeting, attended by representatives from British Columbia, Alberte, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec, that:

"1. The Ontario Atheletic Commission is not prepared to adopt the amateur rules of boxing, approved and supported by the International Boxing Federation and used in the AAU of C.

"2. The Ontario Athletic Commission apparently wishes to control and legislate for amateur athletics in Ontario without regard to any other province or country, and with no intention of reasonable co-operation with the AAU of C."



NEW PITCH—Braves' second baseman Eddie Stanky demonstrates strike zone which has been redefined by the committee studying baseball rules. A strike now is a ball over the plate between the batter's armpits and the top of his knees. It used to be the player's shoulders. The umpire will judge the batter's normal height in case of a crouch.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The picked eastern Canadian soccer team from Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal gave a fine exhibition of clever combination play Thursday at New York to hold a strong American League all-star squad to a 2-2 tie in the annual series of games for the Triner Cup before a crowd of 2,000.

Since the international games started in 1947, Canada has been tied and beaten by Chicago; tied and won from St. Louis; and held even Thursday by the American League, which will play a return game in the Dominion next summer.

The first country to win three games will gain possession of the trophy.

Both teams Thursday set a lightning fast pace as soon as the ball was set in motion, but the Canadians were the most dangerous. The Americans put on strong pressure but were unable to get near the danger zone through the fine play of the Canadian fullbacks.

A rugged band of Dundas, Ont., bombers invade Westmount, Que., Saturday for a crack at the Dominion Intermediate A football title and the town's first gridiron championship in 40 years.

The bombers call it a national intermediate rugby final but actually it's an eastern title. The Canadian Rugby Union does not recognize any national intermediate championship because western teams have never challenged for such a title, Percy Robinson, secretary of the CRU, said.

Garnet Steeves, up from the Hamilton Wildcat Juniors, will pace the Ontario champion bombers when they meet Montreal Donnaco Navy in the sudden death final. The Bombers entrain for the Montreal suburb today along with several supporters and members of Town Council, who helped arrange the playoff.

At Toronto, police Thursday night denied reports that they were investigating circulation of counterfeit tickets for the Grey Cup football final between Montreal Alouettes and Calgary Stampeders Saturday.

It was reported that counterfeit $2 tickets had been sold in a downtown restaurant. All legitimate tickets have long since been taken.

Inspector Albert Lee of the police morality department said "no one has reported anything along that line to us. We have not had counterfeit ticket trouble in previous years and nothing we have heard would indicate any trouble now."

Alex Mason, Canadian amateur middleweight boxing champion and a member of the British Empire games team, announced at Sudbury Thursday night that he will be unable to accompany the team to New Zealand next month.

He said he couldn't get leave of absence from his employers for sufficient time to cover the trip.

Mason won the Canadian middleweight title at Port Arthur last month. He defeated Johnny Ravenda of Montreal in the final.

The official jockey club handicapper at London Thursday picked Nimbus the outstanding three year old of this season's English racing.

Masked Light was named the No. 1 two-year-old in the ratings of the handicapper, Geoffrey Freer.

Nimbus a bay colt by Nearco out of Kong, won the Derby and the 2,000 guineas. He recently was retired to stud.

Masked Light is a chestnut colt by Signal Light out of Mashaq. He is the current winter book favorite for next year's Derby. He is owned by E. A. Brown.

Jack Kramer, pro tennis champion, ran his string to 14 straight victories over Pancho Gonzales, the national amateur king, with straight-set victories of 7-5 and 6-3 at Washington Thursday night.

In the preliminary, two-fisted Pancho Segura from Ecuador won his 16th match of the current series from Frankie Parker in straight sets of 8-6 and 6-4. Parker has won only four matches from the Ecuadorean.

Britain Intends To Challenge For Davis Cup

By MICHAEL O'MARA

WIMBLEDON, Surrey, England, Nov. 25—(CP)—Britain's Lawn Tennis Association has announced: "Great Britain will, as usual, challenge for the Davis Cup and the Wightman Cup next year."

Many a centre court cynic might ask "Why?"

This year's record would bear out the cynic. In the Wightman Cup, United States women were unbeaten at Forest Hills, N.Y., for their 13th consecutive victory. Britain was eliminated from the second round of the Davis Cup by Czechoslovakia.

Nevertheless, Britain, mediocre but not disheartened, continues to build for the future. In 1949, 1,163 pupils attended courses under the training of school coaches and youth leaders.

Immediate international prospects remain bleak. A. J. Mottram, the only Englishman with any pretensions to court class since the war, has been the mainstay of a shaky Davis Cup team for three years; but, at 30, his game is past its peak.

Not a World Beater

Geoff Paish, two years younger, had a good season in 1949 but never seems likely to be a world-beater.

Three promising youngsters are on the way up—John Horn, W. D. Rowe and W. T. Hough. All appear at least a couple of years away from the big time.

A similar gap appears in British women's tennis between the best international-class players and the better juniors. Maybe it's unchivalrous, but it's also true, that most of the top-notchers aren't as young as they'd like to be.

Mrs. Betty Hilton, now nearing the end of her career, had a grand 1949 campaign, reaching the semi-final of United States national championships and the final of the Pan-American tournament at Mexico City.

Norwood Entering Trent Puck Loop

NORWOOD, Nov. 25 (ENS) — There were 18 in attendance at the hockey meeting held in Lochhead's barber shop here. The executive for 1949-1950 will be:

President, Archie Aldred; manager, R. D. Fuller; playing coach Bud Webb; secretary, Bert Lochhead.

It was decided to enter a team in the TVL It was also decided to hold a meeting with Warsaw to see what arrangements could be made about a combined team of the two villages.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Detroit's sharp-shooting threesome—Ted Lindsay, Sid Abel and Gordie Howe—continue to lead the individual scoring field of the National Hockey League, but Lindsay is gradually pulling further away from his teammates. He scored twice Thursday night to boost his point total to 25 for 11 goals and 14 assists. Five points behind is Abel who remains one up on Howe. Doug Bentley of Chicago holds down the fourth scoring spot with five goals and 12 assists for 17 points. Deadlocked in fifth position—each with 16 points—are Roy Conacher, Chicago, John Peirson, Boston, and Maurice Richard, Montreal.

Ottawa Rough Riders Capture Most Places On All-Star Team

By JACK MITCHELL.

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP) — In case anyone remains unconvinced, the International Union's role as top football league in the east was reaffirmed today when announcement of the 1949 all-eastern team showed it a virtual carbon copy of the Big Four all-stars.

Football writers and coaches in eight cities, who selected the team and a second string lineup for The Canadian Press, decided the Intercollegiate and Ontario Unions weren't in the same league. They re-elected the Big Four all-stars to the 12 starting berths.

Their only chance was to drop Ottawa's Andy Gordon from his tie with Frank Filchock of Montreal Alouettes for the quarterback position.

That means Ottawa Rough Riders still won the most places with five players named. Alouettes caught four places, Hamilton Wildcats two. Again Royal Copeland, at 23 still to reach his prime in a great football career, was the only Argonaut selected.

All-Star Teams

The voting was weighted to give equal voting strength to each of the eight cities.

Here are the two mythical teams:

First team:

Bob Paffrath, Riders, flying wing; Royal Copeland, Argos, half; Howie Turner, Riders, half; Virgil Wagner, Alouettes, half, (Sec.); Frank Filchock, Alouettes quarter; Don Loney Riders, snap; Eddie Michaels, Riders, inside; Vince Scott, Wildcats, inside; Herb. Trawick, Alouettes, middle; John Wagoner, Riders, middle; Ralph Toohy Alouettes, outside; Bob Hood, Wildcats, outside.

Second team:

Tom Casey, Wildcats, flying wing; Jack Parry, Western, half; Bob Cunningham, Alouettes, half; Bob McFarlane, Western, half (Sec.); Andy Gordon, Riders, quarter; Jake Gaudaur, Tigers, snap; Don McKenzie, Beaches, inside; Jack Morneau, Windsor, inside; Fraser Mustard, Varsity, middle; Joe Kirkland, Argos, middle; Tip Logan, Queen's outside; Chuck Anderson, Alouettes, outside.

Second-String Places

With the first and second team choices counted on a 3-1 basis, the Big Four also took five of the second-string places. Of the other seven, intercollegiate stars won four and O.R.F.U. three.

As on the Big Four All-Stars, the only three Canadians to win first-team place were Copeland, scrappy outside Ralph Toohy of Alouettes and Don Loney, the powerful Ottawa snap. Besides their nine starting positions, United States imports gained four second-team places.

The starting backfield gives Filchock a halfline that lacks nothing. All four are great all-around performers but each also has his specialty. The Riders' Bob Paffrath from Redwood Falls, Min., is the blocker. Howie Turner, his team-mate from Rocky Mount, N.C., is the punter. Virgil Wagner, Alouettes great star from Belleville, Ill., is the plunger; Copeland is the dazzling broken-field runner.

The two Wildcats are the only newcomers to all-eastern honors. Vince Scott, a 24-year-old inside from Leroy, N.Y., played with Notre Dame and Buffalo Bills. Pass-catching end Bob (Robin) Hood from Glasden, Ala., performed in both the Rose and Sugar Bowls for University of Alabama.

In side Eddie Michaels and middle John Wagoner both made the first team for the second time in a row since coming to Ottawa last year. Eddie from Wilmington, Del., and John from Gibsonville, N.C., Herb Trawick, the big Pittsburgh negro, has been selected ever since coming to Alouettes four years ago, as has Wagner.

Most Popular Choices

Wagner and Trawick were the most popular choices. Wagner the east's top scorer for four seasons, gained 137 of the 144 possible points. Trawick had only one less.

An oddity was the selection of Chuck Anderson to a second-team end position. The husky negro, who made the Western All-Stars last season at centre for Calgary won't be playing against the Stampeders in the Dominion finals tomorrow because he was a surplus Alouette import under Canadian Rugby Union rules allowing five.

Other Americans chosen to the second squad were Tom Casey, the Wildcats flashy negro triple-threat; Joe Kirkland, the 250-pound Argo middle, and Gordon, the Rider's passer from Villanova University who barely got the call over George Arnott of Western.

Even though the college league isn't tested in Grey Cup play, the selectors chose Jack Parry, Western's triple-threat half; Bob McFarlane, the Mustangs two-way star backfielders; and Tip Logan from Queen's, and middle Ken Mustard from Varsity.

ANCIENT CANNON

The name for howitzer, a gun in general use since the 16th century, is derived from a Bohemian word meaning a catapult.

Teaches At Harvard

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP)—The University of Toronto Thursday announced that John Kenneth Galbraith, native of Iona, Ont., and graduate of the U. of T., has been appointed professor of economics at Harvard University. Prof. Galbraith, 41, has specialized in agricultural economics and finance and is author of six books on economic subjects.

Annual Banquet For Girls Attended By 80

Eighty birls attended the enjoyable annual Girls' Softball League banquet last evening in the Legion Hall. Mayor Max Swanston extended congratulations to the players on the success they were making of the league, carrying on sports for girls and supplying good entertainment for spectators. He wished them luck in 1950.

Mrs. Hodson (nee Mary Pegrin) was voted the most valuable player to her team. A number spoke briefly, extending thanks to President Bill Bennett for his handling of the circuit, and for the good financial statement. The winners received congratulations also. About 50 couples stayed for the dance afterward.

In his address, President Bill Bennett spoke on league affairs and on prospects of a senior club from here in PWSU play for next season. He gave each manager a copy of the new constitution, asking them to check it thoroughly and be prepared either to adopt it at the annual meeting or bring in suggested changes at that time. He also strongly urged a big representation at the annual meeting, asking everyone interested to be on hand for the election of officers so that suitable officers might be installed for 1950, and not have a minority put in non-working officers or those who might tear down what has been built before.

Many Newcomers Add To Problems Of Israel State

By JAMES M. LONG

TEL AVIV.—(AP)—In its first year and a half, Israel already has gone half way to its five-year goal of doubling its population.

When the state was proclaimed it had a Jewish population of 750,000. Since then more than 300,000 immigrants have come in. The population has passed the million mark in the fastest growing state on earth.

No letup is in sight. Immigrants arrived at an average rate of 17,000 a month during the past six months.

Tel Aviv, population 200,000 a year and a half ago, is mushrooming with new housing subdivisions and is jammed with 250,000 Jews. Adjoining Jaffa, which a year and a half ago had 70,000 population—60,000 of them Arabs—now houses well over 50,000 Jews, almost all of them new immigrants. There are only 4,000 Arabs left there.

Jewish immigrants have filled the old Arab towns of Lydda, Ramle, Beersheba, and the former Arab parts of New Jerusalem, Haifa, Tiberias and Safad. Nazareth is the only remaining large Arab community not now housing Jewish immigrants—and its normal 8,000 Arab population is swollen to 20,000 to 25,000 with Arab refugees.

The unprecedented rate of immigration has confronted the state with its most serious problems, both social and economic.

So far, despite the difficulties, the government and the bulk of the popluation is holding to the policy of open entry to all Jews.

Tent-Studded Plain

The whole coastal plain is studded with tent and shack camps to provide temporary quarters for the immigrants whose rate of arrival still bar exceeds the speed with which they can be absorbed into the strained national economy.

Prime Minister David Ben Gurion announced in June there were 53,000 immigrants in the camps. By November there were more than 80,000. By mid-winter there may be 100,000—perhaps a third of them under canvas.

Almost the whole 80,000 are unemployed. In addition there are at least 25,000 others who have gone from the camps to more or less regular housing, but who still work less than three days a week.

Many of the camps are little better than the displaced persons camps their occupants knew in Europe. Some are little better than the jammed camps of Arab refugees just outside Israel.

The difference is that the immigrants can expect to be processed out of the camps into more regular communities — many of these still primitive—as quickly as possible. Most immigrants pass through the camps in two to three months, some in less.

The national "austerity" program by which Ben Gurion's government is attempting to meet the economic problem has begun to be felt.

The cost of living index (based on 100 as of 1939) hit a high of 371 last May before the austerity program imposed its standard menus, meatless days and fixed price ranges. Now it has slid down to 329.

Will Stand Trial

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Nov. 25 (CP)—Camille Allaire, 31-year-old farmhand, Thursday was committed to stand trial at the February Assizes for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. William Delbridge, shot at their Poplar Point, Man., farm home Sept. 24. The Delbridges were shot to death in their home after attending a dance in town. Allarie who worked on the Delbridge farm, also attended the dance.

Gunner Claxton Gives Private Slim Photo

OTTAWA, Nov. 25—(CP) — When Field Marshal Sir William Slim visited Ottawa, it was inevitable he and Defence Minister Claxton would be photographed together.

Thursday night, on the eve of the British Army Chief's departure for Kingston, Mr. Claxton presented Field Marshal Slim with one of the pictures — autographed. It read:

"From Gunner Claxton to Private Slim."

Mr. Claxton, a gunner in the first world war, rose to the rank of sergeant-major. The Field Marshal is one of the few who have held his top-notch position after starting as a private—also in the first world war.

Jealous of Rights

CALGARY, Nov. 25 (CP)—The Alberta Social Credit League on Thursday urged the Provincial Government not to relinquish any of its rights under the British America Act to the Federal Government. The recommendation was among a large group of resolutions approved Thursday at the annual convention of the league.

Religious Painting

ROME, Nov. 25(AP)—Surrealist Salvador Dali said Thursday he is turning to religious painting "because it goes deeper than modern art." The 45-year-old dream world painter said he has begun a canvas representing the Immaculate Conception and is planning a second on the "Creation of Earth."

HARRIED GROUP—Three thousand lucky Montreal Alouette football fans are going to see the Grey Cup game at Toronto's Varsity Stadium Saturday on tickets alloted the Montreal club. Vice-president Bill Wray, seated at desk in shirtsleeves, directs a harried staff at the Als' head office as they distribute the 3,000 among the 10,000 who have asked for those elusive pasteboards.

Discusses Atom Work

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—Sir John Cockroft, director of Britain's atomic energy research laboratories at Harwell, left for Washington Thursday following a two-day visit to Ottawa. He will attend atomic energy discussions in the United States capital.

Fire Razes Barn

SIMCOE, Nov. 25 (CP)—Fire Thursday destroyed the large pack barn of R. E. Mann at Woodhouse Gore near here with 42,000 pounds of tobacco, machinery, tools and equipment. Loss was estimated at $30,000. The cause was undetermined.

W. G. Burns Dies

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP)—W. G. Burns, 80, a noted architect who designed the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad station at Pittsburgh and several churches in Ontario, died Wednesday at his home here. He was a native of Toronto.

Attacked By Buck

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. Nov. 25 (CP)—William Semenuk, 25, said Thursday that he was attacked by a wounded deer but managed to kill it. Semenuk said he wounded the buck in two legs and thought he had killed it when it stumbled and fell. ". . . when I went over to slash its throat, the deer rose on its forelegs and threw me with its antlers," he said. "I landed on its back and didn't let go until I finished the job I started."

No Immunity For Tass Man

OTTAWA, Nov. 25—(CP)—The Russian Tass News Agency correspondent in Ottawa is on the staff of the Soviet Embassy but has no diplomatic status and is probably not entitled to diplomatic immunity, the Commons Committee on External Affairs was told Thursday.

A. D. P. Heeney, undersecretary for external affairs reviving a question raised Wednesday by Gordon Graydon (PC, Peel), said the correspondent — Simeon Shcherbatykh—got certain customs privileges on arrival here, is exempt from Canadian income tax and gets certain foreign exchange privileges.

Mr. Heeney said an English court case brought an appeal court ruling that Tass, as an organ of the Russian government, is entitled to "sovereign immunity" in the United Kingdom but the question of the diplomatic immunity of a Tass correspondent was not one of the deciding factors in the judgment.

So far as the External Affairs Department knew Shcherbatykh would not succeed if he sought by law to establish diplomatic immunity in Canada. It would be open to the head of the Soviet Embassy, in any law test, to contend that the situation has changed as it now affects the Tass representative.

Any press attache for a foreign embassy would get the privileges the Russian now gets. But a representative for a foreign newspaper would not.

The cattle run of 7,700 head was 1,500 more than for the same week a year ago. Included in the supply were 900 head from Western Canada. Some 400 cattle were carried over from the previous week. Plain quality killers and cows made a large percentage of the supply. Carry-over of plain cattle for the week was expected to be large.

Find Jerusalem Teeming Again With Life After War

By ERIC GOTTGETREU

JERUSALEM, Nov. 25 (AP)—After years of terror, rebellion and war, the city of peace is teeming with life again.

Although the Arab-Jewish war literally cut it into halves—the modern Jewish section and the smaller Arab-held old city—Jerusalem is flourishing.

The fact that the post-war future of Jerusalem as a whole has not yet been discussed by the United Nations General Assembly has not prevented Jerusalemites from starting to rebuild what has been destroyed.

Dr. Daniel Auster, mayor of the Jewish part of the city, estimates the population of that section at 100,000. He said that a post-siege decrease of 20,000 last year has been made up by returnees (including about 3,000 Israeli government officials and the families) and new immigrants.

There are no exact figures available on the number of civilian inhabitants in the Arab-held old city. Estimates by foreign consuls who are permitted to cross the armistice demarcation lines vary from 20,000 to 40,000.

No International Regime

Nearly all the Jews agree that the Palestine conciliation commission proposal for an international regime in Jerusalem is a still-born child.

Dr. Auster is sure the U.N. will confirm the present de Facto inclusion of the modern part of Jerusalem in the Jewish state. He believes the U.N. will recognize that the P. C. C. proposal "is not only historically unjust and unrealistic, but also unworkable."

Once the "no internationalism" green light is flashed by the U.N., mayor Auster expects the Israeli government will move from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem.

Meanwhile, modern Jewish-held Jerusalem is changing its face in a tempo never witnessed here before.

The rubble left from the heavy bomb, shell and fire destruction in the pre-war and siege disorders is being cleared away. Hundreds of houses have been repaired and a number of new streets laid.

Senate Group Approves Bill No Big Changes

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 — (CP). — The Senate Banking and Commerce Committee Thursday concluded study of a government bill to unify legislation covering the three armed forces. The measure was approved with various amendments but no major changes.

Bulkiest Bill of the session, its 251 sections were passed clause by clause in the committee during prolonged sessions which have lasted nearly three weeks.

It now goes to the Senate for third reading — probably next week—and thence to the Commons. Defence Minister Claxton introduced it in the Senate early this month.

The Bill would, for the first time, bring all statutory legislation respecting the three services into a single Act and would provide a uniform disciplinary code for all of them. Formerly, the RCAF and Canadian Army were covered by United Kingdom statutes and the Navy by the Naval Service Act.

Attacks Action Hamilton Labor Council

HAMILTON, Nov. 25—(CP)—Dispute between the United Electrical Workers Union and the new Union of Electrical Workers being formed by the CIO was debated Thursday night at a meeting of the Hamilton Labor Council. The CIO, at its recent Cleveland convention, expelled the UEW and voted to form the new right-wing union.

Bill Walsh, district representative of the allegedly leftist UEW, attacked action of the Hamilton Labor Council in endorsing the CIO suspension of the union. He said the Labor Council passed the motion while UEW delegates were absent, attending a meeting of their own.

Walsh declared: "Despite the shameless anti-labor, anti-union activities to disrupt our union, the UEW will stand firm to the end. We shalll fight to maintain our union, to remain in the CCL and the Hamilton Labor Council."

Larry Sefton, district representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CCL) said "the action taken by the CIO in expelling the UEW was not taken on any hysterical anti-Red ground. It was taken because of the character assassination of the CIO leaders by the UEW." He said that a parallel situation had developed in Canada, where five top officials of the UEW were suspended by the CCL.

Betrays Pals Perreault Hangs

Donald (The Rat) Perreault, who betrayed his two accomplices in open court nearly a year ago, was hanged at Bordeaux jail early today for his part in the gun-slaying of two Montreal policemen.

He mounted the gallows at 12.30 a.m. EST after receiving holy communion and was pronounced dead 20 minutes later by the jail physician.

Tall and bespectacled, the 28-year-old Perreault turned King's evidence at the murder trials of Noel Cloutier and Douglas Perreault (no relation). They were hanged earlier this year for murdering Constables Nelson Paquin and Paul-Emile Duranleau after a bank hold-up Sept. 23, 1948.

Donald Perreault was sitting in the getaway car when the shooting took place. When he heard the gunfire, he fled. Cloutier was captured shortly after the robbery and the $2,300 was found stuffed in his shirt. Two weeks later, the Perreaults were nabbed in Taber, Alta., where they were caught trying to steal gasoline from a service station.

Donald Perreault lost his last chance for life Thursday when the Federal Justice Department refused to commute the death sentence.

Poultrymen Ask 40c Floor On Eggs, Limited Production

A new contract with Great Britain to buy Canadian eggs will be signed by the Canadian Government, or it is expected the Government will announce a price support program for eggs, C. F. Luckham, chairman of the Canadian Poultry Council and secretary of the Poultry Industry Committee of Ontario, told a group of poultrymen here Thursday night.

He said an investigation failed to find that Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, actually said that the United Kingdom would no longer buy Canadian eggs.

With other member of the Poultry Council, Mr. Luckman presented a brief to the federal government through the Department of Agriculture Wednesday which he thought was well received.

With the support of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Poultry Council was asking a floor price for the producer of 40 cents a dozen for his eggs.

Want Production Held

The price was designed not to stimulate any expansion of the poultry industry, Mr. Luckham said. Unless an outlet developed which was not foreseen, any increase in the number of chicks bought this year for egg producing over last winter would not be in the interests of the industry, he declared.

Mr. Luckman said the brief told the government 40 cents represented 90 per cent of what the Poultry Council has estimated wer the feed costs of production.

Abou 16 men and women interested in the poultry industry from most of its aspects came from out of town places such as Port Hope, Bowmanville, Norwood and Lakefield gathered in the office of provincial represntativ Frank H. Paterson. Before the meeting was finished those in attendance decided to form a branch of the Poultry Indusrty Committee of Ontario and its national parent organization ,the Canadian Poultry Council.

Powdered Egg Pile

Mr. Luckham pointed out that eggs were the least necessary of the United Kingdom's imports from Canada. If a new contract were signed, probably it would be of a smaller quantity at a lower price, Mr. Luckham said.

He declared Canada's egg market was closely tied to the egg market in the United States. Working on a floor price of 35 cents a dozen to the producer for A large in Chicago which made it 50 cents in New York, the support program in the United States had backfired, Mr. Luckham said. He told the meeting the U.S. government had a huge pile of powdered eggs which were selling for about half the cost price.

But the government in Canada was well aware of the importance of the poultry industry in the country's economy and was not going to let it fall to pieces, the poultry council chairman assured his audience.

He said he expected prices next year would be about the same as they had been last year.

In the future, Mr. Luckham said, there was no doubt a greater percentage of production would have to be sold in Canada. For the last 10 years poultry men have been operating in a abnormal market, he pointed out. As well as selling more eggs, poultry men would have to offer chickens for meat the way the consumer wanted them, he declared. The day of the gory-headed, undrawn chicken with dirty feet, was out, he affirmed.

Beach Patrollers Get Sweaters

Eight Peterborough schoolboys have received awards from the Recreation Commission for carrying out their duties as "Beach Patrol" this past summer.

Six of the boys were guests of the Kinsmen Club at the club's regular dinner meeting Thursday night.

Wilfred Langan, a Kinsman, and member of the Recreation Commission, presented the six with red cardigan sweaters complete with crests bearing the inscription "Beach Patrol."

Only eight of 20 boys who started as beach patrollers at Inverlea and Riverside this summer were still qualified at the close of the swimming season. Some dropped out because of the demand on their time and others were unable to meet the progressively rigorous swimming tests.

Those who qualified were Bud Cruikshanks, Park Hill Rd.; Bob Beaubiah, Smith Twp.; Fred Griffen, Water St.; Ron McIlwain, Park Hill Rd.; Ray and Harvey McFadyen, Kingan St.; Stanley Gordon, formerly of Peterborough but now a resident of St. Catharines, and Leo Howran, Lake St.

Stan Gordon and Leo Howran, were unable to be present at the Kinsmen dinner and their sweaters will be sent on to them.

Six From Inverlea

The Kinsmen Club had a particular interest in the eight qualified members of the Beach Patrol because six of the boys were from Inverlea, the park sponsored by that service club.

Bob Beaubiah and Leo Howran were from Riverside.

Duties expected of the boys included assisting the lifeguards and up the beaches, and generally keeping a watch on the younger children to ensure hat they played in safety.

Special Services On 39th Year Of Knox Tower

Corner-stone of the large red-brick church with its massive tower at Rubidge and Wolfe streets was laid 39 years ago. Knox church is holding next Sunday special anniversary services to commemorate this event. The church's foundation dates from earlier years—it began as a mission of St. Paul's church before the turn of the century, and the present Knox Lecture Hall, on the same site, with entrance off Reid Street was built as the church and used until the large edifice was erected.

For the congregation's official 39th anniversary the Rev. John K. Moffatt of Simcoe St. United Church, Oshawa, has been invited as preacher. He will conduct both morning and evening services next Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Moffat is a cousin of Dr. Agnes Moffat of Peterborough.

Knox choir under the direction of W. R. Potter has prepared special music, and wil have the assistance of guest soloists. J. M. Telford will sing at the morning service; in the evening Mrs. F. G. Sherrington of Franklin Centre, Quebec, will be soloist.

As prelude to the anniversary festival, this evening Knox Choir with the assistance of members of the church's dramatic club is presenting a "Variety" entertainment of songs, skits and hits, all worked into a dramatic pattern.

Car, Truck Collide On Lakefield Road

A car driven by Edward J. crone of Toronto received damage estimated at $100 Thursday night when it ran into a truck on Highway 28, a mile north of Peterborough.

Nobody was injured.

George Standing of RR 4, Peterborough, was driving toward Lakefield when he was in collision with the south-bound truck of Crone. His car apparently went out of control, ran into guard rail posts on the east side of the highway and veered across the paved surface into the path of the oncoming truck.

Damage to the truck was assessed at $40.

Provincial Constable D. W. Coffey investigated.

Considerable damage was done to the front of the car. Constable Dennis M. Trayor investigated.

Poland's New Boss Said All Red Not Fooling Former Compatriots

Some 32 years ago a hot-headed high-school student in what was then the Russian Ukraine decided to give up his Polish nationality and family ties and once and forever become a Soviet soldier. Today that same soldier, re-nationalized and as newly-made Pole, is in command of the Polish armed forces, built up under strict Russian control, Stefan Kossak, former major in the Polish Armored Division, writes in The Winnipeg Free Press.

No Real Change

This appointment, publicized by Moscow Radio, does not bring any material change in the set-up of the Communist-sponsored Polish forces. It was no secret that their official commander-in-chief and minister of national defence, Rola Zymirsky, was an obedient tool in the hands of his various assistants and deputies, either well-trusted Communists duly trained in Moscow or simply Soviet Red Army and N.K.V.D. officers, detailed by Satlin to act as if they were Poles.

But the fact that the Soviet decided to remove any disguise and appoint publicly a Russian general officer to be head of the largest satellite forces in Europe, might have several meanings. There were hints some months ago the Rokossovsky would be the Politburo's first choice, should any opportunity to fill a vacancy in the Communist-Polish set-up arise.

Sons of a Polish middle-class family—his father was a quite well-known notary in Winnica in the Ukraine—Rokossovsky joined the left-wing political movement while still in school. When the 1917 revelution broke out he joined the Red forces to fight the Tsarist system he hated as a Pole and as an idealistic leftist. But it was only after the proclamation of Polish independence that his real difficulties began.

Set Politics First

Brought up in a patriotic home, he saw his older brother become an officer of the newly-formed Polish Army. Konstantin Rokossovsky felt his political loyalty was stronger than his national origin. He remained in the Red Army and fought within its ranks against Poland. A Soviet shell killed his older brother.

The final defeat of the Russians in the battle of Warsaw, August 15, 1920, marked the victory of his one-time kinsmen, the Poles, over his brother-soldiers of the Red Army. His subsequent military career was strictly that of a Russian officer, of a new, Communist army.

Before the last war he had already established a reputation as a brilliant cavalry commander. The campaigns of 1941-45 brought him the highest awards and the stars o a Soviet marshal as recognition of his outstantding leadership as tank expert.

The man who for over 30 years wore a uniform of a foreign power, the man whose comrades-in-arms were responsible for the atrocious cruelties in the 1920 war, whose glorious battle memories in that war were the darkest days in newly reborn Poland, and who was still in active service when the Red Army stabbed the hard-pressed Polish nation in the back during the gallant days of an apparently hopeless defence against the Germans, has long ceased to be considered a Pole.

To build up Rokossovky's legend even in the entirely Communist-dominated Polish forces is a tedious problem. The new "polish" marshal and "polish" minister of defence is likely to lose most of his popularity as a successful soldier and gain none as a Polish one.

From the point of view of the Polish independence movement this last display of full Soviet authority over Poland is not to be regretted.

Any openly admitted control of key posts in the government or command in Warsaw by Stalin through his trusted subordinates, whether detailed to act as "Polish" cabinet minister or as "Polish" commanders, is one more way to disperse the dangerous and mendacious belief that the secret treaty of Yalta has created a "strong and independent Poland."

Striking Example

Inside Poland, even in the last circles of youth, exposed for over four years to Communist-controlled programs and political indoctrination, Rokossovsky's reappearance in a Polish uniform will be a striking example of complete subordination of the Warsaw rulers to their masters in the Kremlin. In consequence it will rather loosen than strengthen the morale of the forces.

To foreign observers it is another sign of the tightening of the Soviet defence belt. The danger of Titoism seems to be increasing rather than on the decrease. The obedient local leaders cannot be trusted any more and the final streamlining of the Red bulwark as a base for further military expansion has quite openly to be put into the hands of a faithful Red Army leader.

MUSIC AND ALL—The 325 Calgary Stampeder fans arrived in Toronto Thursday morning by special train from the west. They brought horses, Indians, chuckwagons and a model train to say nothing of an orchestra to provide music for their square dances en route and in front of Toronto's city hall. The Buckaroos, shown here, are all ready for the Stampeder-Alouette game Saturday. Bev Bandur is the guitarist while the little singer on the left is Leone Daub.

Food Surpluses Must Be Shared Around World

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

The biggest thing to remember in discussions of food—food surpluses or lack of surpluses— is that the world is hungry.

Not Canada, not the United States, where our chief worries about food are our waist lines.

But much of the rest of the world doesn't know what it means to be fed in the way that we take it for granted that we shall be fed. There is not, and unfortunately it looks as though there never can be(a food surplus in a global sense.

There sometimes are surpluses in an economic sense; wherein one group of people have more than enough food, and another group lacks the money to buy it from them. That is the only kind of food surplus we can possibly face in our lifetimes

Remember, during the war, those pictures of starving people in Greece; which made one somewhat ashamed to sit down to a full meal; but when one knew there was no ship which could carry there the chop or the loaf one would gladly have shared.

Still Hungry

Now—there are plenty of ships and Greece is doing somewhat better; but there still are hungry people and we still have our full chop.

So there comes a struggle between economics and the humanities.

We remember the days when food was burned to remove surpluses, even though there were hungry people then We don't think that can happen again; and if that is so, humanity has gained some ground.

We shall go on dickering to make the best sale we can; but, if it should turn out that there are regional world surpluses, a way will be found to distribute them.

Of great importance in this is an organization whose name is too unwieldy to have made much imprint upon the public consciousness.

It is commonly called FAO—short for the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations. It proposes to set up a huge fund which would buy up surplus commodities in one area and sell them to another area for the money which that area uses.

Christmas Seal Fund Provides X-Rays

Tuberculosis, long one of the most mysterious diseases man faced, is gradually being forced to give up its secrets.

For many years it was considered the disease was inherited because it apparently ran in families. But recently it was discovered the disease spread through a family from one member who had contracted it and passed it on to the others.

This was a common occurrence because the one diseased member of the family could have the disease a considerable time before he showed any of the recognized symptons of the disease. Only when the disease had reached advanced development was it likely to be detected.

The X-ray has done a tremendous job, said D. J. Fitzgerald, president of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association in detecting the disease while it still is in its early stages.

Once the person with the disease has been found he can be isolated and is no longer a source from which the disease can spread to his family or close friends. Then too, the victim has a much better chance of recovery when the disease is found in an early stage.

In this manner the Peterborough Tuberculosis Association is putting the emphasis on prevention, or catching the disease before it has really started.

But this costs money. X-rays are expensive. Tuberculosis treatment in Canada this year cost about $20,000,000. People do not pay for their X-rays; they are paid for out of the Christmas Seal fund to which people of Peterborough county contribute each December by buying Christmas seals.

Last year they contributed more than $7,000, almost twice as much as they contributed in 1947. Mr. Fitzgerald is hoping that once again Peterborough will top its previous record. Only by continuing to make a yet greater effort, said Mr. Fitzgerald, can Canadians hope to win the fight against tuberculosis.

NO DISASTER IMPENDING—The Bank of Canada report, being studied by two of the world's top banking officials, appears to hold some gratifying information for Graham Towers, left, governor of the Bank of Canada, and Cameron F. Cobbald, governor of the Bank of England. Mr. Cobbald, who describes himself as a "constitutional optimist," told a press conference in Ottawa that "no immediate disasters seem to be in prospect."

City Refuses To Fight County Fires

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. XCIX. No. 123 — FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1949 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

Large Transports Hours Late On Icy Highways

Peterborough district, like the rest of southern Ontario south of North Bay, wrestled today with its first winter snowfall. On Wednesday afternoon a storm came in from the west and left two inches of snow and streets and highways in a treacherous condition. After 24 hours of quiet, a storm howled down from the north-east, starting 3 p.m. on Thursday and continuing until the early hours of this morning. There is now a total of 7½ ins. now on the ground which was fortunately wet enough to prevent much drifting. It however played havoc with driving conditions.

A survey of the several transport companies showed that the majority of drivers were forced to drive very cautiously which put them anywhere from two to three hours behind regular schedules. From the direction of Montreal, trucks on that route had still not reached Peterborough by 10 a.m. None of them reported any accidents.

At the county garage a workman said that ploughs had not been installed on trucks yet but that three graders had started to work on county roads. Since there was little, if any, drifting, they do not anticipate any heavy work.

The city Board of Works had graders and sidewalk ploughs working through the night. No additional help was added to their numbers on account of snow removal work.

The temperature rose slightly today and forecasters say that more snow can be expected which might easily turn to sleet to make driving still more dangerous. No major accidents were reported overnight although there were many cases of vehicles skidding out of control on icy roads.

Urban Protection Endangered If Reels Away

After Dec. 31 the city council is discontinuing fire protection service into its neighboring townships, the fire and light committee informed a deputation from Smith township council Thursday night.

That was the decision of the council itself six weeks ago, and the committee told the visitors it had no authority to amend or dilute it in any way.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mayor Swanston summed up the practical effect of the council's resolution: "There will be no more fire protection by the city beyond its boundaries after the end of the year."

Further stating the position of the council His Worship said that after December 31 no one had any authority to permit the fire department to respond to a call from the townships.

Ald. Doug Miller presided as chairman of the committee and with him were Aldermen Burrows, Raine, Gillespie, Mayor Swanston and Fire Chief George Smith. The members of the Smith deputation representing the interests of its suburban residents were: Reeve Ross Harrison and Councillors Milton A. Clark and Gordon Fitzgerald, and the clerk-treasurer, A. I. Edmison.

City's Increased Need

Ald. Miller expressed the sentiment of the committee that the city was willing to co-operate with the township people, particularly its suburban residents, if they organized some fire protection of their own.

The city's emphasis was placed on its increased needs, consequent from the local residential expansion and annexation of the last five years. The atmosphere of the meeting was friendly as the committee explained the decision of the city council and the circumstances which required concentration on the necessity of adequate fire protection for the city people who were paying for it.

"We didn't expect that the answer of the city would be so definite and clear cut," was the remark of Mr. Edmison.

He recalled briefly the arrangements between the city and the Smith suburban area, with the township council acting merely as agent. The residents of that defined fringe beyond the north border of the city have been paying a special levy of three mills on their combined assessment of $203,475, amounting to $610.43. Mr. Edmison referred to that sum as a retainer to the city, paid by the property owners in the area, for fire protection.

There was a further charge of $50 payable for each call from that section. This rate was increased by the city council in October to $200 a call until the end of the year, with the further restriction that with the coming of the new year the city's service would cease entirely.

Mr. Edmison said there had been six calls to the fire department. At $50 each they amounted to $300, increasing to $910.43 the Smith fringe payments to the city. Chief George Smith said there was an additional fire call this year, making a total of seven; and there were five last year.

Most of the calls, Mr. Edmison explained, were actually for grass and chimney fires. "The residents have been quite fortunate, largely because they have a good class of houses."

"We know that in the agreement with the city, you are at liberty to refuse to respond to any call," Mr. Edmison said.

Can't Spare Men

Ald. D. Miller explained at the outset that the cost of responding to calls averaged approximately $200. That was based on the number of fire alarms recorded during the year, and on the total cost of the department to its sustaining ratepayers.

"So any plan of charging on that basis is not fair," Ald. Miller said. "We have 41 men including the Chief. It takes three men to keep one man on duty at the fire hall. That provides for 13 men

Girl, 7, Attacked On Burnham St. After School

A seven-year-old girl was attacked on her way home from school Thursday afternoon with two friends by a man near the uncompleted swimming pool on Burnham St.

The man tore the little girl's clothing in the attack. He was frightened off when all the children began to scream.

When he first approached the two girls and a boy, all seven years old, he asked the one girl if she wanted 25 cents. When she said no, he seized her.

Four Remanded Murder Counts

LINDSAY, Nov. 25 (CP) — Three Hamilton men and one Toronto man, charged with the murder of William Jack Loucks, 36-year-old Lindsay laborer, who died last Friday on Lindsay's main street, appeared in Police Court today and were remanded until Dec. 2, by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

The four were John Zahudnik, 38, of Toronto and his two brothers, Paul, 28, and James Metro 33, and William Yuzwa, of Hamilton, appeared without counsel but explained to the Magistrate that their lawyers would be present next week.

The quartet made their brief appearance in the same clothes in which they were arrested. Yuzwa, who is alleged to have done the knifing of Loucks and injured three others, wore a green checkered shirt. Paul Zahudnik wore a light station wagon coat, while his brother John had a leather windbreaker and James wore a fawn coat.

All four appeared calm as they heard the charge of murder read.

Vandals Damage Eight Cottages

Vandals have recently broken into eight summer cottages on the south side of Rice Lake in Alnwick Twp. and caused nearly $1,000 in property damage.

Six of the cottages are owned by Charlton Grigg of RR 3, Roseneath. The other two are owned by United States residents—Ernest Taylor of Niagara Falls, N. Y. and James Pillittieri of Jamestown, N. Y.

Provincial Police investigating the damage are at a loss to understand the motive for the destruction in the eight cottages. The person or persons responsible apparently stole nothing that was breakable.

Hole Chopped in Boat

Windows were broken, dishes smashed, the plumbing ripped out, toilet bowls destroyed and furniture ripped apart. An expensive cedar boat belonging to one of the United States' cottagers had a hole chopped in the bottom.

Electric stoves and refrigerators were toppled over and the interior of the cottages defaced.

The apparently wanton acts of destruction were carried out earlier this week, Provincial Police believe. Mr. Grigg, who farms less than three quarters of a mile from his cottages, discovered the damage on Wednesday and reported it.

He told Provincial Constables Don Nicol of Cobourg and Arthur Kellogg of Hastings that to his knowledge nothing had been stolen. And the same is believed true of the other two cottages.

PCVS 'Life With Father' Charming Lively Production

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

"Life With Father", adapted from the brilliant reminiscences of the late Clarence Day, proved an unexpectedly happy choice for the annual public presentation of the P.C.V.S. Senior Dramatic Club. During the ten years since the play made its first appearance on Broadway—November 8, 1939, to be precise—we have become accustomed to seeing it performed by accomplished profesional companies, and it has been most skilfully presented in a film version. It was daring, therefore, to attempt it with a cast of youthful amateurs. But the daring was amply justified. The performance by the P.C.V.S. cast is by far the most completely successful presentation of a play by a High School cast that we have ever seen anywhere.

Not only was the play funny in itself. The P.C.V.S. presentation gives it a new dimension of humour by slyly mocking its own special features. That five boys of almost equal age should play a father and his four sons, the latter ranging from eighteen to one described in the text as "a roly-poly, good-natured youngster of six", might easily prove a bore of the most advanced order; in this production it is a source of some delightful fun, and at this point we must congratulate Sandy Dewar on an admirable piece of character acting as the youthful Harlan. The mature affection of the older Days, and the humours of adolescent love were handled with a tact and sincerity deserving of the highest praise. The dressing of the stage, also, had been done with great care, and this strict attention to detail contributed immeasureably to the effectiveness of the whole presentation.

Acting On High Level

Space forbids detailed consideration of the acting, all of which was on a high level. As the servants of the Day household Kay Grier, Adele Miller, Gwen Martin, Gail Craig and Margaret Martyn struck just the right note. As the two physicians Blayne Northey and Walter Downes were effective. Keith Borland was pleasantly unctuous as the Rev. Dr. Lloyd, and as the visiting afflictions of the Day household Joan Kembar and Pauline Zacks were charming and delightfully of the period. As well as Sandy Dewar already mentioned Bill Carruthers and Douglas Hancock were excellent as the younger Day boys, and in what is in some ways the hardest part in the play Ron Wallace was admirably true and restrained. As Mrs. Day Patsy Johnston played with great charm and truth; this part, which can so easily be made silly, was given real depth by her honest acting. And as the family tyrant, the irrepressible Mr. Day, Allan Bennett played with authority and a very real comic sense. The sureness with which he got, and dealt with, his laughs marks him as an amateur actor of unusual gifts.

These admirable performances did not happen by chance. The hand of accomplished direction was evident everywhere, though it was never obtrusive. There were times when suggestions of the style of that accomplished amateur, Mr. John Londerville, were discernible to the informed eye, but there was no sign of copying or uninspired drilling. This performance was truly artistic creation—a fine combination of gifted production and native talent. Mr. Londerville and Miss D. M. White have done a fine service to their cast and to their audience. The play will be repeated tonight, and it is not to be missed by anyone who likes first-rate comedy.

On the first night, which was Student's Night, a comic interlude was inserted between the first two acts. It was amusing, though somewhat dishevelled, and would have benefitted by longer rehearsal.

Car Door Damaged

Putting on his brakes to let another car pass, Keith Wilson, 242 Dublin St., slid into the bumper of a parked car on George St. and damaged the door of his own car today.

Wilson told Traffic Officer Harold Mesley he braked his car so that a car coming in the opposite direction would have plenty of room to come between parked cars on either side of the street.

No damage was done to the parked car owned by James H. Bingham, Millbrook.

Pole Withstood Car

A car skidded backwards into a Hydro pole on the west side of Water St. opposite the Auburn dam Thursday. James Rhode, Young's Point, was driving south on Water St. His car went into a skid and turned around, sliding into the pole. No damage was done to the pole, but the left rear fender and rear bumper of the car were damaged. Constable Grant J. Gillespie investigated.

District Egg Men Form Branch

A new district branch of the Canadian Poultry Council was formed here Thursday night with a provisional executive headed by G. A. Brethen, Norwood.

Egg producers, hatcherymen, feed company representatives from the district including Bowmanville, Port Hope, Norwood and Lakefield gathered in provincial agricultural representative Frank C. Paterson's offices to hear C. F. Luckham, chairman of the Canadian Poultry Council.

The feeling of the meeting was that the interests of poultry men in the district could be better looked after by an organized body forming part of a recognized national organization.

Directors Named

Mr. Brethen's election was unanimous following the nomination by Harry W. Sherin, and W. F. Whetung, both of Lakefield. Provisional vice-chairman was Leo Bevin, Port Hope. James R. Turnbul, Peterborough, was named secretary-treasurer.

Directors named were Arthur Douglas, Peterborough; Fred McIndoo, Ida; C. G. Knox, Norham; Frank Horton, Lorne Reynolds, R. M. Peirson, Harry Theobald, F. C. Paterson and Robert Bell, all of Peterborough.

Another meeting to organize and elect permanent officers has been called for Dec. 8 in the provincial agriculture representative's offices.

Bitten By Spaniel

Winston Berford, young son of Mrs. Alfred Berford, 473 Bellevue Ave., in the northwest end of the city, was bitten by a dog this morning. He was taken to the Peterborough Clinic, Charlotte St., where the superficial wound was dressed by Dr. J. Wishart.

Crown Counsel Asks Charge Be Lessened

TORONTO, Nov. 25—(CP) — Crown Counsel W. O. Gibson Thursday asked an assize court jury not to convict Vergil Barkman on a manslaughter charge but to consider only a secondary charge of dangerous driving.

The request came after defence counsel Harry Rose argued there was no evidence to prove Barkman was guilty of criminal negligence in the traffic death of 21-year-old William Miller Jan. 30.

The youth and his fiancee, pretty Helen Billson, then 19, were struck down by an automobile on the city's outskirts. Miss Billson suffered severe leg injuries.

The case is expected to go to the jury today.

Mr. Rose said there was testimony that Miss Billson had had "one beer" prior to the mishap and that while he was not a prude or a puritan, "I am opposed to a hotel selling beer to 19-year-old girls."

Mr. Gibson said he believed Barkman was not paying sufficient attention to his driving and that his own behaviour suggested he ran away from the scene of the accident.

"But I will add . . . that the better man took hold of himself and he surrendered to police, knowing in his conscience that he had done wrong," he said.

No Record Of Security Breach Found In Secret Defence Films

By MEL SUFRIN.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton told the Commons Thursday there is no record of any breach in security involved in production of secret films for the defence department.

This included the government-owned National Film Board and two private companies—Associated Screen News of Montreal and Crawley Films of Ottawa. The two private companies have handled the bulk of secret defence work.

Mr. Claxton was replying during consideration of defence estimates to questions asked by Lt.-Col. D. S. Harkness (PC-Calgary East) regarding the fact that the defence department was withholding secret work from the Film Board while it was being screened by the RCMP.

Lt.-Col. Harkness read from an editorial which had appeared in the Ottawa Journal which said:

"The decision of the National Defence Board to discontinue turning over secret work to the Film Board came after its discovery that a secret film made for it by the Film Board actually had been made, or made in part, by people about whom the RCMP had already turned in 'information.'"

Not Correct

Asked whether this statement was true, Mr. Claxton said:

"My opinion is that that is not a correct statement of the case as far as the information of the Department of National Defence is concerned.

"I should add that, in connection with the processing and preparation of films, there is no record anywhere of any leak or of any breach of security."

Lt.-Col. Harkness referred to the apparent disagreement between Mr. Claxton and Prime Minister St. Laurent about whether the employees of the private companies handling secret work had been screened.

Mr. Claxton said today that five employees of Associated Screen News and 14 employees of Crawley Films had been investigated by the Mounties at request of the Defence Department.

This screening had taken place during 1948 and 1949. Each of the 19 persons was individually investigated and cleared for handling the secret work.

Investigating 200

The idea of this was to clear the Film Board for doing secret work.

"In addition to the 200 persons in the production department of the National Film Board who are to be screened first, the whole Board is to be screened."

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) said the Minister's explanations as to why secret work is being withheld from the Film Board are "far from satisfactory."

He said it was unfortunate that the Prime Minister and the other Ministers had to get their information from the Financial Post or any other newspaper. It was a quotation from the Post, a Toronto weekly, that set off the Film Board debate a week ago.

$25,000 Policy To Keep Horse In Happy Home

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25 (AP)—How much social security can a horse use? Gene Autry's Champion is getting $25,000 worth.

The horse is the beneficiary of one of the strangest insurance policies in this town of strange insurance policies. Everything has been insured—from Jimmy Durante's nose to Betty Gable's gams.

Now comes Champion.

"I want to be sure that if anything happens to me, Champ won't have to end his days puling a milk wagon," explained Autry.

So the policy was signed and sealed this week. It provides a $25,000 endowment to take care of the horse. That can provide a lot of oats and carrots.

"The fund will provide $100 a month for feed and $100 a month for someone to watch after Champ," Autry added.

The socially-secure nag is actually the second Champion, the first one having died in 1945 at 16 years.

Champion II is now four years old and will perform another 13 years before retiring to clip coupons.

Indian Land was driven by Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont while Dr. Stanton was guided by W. L. (Lindy) Fraser of Forest, Ont.

Big U.K. Order For B.C. Lumber

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25—(CP)—The Vancouver Sun said Thursday that a big United Kingdom lumber order is in sight for British Columbia.

The British Timber Control is asking for tenders on 100,000,000 or more board feet of lumber to be purchased with Marshall Plan funds. B.C. exporters hope to get the major share.

Purchases will be on a competitive basis, and the contract, to run from January to March, will be worth more than $7,500,000.

B.C. lumbermen, however, will have to compete with Washington and Oregon for the business.

The Sun said the return of Britain to the B.C. market will mean a major boost to the province's economy, assuring jobs for thousands of workers.

It may also mean, said the Sun, a firming of local lumber prices. B.C. prices are expected to be lower than those in Washington and Oregon.

Recruit U.K. Airmen

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP) — A spokesman for the RCAF said Thursday night that the service had recruited 13 doctors in the United Kingdom as "stop-gap measure" to fill a temporary shortage here. Fraser Questions Film Board Brief

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) Thursday in the Commons sought unsuccessfully to find out why a brief submitted to the Royal Commission on arts and science by the publicly-owned National Film Board did not represent government policy,

He said it was announced over the radio and in newspapers as well that Reconstruction Minister Winters had stated that the brief was not government policy.

Mr. Fraser asked:

"Why is it not government policy when there are two cabinet ministers on that board? Did they have anything to do with the brief? If not, why not?"

Mr. Winters replied:

"I have not had an opportunity of reading the reports in the press and I don't think I should comment on them under the circumstances."

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Thursday he will look into the matter of providing risk allowance for aircraft mechanics who must test planes in the air. He was replying to C. E. Mr. Johnston said some RCAF aircrew mechanics must test planes in the air but do not receive the allowance provided to other air force personnel for flying.

Veteran of Northern Skies Prefers Flying To Armchair

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON, Nov. 25—(CP)—At an age when many men think of retiring, Arthur Massey (Matt) Berry, pioneer bush pilot, is still relentlessly pursuing the job of opening up Canada's vast north country—a task that has already occupied 21 years of his adventure-filled life.

The 1936 winner of the McKee Trans-Canada trophy, who admits to 57 years although other sources say he was born in 1888, prefers the cockpit of an airplane to a soft office chair in managing two charter airways and other northern interests.

"I started flying up north in 1928, taking in supplies and prospectors for a mineral exploration project of Jack "Hammell of Toronto,'" the veteran aviator said, as he fidgetted uneasily on a chair in his Edmonton office.

"But I've got a lot of flying years in me yet."

His love for the north—he says he wouldn't care to fly anywhere else—has made him one of Canada's most famous airmen and has crowned with success a flying career that began overseas in 1917 when he found the role of an infantryman too tame.

The wild expanse of forest, lakes, muskeg, tundra and ice between Edmonton and the North Pole has become almost as familiar to Berry as a backyard to anyone else.

The lean six-footer, who was born at March, Ont., just outside of Ottawa, hasn't kept a flight log for the last 17 years because he's been "too busy hopping around." Nor has he any idea of how many miles he has flown over the northern hinterland.

Rescued Eight In 1936

Berry's vast knowledge of the north was evident in 1936 when he flew far into the Arctic barrens to find two members of the RCAF who had been lost for a month.

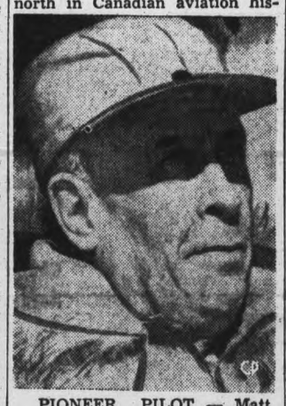
The same year he made one of the farthest winter flights into the north in Canadian aviation history. Berry flew 1,750 miles northwest of Edmonton to rescue a missionary and five others who were threatened with starvation. For these exploits he won the McKee award.

"I've never been lost myself," he maintains, although he admits he has been forced down in isolated regions several times.

Recently he took over Yellowknife Airways, carrying freight and passengers in and out of the Yellowknife gold town. He also operates Territories Air Service, which serves much of the north.

Berry has widespread mining interests and several years ago flew north of Coppermine, NWT, on the mouth of the Mackenzie River, to stake the first claim at a big lead deposit.

His other activities have included construction of small northern airstrips and an entry into politics. In the last federal election he was an unsuccessful Independent candidate for the Yukon-Mackenzie riding.



PIONEER PILOT — Matt Berry, of Edmonton, one of Canada's pioneer bush pilots, has made countless trips into the north. Berry, 57, is a well-known airline executive, prospector and contractor. He won the McKee aviation trophy in 1936.

Dump Russian Pelts On Fur Market

GALT, Nov. 25 (CP)—Manuel Cabral, who supplies food to fur farms, said Thursday night that district fox and mink farmers are trying to form a co-operative to combat an influx of Russian pelts allegedly being dumped on the Canadian and United States markets.

Cabral said that red fox pelts now are a drug on the market and silver fox is so low in price that many fur farms are being abandoned in Ontario.

Business in mink pelts is good, but not as good as it used to be, he added.

"We can't understand it," said Cabral, "especially since the government is said to have over $1,000,000 worth of fox pelts stored in Montreal. We don't know what they intend to do with them

Marmora WMS Celebrates Tenth Birthday

MARMORA, Nov. 25 (ENS) — The tenth birthday of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was observed in St. Andrew's Hall on Wednesday evening with an entertaining program followed by a social hour. Those present included the Girls' Explorer Group.

Mrs. H. C. Barlow, the president, was in charge of the program, which opened with a hymnal sing-song. After a short worship period, the Rev. G. D. Young showed Biblical slides and Mrs. H. W. Sabine led prayers. A group of songs was then sung by the Explorers. Beverly Young followed with a reading and Marilyn Cole played a piano solo.

Mr. Young told the story of the Raggedy Elf and For All of Life, illustrated with modern slides. Mrs. G. H. Rennie played the piano.

The president mentioned that Havelock and Madoc Auxiliaries had expressed regret at not being able to accept the invitation to be present. Mrs. Grenville Meiklejohn who attended with other members of Springbrook WMS, conveyed greetings from that Auxiliary.

Second WMS

Mrs. Barlow mentioned that although the present WMS had been started by Mrs. W. P. Fletcher ten years ago, an old minute book disclosed that a similar organization had functioned in the then Marmora Methodist Church from Sept. 25, 1892 to May 7, 1903. She said that on August 26, 1820, the Conference Missionary Society had met at Picton, Ont., then known as Halliwell.

The placing of ten candles on the birthday cake, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sweet, was carried out by Mrs. G. D. Young, who mentioned the significance of each candle.

(1) First meeting on Nov. 17, 1939; (2) past and present presidents; (3) charter members; (4) Two members on Presbyterial; (5) new members whom it is hoped to interest; (6) Younger girls' groups of St. Andrews; (7) United Church of Canada, St. Andrews and its minister; (8) missionaries, doctors and nurses supported by the WMS; (9) in loving memory of only deceased charter member, Mrs. W. A. Sanderson; (10) the tenth anniversary.

Say Thousands Of DP's Wait For New Homes

OTTAWA, Nov. 25—(CP)—A new phrase has emerged, a Commons committee learned Thursday night to sum up part of the tragedy and misery of post-war Europe.

It is "the hard core," A. D. P. Heeney, undersecretary of the External Affairs Department testified.

The hard core is the hardest to settle portion of the tens of thousands of refugees and displaced persons still hoping for a permanent home, said Mr. Heeney.

For reasons of age, health and other causes, they have been passed up again and again while thousands of others left the D.P. camps for countries around the world—54,000 of them for Canada.

They are the big headache in a "vigorous program" by the International Refugee Organization to get several hundred thousand more persons settled before its mandate comes to an end next year. Mr. Heeney saw little chance that the campaign will succeed fully by the deadline.

Need Assistance

The campaign's success would depend on the willingness of a number of nations to accept the D.P.s on a generous scale. Emissaries were being sent to those nations to see if they can take in more, possibly by lessening their present immigration bars against them.

Mr. Heeney had no late figure on how many people the D.P. camps still hold, but he said progress in settling them has "tended to become slower all the time." David Croll (PC, Toronto Spadina) said he understands there are some 300,000 still there.

Australia has agreed to take 200,000 D.P.s all told. Some 100,000 could qualify under standards set by Canada but this country had made no numerical commitment.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 25 (AP)—Four Romanians, one of them reported to be a member of the Army's general staff, have been sentenced to death on charges of spying for the United States.

Twelve others were given prison terms ranging up to life by a military court.

Sentenced to death were Lt.-Col. Dan Tetorian, said by well informed sources to have been on the Romanian Army general staff when arrested; Máj. Mihil D. Eliade, a reserve officer; Martel Emilian, an actor; and Ion Vancu, a civilian sentenced in absentia.

The announcement said they were convicted of supplying information on defence matters to American espionage services.

Bible Class Studies "Our Living Faith"

KEENE, Nov. 25 (ENS)—The teacher training and Bible class met in the Sunday School last Sunday when the text book "Our Living Faith" was studied. Lantern slides were shown and devotional exercises were conducted by members of the YPU including Eileen Brown, Isabel Murphy, Evelyn Richardson, Bill Richardson, Bill Brown and Tom Gail. Betty Thomson was at the piano. Twenty-five attended the class and the minister as teacher.

A number from Keene attended the Presbytery meeting and rally on Tuesday at St. James United Church, Peterborough, and heard speakers from Toronto under the departments of Evangelism and Christian Education.

Two Men Escape As Train Hits Truck

WALKERTON, Nov. 25—(CP)—Two men escaped with minor injuries Thursday night when a Toronto-bound passenger train hit their huge transport truck just behind the cab and hurled it 60 feet. The truck was demolished.

Jack Martin, driver of the truck, said he came over the brow of a hill 180 feet from the level crossing and saw the train approaching. He applied the brakes but the tires would not grip on the icy incline, so he tried to beat the train to the crossing. Jack Weaver was the other occupant of the truck.

Provincial Women Plan Expansion Of Liquor Crusade

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP) — Delegates to the annual meeting of the Provincial Council of Women today decided to expand the crusade against the liquor traffic.

A special committee was set up to confer and report back to officials as to the future policy, action and financial structure of the expansion program—probably to include provincial-wide rallies and demonstrations.

Lively discussion followed report of the Provincial Council's new radio committee, presented by Mrs. Florence Buchanan of Brantford, who stressed the women's responsibility for seeing that Canada gets what she wants in the way of radio programs.

"Women are more likely to keep this country on the right track, morally and economically, than men," she said.

More religious programs on Sunday and less advertising on their favorite stations were choices indicated by the women.

Canada may be quite sure she is getting the best people from Europe because of the careful screening before immigration, said Mrs. J. D. Smith, speaking of the 100,000 who have entered in the past four years. She was giving the Council's first report on the migration committee, established a year ago.

Income tax laws and succession duty laws still contain many injustices to women, especially widows, although some attempt has been made by the Ontario Government to rectify some of these, said Mrs. W. R. Lang, legislation convener.

"Life would be more interesting and we would be more justified in expressing an opinion if we gave more study to the economics behind such questions as rent control, housing, prices, the devaluation of sterling and the Canadian dollar, and the amounts of our exports compared with our imports," she suggested.

Canada's No. 1 social problem, housing, is just as acute as ever, according to reports received by the welfare committee convener, Miss Maude Beamer of Kingston.

Plight of the old people, even with the slightly increased pension is "extremely serious." The recent rental increase has "caused consternation from one end of the country to the other."

Women's Institutes Ask For More Cancer Care

Many requests in the form of resolutions were passed by the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario at the annual board meeting in Toronto this week. Need of more cancer clinics in the province and request to set up additional ones; granting of old age pensions at 65, without the means test; legislation which will make wives of men sentenced to prison eligible for Mothers' Allowance in cases where there are children.

The meeting voiced the sentiments of the more than 47,000 rural women members in Ontario. It asked the banning of obscene books and stricter censorship of all reading material; a separate ministry to deal with Indian affairs; ban on the manufacture and sale of margarine except when butter is in short supply; the marking of rayon, both wearing apparel and yard goods, by the manufacturer is a guide for laundering.

The rural woman also asked for fortified white flour; an increase in the availability of sodium fluoride as a preventative of tooth decay; retaining the present radio fee, or eliminating it entirely; financial aid and social security for victims of accidents or illnesses which render them incapable of earning a livelihood.

Because the present unbleached cotton flour and feed bags, heavily printed with blue ink, are hard to bleach and not much use to the housewife, the meeting asked the government to have manufacturers consider the substitution of patterned materials, such as have been used for some time in the United States, which can later be used as attractive tablecloth material.

Claiming that the present scale of rates for Blue Cross is too high WI members are asking directors to allow WI units to be grouped with payroll deduction groups and charged at same rates. They also urged that in any Canadian flag adopted the Union Jack be prominently displayed.

It was decided to send $50 to the upkeep of the International Peace Garden. The WI was the first Canadian Women's organization to have a plot in these gardens, it was pointed out.

A day a year to be set aside as Canadian Day when there would be fitting ceremony to mark the coming of age of native Canadians and the acquiring of citizenship by new Canadians, was a suggestion made by Mrs. J. Houck, national citizenship convener.

EDITOR AND BUSINESS MANAGER of the publication "The Canadian Nurse," Miss Margaret E. Kerr, (second from right) spoke to graduate and student nurses here Thursday evening. Prior to the address she was pictured at St. Joseph's Hospital chatting with Mrs. E. Brackenridge, president of Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary, and Miss A. L. Thomson, principal of Civic School of Nursing, and Mother Priscilla, director of nursing at St. Joseph's.

Editor Nurses' Magazine Visits Two Schools Here

An extremely busy woman with a dynamic personality is spending a short time in this city with fellow members of her profession —nurses, and those who share her hobby—Soroptimists. She is Miss Margaret Kerr of Montreal, editor and business manager of "The Canadian Nurse."

Visits at the Schools of Nursing in this city will further the rather unique record she is establishing this year. By the end of 1949 she expects to have talked to all but seven of the 170 groups of student nurses in Canada. No other person has ever made as many personal contacts.

The magazine which claims Miss Kerr's business interest is the only official nurses' publication in Canada. It has been owned and operated by the Canadian Nurses' Association since 1915 and is published monthly. The first full-time editor took charge in 1933, and Miss Kerr was appointed editor and business manager in May of 1944. Prior to this time she was supervisor of the public health program in BC.

About 50 graduate nurses of the city gathered at St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday evening to meet Miss Kerr. She spoke to them about their magazine, giving an outline of its origin and advancement.

"The Canadian Nurse is edited to reach five groups of people," she said. "Directors, instructors and supervisors; public health nurses, general and private duty nurses, student nurses, married and retired nurses." It is evident that a speedy flow of articles need be sent in to keep up such wide interest and she explained just what type is needed.

Calling it the "left thumb twitch," Miss Kerr gave an amusing illustration of how the nurse usually reads the magazine. She then showed how it should be read in order that the nurse may bring herself up to date on new treatments and drugs, as well as keeping up interest in her profession.

Educationally Miss Kerr is a highly qualified nurse. She has the degree of Bachelor of Applied Science from University of British Columbia, and an MA from Columbia University.

Student nurses of St. Joseph's attended the meeting last evening and she spoke to the students at Civic Hospital today. This evening Miss Kerr is addressing the Soroptimist Club of Peterborough.

St. John's Bazaar and Tea Draws Largest Crowd Yet

One of the largest crowds of women that ever attended the annual Christmas bazaar in St. John's Parish Hall persevered stout-heartedly on the slippery hill Thursday afternoon. But reaching the goal, they were rewarded with the finest selection of handwork, home cooking and preserving and candy ever offered—with one exception, the Christmas cake that has become a tradition of this event and can hardly be expected ever to surpass the excellence with which it is credited.

Tables that lined the auditorium were set up by four organizations, Afternoon Branch of the WA, the Church Women's Association, Evening Branch of the WA, and the Women's Friendly Bible Class. Each will add the proceeds of its own members' efforts to the coffers, and also a share of returns from the tea. All reports indicate the sums will be the highest ever, with total returns for the day reaching well over $600.

Entering the downstairs tea room was like coming home on a cold winter day at Christmas. The wood fireplace was burning brightly and red candles with bits of evergreen and red ribbons were on each card table set out for convenience in serving.

A large square white candle was placed in the centre of the lace-covered tea table, and on either side there were gay silver balls and pine needles, rows of slender white tapers in tall crystal holders. Filling cups from the silver tea urns were Mrs. C. W. Balfour, Mrs. E. V. Morphet, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald. Members of each organization participating were among the servers.

Mrs. G. Groombridge, Mrs. B. Wardle, Mrs. D. J. Eldred and Mrs. P. A. Martyn convened the refreshments. Miss Mary Medd was responsible for the decorations and Mrs. B. W. Meyers and Mrs. R. J. Ward for the table.

Women's Friendly Bible Class, of which Mrs. M. Pakenham is president, had a table of handwork that featured aprons and fancy table cloths, convened by Mrs. H. Howell. Mrs. H. Bassett had charge of a draw on a quilt and this was won by Mrs. Ed. Moher, of 691 Stewart St. The ticket was selected by Mrs. T. H. Floyd.

The CWA offered the most delicious kinds of home made confectionery at a table convened by Miss Maude Rush. Fine fancy-work and aprons were sold by Mrs. J. Johnston and Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, and their third table had a splendid display of home cooking in charge of Mrs. Don Loucks.

Evening Branch of the WA, with Mrs. F. C. Marshall as president, presented tables of fancy-work and home baking with Mrs. B. Ottewell and Mrs. F. Ford in charge and a white elephant table was operated by Mrs. E. E. Young.

The pantry booth with cake, jam, pickles, mincemeat and fancy iced cakes as specials was a popular spot with Mrs. W. T. Dyer, Mrs. L. R. Lawless and Mrs. J. Cridland of the Afternoon Branch WA in charge. Mrs. T. Mills convened a table of woollen goods, where babies' needs were well looked after, and Mrs. H. Kelsey had charge of the bazaar table.

"Where's the Christmas cake?" was an oft-repeated question, but in most cases it was made in vain. Miss Margaret English had supervised the making of 72 pounds of this famous cake and a very short time after the tea opened she was completely sold out. Mrs. W. M. Cruthers was assisting to weigh and wrap the pieces.

Success of this affair is largely due to Mrs. F. E. Hooper, who was general convener. The four presidents, Mrs. Sootheran, of the Afternoon Branch, Mrs. Fitzgerald of CWA, Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Pakenham supervised the work of members.

Bateman-Hannah

MARMORA, Nov. 25 (ENS)—The marriage of Iris Georgina daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hannah of Marmora, and Gordon Harry Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bateman of Springbrook took place in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, in the late afternoon of Saturday. The Rev. G. D. Young officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated with white 'mums and pink snapdragon, and was lighted by candles. Mrs. W. H. Litt presided at the organ and played wedding music. Jack Grant of Toronto, uncle of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," before the ceremony and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a white slipper satin gown and veil of net. Her bouquet was of red roses. Mrs. Bernard Abrams of Ottawa was matron of honor for her sister in pink brocaded taffeta and net, with bandeau of pink baby 'mums and her bouquet was of the same flowers.

Donald Bateman, attended his brother. The ushers were Frank Hannah and Floyd Bateman.

A reception was held in St. Andrew's Hall where the bride's mother received in a dress of wine crepe with black accessories and corsage of cream roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother who wore black with a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Detroit, the bride wore a dress of yellow wool and brown accessories and fur coat. They will live in Springbrook.

DOROTHY DIX

Sadistic Husband Delights In Torturing of His Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married four years to a young man of good character who professes to love me, but we have never in all the years we have been married had an hour's enjoyment together. I have worked constantly since we have been married and we have no children. I do not understand his attitude toward me. If I plan something for our enjoyment, he sulks argues, fights and does everything to ruin the evening. If some one tells about what a sloppy housekeeper I am. If one of our friends pays me a compliment, he remarks: "You ought to live with her for a while." I have killed my own personality completely to keep peace with him, but to no good. What's the answer to this terrific problem of how to get along with a man who says he loves you, yet does everything to make you miserable?

VERILYN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I suppose the real explanation of your husband's conduct is that he is a sort of sadist. Oscar Wilde once said that "all men kill the thing they love," and, while that is not strictly true, it is true that many men get a neurotic pleasure out of torturing their wives even when they are fond of them.

Feels Inferior

This is particularly the case when the man secretly feels that he is his wife's inferior in looks, or mind, or disposition, or achievements. Then he justifies himself to himself and thinks he shows off before other by trying to humiliate her.

Then there are men of cruel natures who enjoy torturing others They get a kick out of inflicting pain and seeing their victims writhe in agony and, of course, the wife is always the preordained victim of these inhuman monsters.

[illegible] in making his wife needlessly unhappy no normal mind can understand. But their perverted souls do. There are plenty of husbands who never say a pleasant word in their homes; who never mention anything their wives do except to knock it; who go out of their way to insult her family and her friends; who apparently begrudge her the food she eats and the clothes she wears; and who make marriage for her a good understudy of the Inquisition.

I think any woman is foolish who stands such treatment. Especially is she foolish to endure it if she has no children whose welfare would depend upon having a father to provide for them. The wife of such a man should put on her hat and quit cold.

It is no woman's duty to offer herself up as a goat for any man to torment for his diversion. The martyr's halo isn't a proper headgear for any woman who has sense enough to make her own living.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a married woman of 36 and have five children, the oldest 12 years old. My husband makes just barely enough salary to meet the bills for your absolute necessities of life. I do all the work in our five-room bungalow — washing, iron and baking. I am dissatisfied and tired of trying to make both ends meet. I am an absolute slave and wish I could get a divorce. What do you think?

MARRIED

ANSWER: If you have to slave to make ends meet when your husband brings in the money would you have an easier time of it when you had to do the cooking, washing and ironing for your five children, and also earn the money to buy the food you cook and pay the rent of the house you sweep?

I grant you that it is hard for a woman to be married to a man who has not the gift of money-making; who has to stretch every penny to its utmost limit; who has to work beyond her strength, slaving for her children, and who lives always in the black shadow of unpaid bills.

But if such a woman's husband is good and kind to her, and if she knows that he is doing the very best he can, she has no just cause to divorce him, and she is a poo. sport if she does not play up to him and do her part as cheerfully as she can.

The real silver lining to your cloud is your children. It will not be many years now before they will be able to help you, and that will turn your liability into an asset. Nine-tenths of the successful men of today are the sons of fathers who did not know how to get along in the world. Cheer up and carry on with your job and you will yet ride in your limousine when your boys are grown.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young man about to be married: I want my wife and my mother to be fond of each other. How can I secure that blessed state of affairs?

ALFRED A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By not trying the disastrous experiment of having them live together. Separation is the solvent of the in-law problem. In the case of mother-in-law and daughter-in-law an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure

Experience has shown that not once in a hundred thousand times can a mother-in-law and daughter-in-law live in peace and harmony under the same roof. Almost invariably they make each other perfectly miserable with their jealousies and suspicions, and they tear to pieces the poor men over whom they fight like snarling dogs over a bone.

MRS. CALDWELL'S SCHOOL—Mrs. P. L. Caldwell instructs some of the 19 Negro children who attend school in her house at Maroon Hill near Halifax. Mrs. Caldwell took over seven years ago when Negroes were denied the right to study in the community school. The first class—one pupil—took reading, writing and 'rithmetic in her kitchen. Now her school has seven grades.

Denied Schooling, Negroes Educated in Woman's Home

MAROON HILL, N.S., Nov. 25 (CP)—In a unique school at Maroon Hill, just a few miles from Halifax, a lone teacher has taken over the task of educating Negro children who have been denied the right to study in the community school.

Mrs. P. L. Caldwell has operated the school now for seven years, ever since she returned to her native Nova Scotia from other provinces and found Negro children in Maroon Hill wishing they could go to school.

It began in her kitchen with one student; now there are 19 attending grades one to seven. Classes have overflowed into other rooms of her home, and she now is recognized as a regular school teacher of the province.

The younger pupils use the kitchen under the watchful eye of Mrs. Caldwell. The older ones are in another room by themselves because Mrs. Caldwell believes they are old enough to study without supervision.

But even with extra rooms in use, it's hard to accommodate the students. Those in grades two, four and five attend in the morning, grades one and three in the afternoon. Grade seven pupils attend both. Two pupils who take piano lessons stay after that for practice.

Just why the Negro children of the area were not admitted to the public school has never been explained but now there seems to be little resentment among the Negro families. There is even keen rivalry between students of the two schools, just next door to each other. Mrs. Caldwell has found during the seven years of her school that any trouble that arises is usually the fault of both sides.

Cat Lends Color

Only disturbing influence in the home-school is "Amber," a cross between an Angora and a Persian cat, usually found asleep on one of the tables where the children are studying.

With quarters limited, Mrs. Caldwell has had to call on her ingenuity to provide sufficient space for her teaching. When classes open, a lower table is pulled out from under the regular kitchen table. On this is placed a masonite table-top, enlarging its working surface, and folding chairs are drawn up.

A card table is unfolded, another enlarged top is fitted over it and four or five more children have working space.

A blackboard is hidden behind the kitchen stove when not in use. Other equipment comes from a shelf and then classes are under way.

Commenting on this unique school, the Halifax Chronicle-Herald said in an editorial page story:

"Maroon Hill School is homey and comfortable. The plants on the window-sills, and the curtains on the windows, the glowing kitchen stove and friendly cat lend an air of happiness and geniality which no one can fail to absorb.

"One may deplore the attitude of a community which barred them (Negro children) from the common school—and does not welcome them even into the local church—but one must recognize the fact that, in spite of it all, they are enjoying a happy, friendly school life."

Terrier Is Escort For Prince's Buggy

LONDON, Nov. 25 — (CP). — Prince Charles and his mother's pet terrier "Shandy" are frequently seen on pram outings in Green Park these days.

Shandy is a six-months-old smooth-haired fox terrier with pure white body and a mask divided strictly in half—one side dark tan, the other white.

Two months ago he was living in kennels near Reading, Berkshire, where his former owner, Mrs Winifred de Garis, breeds fox terriers.

She gave him to Princess Elizabeth when she heard that Rummy, Shandy's uncle, had died Formerly Rummy had the run of Buckingham Palace.

Said Mrs. de Garis: "I have had a letter from the Princess saying that Shandy and Prince Charles get on extremely well together."

Opera Career Aim For Mother of Two

MANCHESTER, England, Nov 25 — (CP) — Between looking after her husband and two children, Mrs. Mary Maiden studies singing four times a week at the Royal Manchester College of Music.

Her training, which came after she won a special scholarship, will be completed in 1951 when Mrs Maiden will go on to the concert platform.

"I am hoping there is still time for me to become an opera singer," 29-year-old Mrs. Maiden said.

Christmas Early As Gifts Pile Up for War Children

By MARIENNE IZSAK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(CP)—It was a Christmas party for children but the children were over 5,000 miles away.

It was the idea of Mrs. Edna Blue, international chairman of the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, Inc., who gave the party and asked that each guest bring one toy for the children of Europe.

"I never dreamed we'd get this response," said Mrs. Blue. "We sent out only 300 invitations and there are over 800 gifts."

The gifts were piled under a six-foot painting by the young American artist, Robert Lee, depicting the rejuvenation of maimed and crippled children.

Only one child was there and she was 12-year-old Barbara Nikoli, who, at eight years of age, had witnessed the death of her parents and three years later, during the civil war in Greece, had been hit in the cheek by a mortar shell. The sight of one eye had been lost completely and vision in the other greatly impaired.

Barbara bears little resemblance to the sad orphan, her face scarred and disfigured, who was brought from Greece only a few months ago. Although she still wears a patch over one eye and the sight in the other has not been completely restored, she is a normal happy little girl.

Barbara's "In Love"

With a hair-ribbon in her hair, she stood joyfully beside the piano, swinging one leg and singing: "I'm in love, I'm in love, I'm in love, I'm in love, I'm in love with a wonderful guy!"

The Foster Parents' Plan for War Children has recently received permission to raise funds in Canada for child relief work in war-stricken areas all over the world.

This plan does not do mass relief work but arranges for the "adoption" of an individual child by a person or group, who agrees to contribute $15 a month for at least a year towards the child's support and to correspond with him regularly.

A photograph and case history of the child is sent to the foster parent and the need for personal contact through letter is emphasized, as it is felt sometimes these mean more than food and clothing.

Foster Parents' Plan for War Children was founded in 1937 during the Spanish Civil War to care for children of both sides. It is a non-political, non-sectarian and non-profit organization. Its founder was Major Langdon-Davies, a British war correspondent, who saw the terrible suffering war brought to the children.

Mrs. Edna Blue has been associated with the organization since shortly after its inception in the United States in 1939.

"I thought it would come to this before long!"

Cheese Tops As Main Dish

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—For the cook who would please—the answer is cheese.

As a main dish, or even for dessert, this tasty product is judged tops by many housewives, and it can be used in a variety of ways

Eggs and cheese both are mentioned in Canada's food rules, so what could be more healthful than a cheese souffle?

Ingredients: four tablespoons butter (or margarine); four tablespoons flour; two cups milk; two cups grated cheese; one-half teaspoon salt; one-eight teaspoon mustard; one-eighth teaspoon paprika; one-eighth teaspoon soda; three eggs.

Melt fat in pan and add flour while stirring. When smooth, add milk, salt, mustard, paprika and soda: When thickened add grated cheese and stir until smooth. Pour over beaten egg yolks and when blended fold in egg whites stiffly beaten. Pour into large greased casserole. Place in pan of hot water and bake in oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) from 45 to 50 minutes, until firm. Serves six.

Cheese may also be used to add new flavor to potatoes.

Ingredients: one quart potatoes (cut in half-inch cubes); one onion; three pimentos; two cups white sauce; one-half pound mild cheese; one-half teaspoon salt.

Cook potatoes and onions, finely chopped, in boiling, salted water to cover for five minutes. Add pimentos cut in small pieces and cook seven minutes. Drain Turn into a greased baking-dish and pour over white sauce mixed with cheese and salt. Bake in a moderate oven until potaties are cooked.

Finally, the Junior Chamber of Commerce in its Canadian recipe booklet, "3,000 Miles of Good Food," has a recipe for Baked Macaroni and Cheese.

Ingredients: one-half of an eight-ounce package of macaroni; one-quarter cup butter or margarine; one tablespoon chopped onion; four tablespoons flour; one-quarter teaspoon dry mustard; one-half teaspoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper; two cups milk; one cup grated nippy cheese; bacon.

Cook macaroni until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain. In the meantime make sauce as follows melt butter or margarine in top part of double boiler over direct heat, add onion and cook slowly for about five minutes until tender, but not browned Add flour, mustard, salt and pepper, and blend. Place over boiling water. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Add grated cheese and stir until melted. Combine sauce and macaroni and pour into greased casserole dish (1½ to two-quarts). Bake in oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for 20 minutes or until brown. Top with strips of cooked side bacon. Yield: four to six servings.

Travelling Congressmen Run Hefty Expense Bill

By GEORGE KITCHEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—(CP)—Globe-trotting United States Congressmen are running up a hefty expense bill. Officials here estimate that 120 members of the House of Representatives and 30 Senators either are out of the country, have been, or plan to go. And, when all the bills are in, the jaunts will cost the American taxpayer more than $150,000 for this year alone. Exact information on the Congressional globe-trotters is difficult to pin down, but those who arrange the transportation, issue passports and work out the details of itineraries says 1949 has seen the greatest exodus of Congressmen in history.

In Washington the trips are known as "junkets," but Congressmen themselves shy away fro that word because the visits abroad are classified on the record as official business or inspectors.

Heavy Aid Slate

The big rush on Congressmen to foreign lands has developed from the heavy legislative slate of foreign aid. During the last year, Congress has voted some $20,000,000,000 for foreign aid, arms assistance and national defence.

Most of the Senators and representatives are touchy on the subject of their jaunts, and insist that the money is well spent. Most of them work long hours on the trips trying to determine where and how the money is being spent, what conditions are like abroad and what should be done in the future.

But the trips do not always involve work. Foreign countries and officials usually are anxious to entertain the visitors, and United States diplomats and employees overseas always seek to please the men who control the purse strings.

Occasionally, a member will take his wife, daughter or friends along, but he pays the added expense out of his own pocket.

Exact costs of the government are difficult to determine, but Congressional veterans say the average government expense for a trip to Europe and back runs about $1,200. Longer trips are higher.

Diplomatic Tempest

One diplomatic tempest has arisen overseas. Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem. Okla.), leading a congressional group was "snubbed" in Sweden. He warned that he might not favor any Swedish request for aid in the future.

Swedish newspapers and officials, in turn, shouted "insult" and used strong words about Thomas.

Later, two members of the Thomas group differed with him and lauded Swedish hospitality.

H and S Changes Meeting Dates

OMEMEE, Nov. 25 —(ENS—Omemee Home and School Association held the November meeting in the school Monday.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. S. Northey, with "O Canada" and The Lord's Prayer.

Letters from several Peterborough Associations extending invitations to attend their meetings read by the secretary.

It was decided to change the date of the Omemee Association's monthly meetings, usually held the third Monday in every month, to the first Monday, starting February. The first meeting in the new year will be Jan. 9 The secretary was asked to extend invitations to the district chairman of Home and School Federation, Mrs. Chambers, and the president of Peterborough Home and School Council, Mrs. Nelson to attend that meeting.

The parents' roll call gave the shield to Miss Lamlis room.

Mrs. A. Stephenson reported on the council meeting she attended in Peterborough. She also presented Current Events.

Fifthy Members

Membership convener Mrs. Pooley reported a membership of 50 and it was decided to obtain membership cards.

The question of serving soup to the school children was left for later consideration. Mrs. L. McQuade, Mrs. Lennox and two members of the staff were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the children's Christmas treat and entertainment and Mrs. F. W. Pooley was asked to secure a suitable film.

Mrs. William Earl entertained with two records of the famous singer Erma Sack.

Mrs. H. Bent introduced the guest speaker, Miss Howard of Lindsay, a Victorian Order Nurse. Miss Howard outlined the organization, scope, nature and objectives of the Order. Mrs. Pooley's vote of thanks was extended to Miss Howard by the president.

Refreshments were served by convener Mrs. R. Brooks and her assistant.

Heartfelt Thanks

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—Defence secretary Louis Johnson of the United States has sent a message of "heaartfelt thanks and appreciation for the part played by Canadian forces in the recent rescue of 18 airmen down in the Atlantic off Bermuda. Youth Wounded By Gun Blast

OSHAWA, Nov. 25— Straightening up from a crouch position as one of his pals fired at a wild duck, Robert Harris 16, was struck on the right side of his head by a shotgun blast on Thursday. The upper portion of his ear was shot away. His hair was also singed by the blast.

Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Harris, 624 Somemrville Avenue, was taken to the Oshawa General Hospital. The father said his son's condition was "pretty good" today. The youth is expected to remain in hospital for a "couple of days," his father said.

Police said Harris was one of a quartette of youths shooting ducks on the east side of the Oshawa Harbor area. Michael Olin 16, 445 St. Julien Street, claimed that when he fired at a duck, Harris, who was in a crouch position in front of him, suddenly straightened up. A blast from a 12-gauge shotgun struck Harris on the head.

The blast knocked Harris to the ground. He was taken to hospital in Olin's car.

John Mathews, 15, 75 Yonge Street, said: "I was kneeling beside Harris as a flock of ducks flew by. I shot first, then I guess Bob shot He hit a duck all right and jumped up just as Olin fired behind him."

A member of the 4th Oshawa Boy Scout Troop, Fred Whalley 15 160 Ritson Road South, was also in the hunting party He applied a makeshift bandage to Harris' head. "Harris and I had been shooting down there before," he said, "but we never managed to get any ducks. When we shot them they fell into the water."

All four were Oshawa Collegiate students. Police said it was purely an accident.

settle the much debated east-west argument: which of the two is the best flinger.

With a slippery ball, and tricky under-footing, the clubs probably would stick to a ground attack. In this department, the experts figure Montreal has the edge.

Stampeders finish their week's training here today and drive to Toronto early tonight to a downtown hotel and 10 p.m. curfew. Off-duty city police will patrol the floor where they will be quartered. Their duty is to discourage over-enthusiastic football fans from bothering the players.

Riley (Rattler) Matheson, 33-year-old import who made the western interprovincial all-star team in an inside position this year and coach Les Lear—if he plays—and there is a great possibility he will—can be counted on for superb defensive play.

Y's Men's Club Entains 14 Newcomers

Fourteen guests, mostly men who are comparative newcomers to Canada, were entertained by the Y's Men's Club at the weekly dinner meeting Thursday at the YMCA. They were welcomed on behalf of the Board of the Y by Douglas Loomis.

Guest speaker was Art Buckley of Toronto, one of the most popular members of the YMCA national council staff, who traced the history of the Y and spoke about the organization's World Service Work.

When the movement was started in 1889, it had been primarily concerned with adult education and it was not until some time later, that the scope of Y activities spread to include physical education and the many aspects of the Association today.

Education in Canada had been pioneered by the YMCA, when it was established in this country in 1889. Adult educational classes were established and today two colleges, the Sir George Williams in Montreal and Carlton College, Ottawa, which had been pioneered by the YMCA, were reminders of the Y's early educational work.

Organized P.T.

A later branch of YMCA pioneer work was the introduction of organized physical training in Canada. It pioneered basketball and boys camps.

Today the movement was active in 34 countries and total membership was estimated at 13 million. In most countries the Y was the only common meeting place for Protestants, Roman Catholics, Jews, Moslems and people of every race and creed.

Development of modern science had made the world one neighborhood and the need for people to get along well together was greater than ever. There was a great need for an organization to help people to live together and the Y was leading in this field.

Descibing the specific functions of the Y in various countries, Mr. Buckley said that in China, the Y helped the government to organize high schools.

In India, all the physical training instructors had been by the YMCA in Madras. Pakistan did not recognize Hindu instructors and so the Y was now being asked to organize training for Pakistan instructors.

The policy of the Y was not to go into a place and run the show, Mr. Buckley explained. It preferred to help the people to help themselves.

U.N. Headquarters

During the recent trouble in Palestine, the YMCA building had been the only place where Arabs, Jews and British men were able to spend recreational time together. This was done, even though they were fighting against one another. The building later became the headquarters for the United Nations Conciliation Commission.

During the war the Y had done a great deal of work with both Allied and German service men. Recreational facilities, physical training and comforts had been organized by the movement for men on both sides of the fight.

In order to function adequately, the Y had had to employ secretaries of neutral countries to do this work, with the result that two thirds of the Swiss secretaries and 90 per cent of the Swedish, had been engaged in organizing services to the servicemen fighting both for and against the Allies.

Since the war a great deal of work has been done among displaced persons, both to ameliorate conditions in the camps in Europe and to help the victims readjust themselves to whatever new life they had taken up since.

The speaker was introduced by Al Clarke and a vote of thanks was proposed by Ray Brown. J. H. Roper, secretary of the YMCA, also thanked the speaker and remarked that the Peterborough Y had contributed $1,500 to the Association's World Service Work.

Canadians Nearly Sent To France

TORONTO, Nov. 25—(CP) — Gen. H. G. D. Crerar, former commander of the Canadian Army overseas, said Thursday night that but for the insistence of a statesman, a diplomat and a soldier, Canadian troops might have bypassed the United Kingdom to France in 1939 for their pre-action training.

Addressing members of the Empire Club of Toronto, Gen. Crerar said Winston Churchill, then Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, was reluctant to assume the responsibility of convoying Canadian troops through the submarine-infested waters of the North Atlantic.

He said he and Mines Minister T. A. Crerar (no relation to the General), Canada's representative at the Dominion Ministers' conference in London, and Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to Lodon, arranged a special conference with Churchill.

After he had outlined the military objections, Gen. Crerar said Churchill . . . "decided to bring the First Canadian Division safely to the United Kingdom."

Trying To Avoid Dog Driver Strikes Post

Turning to avoid hitting a dog was given as the reason for his panel truck skidding on the snow into an iron post at Boswell and Charlotte streets at noon today, by John Hansberger, St. Catharines.

Hansberger told police he was driving east on Charlotte St. The right front fender and parking light were damaged.

Slight Mix-up In Crash Report

TUNIS, Tunisia, Nov. 25. — (AP)—Isaac Allal was the only member of his family aboard the transport plane which carried 27 Jewish refugee children to death in Norway Sunday, and a report Tuesday night that an older brother died upon hearing the news was in error.

It was another boy, 18-year-old Joseph Tubiana, who coughed himself to death when he learned that his two brothers and a sister had perished in the crash.

Isaac, 12, was the only survivor of 35 persons aboard Only slightly injured, he is under treatment in a Norwegian hospital. Among those killed were three other children similar named, but they were not related to Isaac All had been gathered up among the poor Jewish families here to be flown to Norway for six months' rest and rehabilitation.

Joseph Tubiana, suffering from tuberculosis, was seized by a coughing spell when he heard of the disaster. His lungs gave way and he died.

An Associated Press writer confused the group and said the victim was Isaac's brother. That was wrong. He was the brother of the three dead Tubiana children.

Urban Protection

on duty all the time. If a truck answers a call into an adjoining township that takes at least four men from the staff. In the holiday season there would be an additional two men off duty, leaving seven men on duty. Those are the plain facts, and it must be obvious to any one that we cannot be reduced to seven men for four pieces of equipment."

Damage To Equipment

Ald. Miller also spoke of damage to equipment resulting from suburban calls. He cited as an example the city's position in the Woods mill fire on the south side of No. 7 Highway, in Otonabee, between the Locks Bridge and Downer's Corners.

Firemen and apparatus were engaged 18 hours, with 4,000 feet of 2½-inch hose. Two pumpers were in use 11 and 14 hours respectively; gasoline consumed was 193 gallons. Back at the fire hall the two pumpers were out of service three hours while a maintenance job was being done on them.

"I believe the bill was $200, and we received $100," Ald. Miller said. "Two lengths of hose were ruined at a cost of $175. An experience like that is too lopsided to be fair."

Calls from the townships was an old problem, Ald. Miller said.

The conclusion of the council was simply that the city could not spare its equipment and its men for that service. It was felt that suburban residents should provide their own equipment. "We'd be glad to assist them in that case, any time they needed help at some fire, but the council is no longer in a position to provide fire protection in the neighboring townships."

Replying to the chairman, Chief Smith said that a run from the fire hall to several of the borders of the city would take about 15 minutes.

"And we never know when there might be delay at one of the railway crossings," Ald. Miller remarked.

Reeve Harrison said Smith council, representing the suburban people, wondered whether the city would consider continuing service at an increased charge.

"We are not in a position to make any further proposal," said Ald. Dick Raine. "The council feels that the township service is not fair to our own citizens. It is not a matter of what the suburban people might be willing to pay. We would like to be helpful, but our feeling, as has been explained, is that it might be dangerous to our own interests."

Question Of Hydrants

Councillor Clark enquired about use of the city hydrants, in the event of the suburban area discussing the setting up of a voluntary brigade with some equipment. The answer was that Smith would have to consult the Utilities Commission.

It was recalled that the Utilities were willing to extend its mains beyond the city and also to place some hydrants there. The estimated hydrant cost quickly cooled off that plan. One extension of 600 feet was laid on Fairbairn Ave. near Jackson Park.

A remark by Mayor Swanston indicated another phase of the city's concern. "The council feels that the more services we provide beyond our boundaries, the more encouragement we are giving to people to move out there. And we don't want to do that."

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

R. E. Bell, Assistant Agricultural Representative, Planning Enlarged Club Program For New Year — Elements of Good Farming Is Forum Subject Nov. 28.

With the approval and support of Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, Robert T. Bell, his assistant, is planning to expand junior club work in the county next year.

"And I would like to make a special appeal to parents for their co-operation," said Mr. Bell today.

"We would like to have at least four clubs—one for beef cattle, probably two for dairy cattle; a forestry club, and I am also hoping to get one or more tractor maintenance clubs going.

"We have young people in this county who are just as capable as any others in the province, and I feel that the parents are just as interested in their children as prospective farmers of the future, as are parents anywhere else in Ontario.

"We can depend on the Junior Farmers for their co-operation in leadership, and also on the Federation of Agriculture for their interest. Especially we are hoping for the support of parents in encouraging their children to join one or more of the clubs."

That is the first appeal of Mr. Bell, a friendly and enthusiastic young graduate of OAC who quotes the axiom that the farmers of tomorrow are today's children in the rural schools, and teenagers going on to High School or Collegiate Institute. The age group for the clubs is from 12 to 21 years.

"I'd like to see a strong beef calf club in our county. This work in Huron has been very successful, and the conditions there are much the same as here.

The forestry club is a new project that was initiated this year in some counties. It undertakes the planting of farm woodlots, shelter belts, snow hedges. The tractor maintenance club provides information in the care and maintenance of tractors, and also stresses safety in the use of the machine, especially among our young people who need it most.'

Mr. Bell said he intends to solicit help from parents and young people in the eastern section of the county, in the Norwood-Havelock area.

"There are a lot of progressive people in the townships to the east, and I feel confident they will encourage their children to join whatever clubs are organized. Club work is a first step in making better farmers. It goes hand in hand with the work at home, and more than that it brings our young folks into a wider acquaintance."

Mr. Bell said that the experience of the junior clubs, and the type of boys and girls they produced, was the best recommendation that could be extended to parents.

"The young people are well looked after and supervised. Our club that finished second in the provincial judging competition at the Royal Winter Fair indicates the kind of personal results that may be expected. I think most people know Don Milburn, Lorne Pimmett and Burritt Mann. They can go into provincial company and competition and give a fine account of themselves. That is our ultimate objective in the plans we have for next year and I hope to get started early in promoting them."

Mr. Bell said thet with the lively help of parents there was no doubt that club work in Peterborough would be a broader success than ever.

HOLSTEINS AT ROYAL

J. M. Fraser, Streetsville, became one of the few Holstein breeders ever to capture both grand championships in the same year at the Royal Winter Fair.

Spring Farm Sovereign Supreme was named grand champion bull, and Spring Farm Juliette grand champion female. Mr Fraser bred both these animals, although the bull was jointly owned by J. M. and his two brothers G. W. and W. D. Fraser.

S. F. Sovereign Supreme was recently sold to Carrizosa Bros., of Bogota, Columbia, for $20,000, and will be transported by plane to his new home soon.

In the Holstein division at the Royal 103 exhibitors showed 254 head There were entries from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, and some from the United States.

In the three-year-old class, Remco Texal Sovereign, senior and grand champion at the Central Ontario Black and White finals in Peterborough six weeks ago, finished second to the Fraser champion The local district champion is owned by Hon G. S. Henry, George C. Jackson, and Whitaker Bros.

In the male class, two years and under three, the winner at Peterborough, Bond Haven R.A. Monarch, owned by Bruce Naylor of Weston, was second to the entry of Rosafe Farms, Brampton, A.B.C. Reflection Sovereign.

Fourth at Peterborough in aged dry cow class Elmcroft Dewdrop M. was first in the same class at the Royal. That class was described as one of the strongest in the national show. She went on to take the reserve senior and reserve grand titles.

Another entry from the McLaughlin herd at Oshawa, Elmcroft Queen R. Triune, winner of the four-year-old class, dry, at Peterborough, and both senior and grand champion here, headed the corresponding class at the Royal.

The third prize senior yearling bull at the Royal, Glenafton Futurity, was one of the trio winning the progeny of dam class. He is jointly owned by J. J E. McCague and Central Durham Bull Club, Orono. The dam is Little Rock Pabst Colantha.

Premier breeder banner was awarded to Mr. McCague by a wide margin, but he was given a close fight for premier exhibitor honors by J. M. Fraser.

FORUM HOLDS MIRROR

Farmers are going to look at themselves in the mirror of their Forum broadcast Monday night, Nov. 28. The subject for discussion is "Are We Good Farmers?"

Forum Guide suggests as signs of a good farmer: "He is efficient in the management of his farm. It has a high rate of production per acre and per unit cost. He produces high quality products and his net income is well above that of the average farmer. At the same time he tries to keep the soil built up, and his equipment and buildings in good repair. His family enjoys a fairly high standard of living, and he takes an active part in community life."

The Guide gives Canadian agricultural products a high rating, the world's standard wheat; high quality of fruit, fresh and canned; some of the best seed grains and seed potatoes in the world; top grading of eggs; bacon and red and blue brand beef as good as any on the continent.

Canada's dairy cattle ranks high in North and South America; but some of our best beef breeding stock still comes from Great Britain.

In production per acre, Canada lags behind: Denmark, New Zealand, United Kingdom, France, United States. In that respect it surpasses only Argentina and Australia. One explanation may be that there is so much land in this country we are wasteful of it.

Prof. G. N. Runke, OAC, says: "Farmers in Great Britain look on livestock, crops and soils as an interrelated triumvirate, and have a deep respect for the importance of preserving soil fertility."

Climate is a factor adverse to Canadian farming. New Zealand Great Britain, western Europe and many parts of the USA have less severe climate than has Canada.

Here is an interesting comparison of value of output per 100 acres: (estimated in sterling): New Zealand, £365; Australia, £442; Great Britain £721; United States, £212; Denmark, £1,038; Canada £235; France, £782. Those are pre-war figures.

TOWNSHIP MEETINGS

Annual township meetings of the Federation of Agriculture in Middlesex County this week, to Wednesday, brought together more than 400 persons Three more townships are meeting this week.

D. A Stauffer of Oxford County said at Medway High School that the farm forum was a basis of democracy. For that meeting 30 forums were represented. It was a county rally of 250 members.

George Stirling, Middlesex Federation fieldman, said forums were a means of getting to the "grass roots of our problems, with a resulting better brand of agriculture and better standard of living for farmers."

University of Western Ontario, London, is projecting a rural life conference December 28-30 Subjects cover a wide range of interests from the Marshall Plan to Co-operatives. Robert McCubbin, MP, Parliamentary Assistant to the Minister of Agriculture, will speak on "The Farmer and World Markets."

D. J. CHAMBERS APPOINTED

Donald J. Chambers of Otonabee has been appointed by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to take charge of the dairy herd improvement project in this county beginning Thursday, Dec. 1. He was graduated from the two year course at Kemptville last spring.

It is understood that the Peterborough unit has 26 members. One of the conditions of membership is that every milking animal in the herd must be placed on test.

HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

CHECKS CORROSION—A scheme developed by four Canadian physicists in a Halifax dockside laboratory may provide the solution to a problem that has faced ship owners since steel hulls were first used—how to prevent corrosion. These two Royal Canadian Navy photos show how effective the new process has been on naval vessels. Left photo shows a corroded, rusted keel and propeller after five months under water. Upper right is a zinc plate which, when it reacted with steel and sea water, was supposed to generate an electric current and prevent corrosion. It never was satisfactory. The four physicists substituted magnesium bars for the zinc since that metal generates more intense current. The photo at right shows how little corrosion there is on the propeller of a vessel so equipped after months of underwater exposure.
